MR. GILBERT, interesting himself, for the United States, in Germany's payments to the Allies, says Germany can pay everything and go on paying $600,000,000 a year in gold indefinitely. France is delighted, England amazed.

MR. GILBERT'S rosy report reminds you of the old Jewish saying, "It is easy to cut shoestrings out of another man's leather." It will stimulate the sale of German bonds that international finance intends to unload—at a good profit—on American investors. Perhaps that is part of the programme.

MR. WHALEN, New York's new police commissioner, with vim and vigor, joins raids on 55 New York speakeasies. According to New York police authorities, that leaves about 24,945 speakeasies still to be raided.

RAID 55 speakeasies, and 65 new ones open, in basements, over delicatessen stores, back of drug stores.

The serpent that grew a new head every time one was chopped off had the speakeasy idea.

IT pays to advertise and this is the land of opportunity for those that recognize opportunity when they see it.

Joseph P. Day sold a block of land for New York City yesterday.

To advertise the sale, Mr. Day sent to many millionaires this speech:

"All try to help the poor, but nobody thinks of the poor millionaire," and invited them to come to the Court House steps and bid.

THE property sold for $3,375,000, all cash, and it was bought by Max Verschleiser, who came here from Austria as a boy, with nothing but courage.

Learn from Joseph P. Day that it pays to advertise in an original way and from Max Verschleiser that opportunities are still here.

THAT block, sold for $3,375,000 yesterday, cost New York, in 1890, $265,000. Keep a good piece of land, and it will keep you.

SCIENTISTS, desiring to make science popular, should not drag the name of God, or any theology, into their discussions.

They should learn wisdom from the great Alexander, who wished his name and commands to be respected. When he conquered Egypt he inquired immediately for Apis, sacred Egyptian bull, of Memphis. While the bull munched his hay, Alexander knelt and worshipped him, telling the Egyptains it was one of the finest gods he had ever seen.

THEY thought well of him and obeyed him. They had rebelled against a former conqueror, who, to show his power, slew the sacred bull and ate a piece of him.

AN intoxicated lady told the judge her troubles was due to an alcohol rub. She had swallowed nothing. Doctors said it was just possible, the judge excused her.

A GENTLEMAN, very drunk, led in by the policeman, told the judge, "My mistake was eating raisins while drinking ice cream soda." They let him go.

Prohibition develops new excuses.

NEW YORK authorities, seizing 31 samples of bootleg whisky, find 28 of them dangerously poisonous. Wood alcohol, hair tonic, carbolic acid, in some. The bootlegger with his "pre-war" supplies is the good friend of undertaker and grave digger.

ON the first business day of the year 1929 Wall street bought 5,413,610 shares of stock.

Yesterday, second business day, the sales amounted to 5,300,000 shares.

The Scottish girl remarked to her friend that it would be a "Ra'ar night," because she had been around the room but twice, and had been invited to supper six times.

It looks as though Wall street were to have a "Ra'ar night" or two, during 1929.

A GREAT three-engine Army monoplane, the Question Mark, taking fuel supplies in the air from another plane, is on its fourth day of continuous flight. A small refueling plane pumped 150 gallons of gasoline into the big plane's tanks in six minutes.

That is good work, and Secretary of War Davis is to be congratulated.

NEARLY 100 dead, many hurt in a storm in Japan, 20 villages flooded, hundreds of houses wrecked by high seas rolling inland, and now comes another earthquake.

The Japanese, courageous and resourceful, have been cruelly visited by nature's fury.

They will meet this latest disaster as they have so many others and overcome it.

BLACKHANDERS KILL AGED 'HILL' MAN

Carmen Iandiorio, 69, a retired city employe, is the victim of the first Hill district murder this year, shot down after being called to the door of his home at 1927 Colwell street early today.

The detectives said they know the identity of the slayers and predicted early arrests. Revolver bullets of different caliber found in the slain man's body lead the sleuths to believe there were two gunmen.

Iandiorio had been paying tribute to blackhanders for a year, detectives declared, and had feared he would be killed.

The murder was the work of the Mafia, according to City Detectives Frank Dodson and Robert Burke, who are investigating the slaying.

SHOT THROUGH DOOR

Iandiorio was summoned to his death by the ringing of the door bell. Three shots were fired through a glass panel in the door, two of the bullets striking the victim in the throat and breast.

Thirty-eight murders attributed by police to Black Hand or gang warfare occurred during 1928. The killing this morning was the first of the new year.

REPUTED TO "HAVE MONEY"

Iandiorio is a former city street cleaner and is the owner of several houses in the Hill district, police said. He also was said to "have some money" by those who knew

Otto Kahn Hooks Record Kingfish

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Otto H. Kahn, New York financier and Palm Beach winter resident, claimed a record catch in the Gulf Stream off the Palm Beach shore yesterday when he listed with the contest committee of the Sailfish Club of Palm Beach a 40½-pound kingfish. He hooked the fish unassisted, using a nine-thread line with a five-ounce tip.

Members of the contest committee credited the banker with having caught the largest kingfish officially recorded in Palm Beach.

Panama Fliers Plan N. Y. Start Today

PLANE 4TH DAY UP IN BIG TEST

IMPERIAL VALLEY, Cal., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—After peacefully sailing over the Imperial Valley since yesterday, the Army monoplane Question Mark headed back toward Los Angeles before noon today in its fourth day of a flight to set a new endurance record through refueling.

It has broken all records for continuous flying by heavier-than-air machines.

"ALL HAPPY"

Word of Maj. Carl Spatz' decision to quit the valley and journey northward came from Capt. R. G. Hoyt, pilot of refueling plane No. 1. The flight started at Los Angeles more than 75 hours ago.

"They're all happy up there," Capt. Hoyt said. "Seem to be feeling good and everything running fine. Guess they're a bit tired of watching this desert and so we're going to fly to Los Angeles."

Capt. Hoyt said his ship would accompany the Question Mark and that a gasoline contact probably would be made en route to Los Angeles.

DODGED FOG

The return of the Question Mark to the northern airport will mark the first appearance of the ship at Los Angeles since late yesterday when it abandoned its course there because of fog and sailed to the clear atmosphere over Imperial valley, where it spent the night roaring peacefully above the sandy plain.

With Capt. Hoyt are Lieuts. A. C. Strickland and I. A. Woodring.

There was no indication to ground observers that any of its

METRO-CITY MANAGER ASKED

A city manager to head Pittsburgh's government was proposed today to the Metropolitan District Commission drafting the charter for the Consolidated City. The proposal was made by Mark Acheson, attorney and member of a committee representing the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies.

Acheson and the committee appeared before the commission meeting in Old City Hall this afternoon. Their recommendation was the first proposal made to the commission that the city managership idea be adopted under the Metropolitan plan.

"We want a city manager," said Acheson, "because we feel the position would be kept out of politics. Our committee is interested purely in welfare work, and it believes that the city manager plan would open the way to a more effective operation of these activities."

The commission took Acheson's recommendation under advisement. It is now engaged in drawing up a charter for the greater city under provisions of the state amendment voted by the people in the November election.

VARE FATE BEFORE SENATE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—At a semi-final session of the Reed "Slush Fund" Committee set for late today a report is expected to be ordered on the fitness of Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, to take a seat in the Senate.

The second session of the committee was ordered to permit Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia, Vare's attorney, to wind up testimony started at the reopening of the case earlier today.

Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, chairman of the committee, is insistent that the report on the Vare case be presented this session and is understood to have already prepared a preliminary sketch of the recommendations he will make.

DOCTOR, BROWN AT ODDS

During the appearance of Brown today the committee was given a dramatic portrayal of Vare's illness and warned that it might be responsible for "fatal consequences" if anything were done to disturb the Senator-elect, now recuperating in Florida.

Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby, of Philadelphia, Vare's physician, declined, however, to paint the same dismal picture of his patient's health, declaring that while he hoped for Vare's recovery he did not expect it to come in less than six months.

At the outset the Missouri Senator explained the purpose of the meeting was to give Vare or his counsel an opportunity to submit anything they wished having a bearing on the investigation. He added the committee is "duty bound" to make some report to the Senate before the expiration of the present session, March 4, and announced the

Mrs. Margaret Fair, 25, widow, 305 Meyran avenue, obtained a restraining order in court today to prevent Frederick Sarg, her reputed partner in an Oakland haberdashery, from paying his own bills with receipts of the business.

WOMAN CURBS HIS SPENDING

Mrs. Margaret Fair, 25, comely widow, of 305 Meyran avenue, obtained a restraining order in court today to prevent Frederick Sarg, her reputed partner in an Oakland haberdashery, from paying his own bills out of receipts.

"I put the money into the business and he supplied the experience," explained Mrs. Fair. Sarg, she said, formerly was employed in a downtown store.

Mrs. Fair averred that she and Sarg started a men's furnishings store at 116 Atwood street. She charges that he is paying out partnership funds for his own benefit. Sarg denied that she is his business partner. Several checks were exhibited to uphold her contention.

Judge Elder W. Marshall signed an order restraining Sarg from paying any but ordinary bills, pending an accounting and settlement of questions involved, by the court.

MOTORMAN INNOCENT IN DEATH

Statements by employes of the Pittsburgh Railways Company that broken tracks where the rails had been laid in 1898 were responsible for the fatal Christmas Eve trolley accident in McKeesport formed the highlight today in the testimony at the coroner's inquest into the death of Verna Love, all, 15, one of the victims of the crash.

Notwithstanding statements of witnesses that the truck was in dangerous condition, the coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death and made no recommendations for the repair of the wornout rails.

MOTORMAN QUIZZED

After the railways company's photographer had submitted photographs showing the chipped, broken and bent rails, Samuel Gibberadine, 826 Monongahela avenue, Braddock, motorman on the death car, and Edwin C. Jones, 2112 Beaver street, McKeesport, motorman on the car which was derailed and crashed into a trolley running in the opposite direction, testified as to the poor condition of the track.

"What was your knowledge as to the condition of the track?" Coroner W. J. McGregor asked Jones, a carman of 14 years' service.

"Not extra good," answered Jones. "The rails are worn down and thin, and have been repaired a number of times." Both men said that they reported the bad track to their immediate superiors.

SAY RAILS SPREAD

Oscar Williams, 7008 Hamilton avenue, superintendent of construction, declared that the accident was caused by spreading of the rails resulting from broken tie-rods. He explained that these tie-rods stretched across the track from rail to rail. One was broken off and another had pulled through the web of the rail. The witness said:

"The rails were laid in 1898. The track was rehabilitated in 1911 when the city of McKeesport paved the section between the rails. The tie-rods being buried beneath the surface, their condition cannot be determined and we hold regular inspections to see that the rails do not spread beyond the gauge. The average life of a rail is about 25 years. These rails have been down over 30 years."

The witness said that in a number of places the rails were chipped and broken, but that the condition was not considered dangerous.

CORONER IN CLASH

Attorney E. N. S. Hitchens, representing several hurt in the accident, attempted to cross-examine the witnesses, but his questions were balked by Coroner McGregor. At length Hitchens remarked that the inquest was a "one-sided affair," and this aroused the ire of McGregor.

"You have been insinuating that the track at this particular point is bad, that you know certain facts and so and so," declared the Coroner. "Now, I summon you to take the stand and testify."

"No, sir," retorted Hitchens, "I will not waive my right to ques-

WIDOW SAYS FIANCE TOOK $3,000 SAVINGS AND LEFT

A dream of marriage and a home in California shattered, and her $3,000 savings gone with her intended husband, Mrs. Metro Warmstall, 35, of 649 Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, is near collapse in her home today.

A six weeks' courtship ended in the darkened movie theater in East Pittsburgh last evening, when her suitor complained of illness, left and did not come back, she told County Detective John Burke.

Mrs. Warmstall, whose husband, Rudolph, died two years ago, was working as a maid in the Hotel Wall, where "Pete" Morris was stopping. He pressed his suit with vigor, she said, after he learned that she had $3,110 savings in a Wilmerding bank, she said. He promised marriage, a home in California, and yesterday, she said, she drew the money from a bank. Then they went to her home, where, she says, Morris suggested that they wrap the money in a package and place it in the bosom of her dress. He made up the package, she said.

Then they went to a movie and things began to happen. Morris said he was ill and left. She waited in vain.

Then she went to the hotel, where she said she found he had checked out. She looked at the money package in her dress and found it contained not $3,110, but $220.

'DRY CAPITAL' DRIVE SURE; PINCHOT SPURS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A 10-weeks' war on bootleggers and speakeasies to make the national capital an "example" to the cities of the country, will be launched in Washington Sunday.

The campaign will be waged under the auspices of the National United Committee for Law Enforcement with the purpose of preparing "the national capital for the incoming administration pledged to a better enforcement of the law, and to make Washington an example and encouragement to the rest of the nation."

Former Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, has issued a demand that President Coolidge ask the commissioners of the District of Columbia to submit a list of speakeasies and close them on penalty of losing their jobs within a week.

Dr. Clinton N. Howard, of Rochester, N. Y., who is in charge of the campaign, announced that he had been pledged the co-operation of the Washington Ministers' Association. He will initiate the onslaught on the liquor sellers at a meeting on Sunday at the First Congregational Church.

COUNTY'S LOSS BY NEEDLESS SMOKE PUT AT $12,978,000

$4,000,000 HOSPITAL IN VIEW

Pittsburgh's need for a communicable-disease hospital, the estimated cost of which would run upwards of $4,000,000 to $6,000,000, will be laid before city and county officials Monday, January 14, it was revealed today by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the city Department of Public Welfare.

Invitations for the joint conference have been sent out by Mrs. Rauh, who expressed deep interest in the realization of her dreams of the last seven years.

"There is no need in the city and county greater than a project of this kind," she said. "It would solve our greatest social problem and provide proper care for thousands of poor people found in our city daily suffering from minor contagions for which we have no adequate means to provide."

Mrs. Rauh pointed out that the need first came to her attention seven years ago, and both she and the late Dr. C. J. Vaux, then director of the Department of Public Health, were vitally interested in the project.

CRASH LAID TO BAD RAILS

tion the witnesses by being a witness myself, but I reaffirm the statement that this inquest is a one-sided affair."

THEY DIDN'T REMEMBER

Few facts were brought out by other witness—including passengers in the accident whose memories were bad, railway company employes who did not feel qualified to testify, and a police lieutenant who patroled the scene of the disaster at night and felt that he could not testify as to happenings and conditions on a poorly-lighted street.

The inquest was held in the McKeesport Police Station. Members of the jury, all residents of McKeesport, were Charles S. Weiderhohe, M. C. Hugo, Henry Reyner, and Fred Held. The verdict was returned in five minutes.

T. J. Fitzgerald, general manager of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, said today that the stretch of track on which the accident took place has been completely repaired and that the track is in safe operating condition. Mr. Fitzgerald made this statement despite the fact that pictures show that the rails are chipped and, in at least one place, the rails do not meet squarely.

Fitzgerald said the company plans to lay new rails on all paved streets in McKeesport traversed by it, if the city sees its way to repair the streets.

"In the past four years," he said, "the Pittsburgh Railways Company has completely relaid 140 miles of rails in the Pittsburgh district at a cost of between $7,000,000 and $7,500,000. I don't think another railways company in the country has a record of that kind."

A short time ago the Rev. Henry Fox, president of the Washington Heights Board of Trade, protested against the condition of the rails along Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington. Following publication of pictures by the Sun Telegraph showing Mr. Fox vividly illustrating his claim by picking up a piece of rail that had broken loose from the roadbed, the railways company promptly repaired the rails.

PEACE TREATIES OF AMERICAS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Without discussion the Pan-American conference on Arbitration and Conciliation approved, in plenary session today, drafts of multilateral arbitration and conciliation treaties which yesterday were approved by their respective committees.

In a note addressed to Secretary Kellogg as chairman of the arbitration conference, the Brazilian government explained today that it could not accept membership on the Paraguayan - Bolivian conciliation board because of pending boundary treaties with both disputing countries. Those treaties are undergoing ratification and Brazil holds that it therefore might appear as an interested party.

The note expresses Brazil's willingness to do her utmost for the maintenance of peace in this hemisphere, but in relation to the case in question notes that Brazil is bounded by the very territory disputed between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Brazil expresses confidence that other American states will be able to complete the membership of the commission and effect the reconciliation.

The treaties only require formal signature before being transmitted to the respective governments for ratification. The ceremony of affixing the signatures will occur tomorrow after which the conference will adjourn.

Chicago Is Smoky, Too; Statues Prove It

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Chicago outdoor statues don't mind the weather, which has been terrible lately, but smoke and soot and gases are steadily getting the best of them.

Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art Institute, in answer to many inquiries, today explained the ugly green coating which mars the bronze figures in the city's parks.

"Gases and soot in the air eat the bronze," he said. "Eliminate them and our outdoor works of art will not become hideous."

SENATE HOLDS VARE'S FATE

way would be left open for any further presentation later.

FEARFUL OF STRAIN

After warning that anything "untoward" might prove fatal to the Pennsylvania Senator-elect, Brown said:

"Senator Vare is obsessed with the idea that he was honestly elected and he wants to stand up before his fellowmen and tell them so. I urge the committee not to persecute him further at this time. If there is any doubt as to his illness let the committee send a physician of its own choosing to Florida to examine him."

Brown added that "we will gladly pay expenses" incident to such a trip, suggesting further that a "corps of doctors be sent."

Reed declared the committee had been holding the case open this long, almost two years, to give Vare ample time to make any defense and explanation of the excessive money alleged to have been spent in the 1926 campaign.

MIND NOT ACUTE

"When the letter of the committee was received asking him to appear here today I went to see him," Brown said. "He couldn't talk with me. His mind is acute for only three or four minutes at a time. He hasn't strength to talk longer."

As to the trip Vare made to the Kansas City convention last June, referred to in the Reed letter, Brown said:

"Vare went to the convention at Kansas City against the advice of his physicians and against my advice. He felt it was his duty to strain a point and go. He is now paying the price. He came back not himself. Anything untoward to him now would be disastrous and perhaps fatal. He is fighting against hope."

Dr. Kirby, in taking the stand, told of his advice to Vare against attending the Kansas City Republican Convention.

"He went against the advice of his physicians and when he returned he was a broken man," said Kirby. "Since that time he has been absolutely down and out."

Reed brought out that Vare upon his return had been "busy with business and politics."

VANDERGRIFT MAN SLAYS WIFE, SELF

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Jan. 4.—Awakening his son to tell him where to find money to take the boy and his two sisters to the home of an aunt in Freeport, Samuel K. Hill, 38, returned to his wife's bedroom, fatally shot her and killed himself.

The story was related to police today by Clarence Hill, 11, who, after discovering the tragedy, picked $1.25 from a cup in the kitchen and piloted his charges to "Aunt Mary" Burkett in Freeport.

QUARREL BLAMED

The boy told police his father and step-mother had quarreled. He said he didn't know the cause of the quarrel.

After his father had talked to him and returned to his bedroom, he says, he heard his father say, "If you laugh again, I'll kill you." There was a pause, then two shots.

When the three children rushed into the room Mrs. Hill was dead in bed and his father was stretched across the foot of the bed.

Both victims had been shot through the heart. Both had been married before.

MARRIED BEFORE

Mrs. Hill had two children by a former marriage. They are with their grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Hoffman, in Vandergrift. Hill had five children, two of whom were with their "Aunt Mary" when the tragedy occurred.

Hill was an armature winder and was regarded as a steady workman and a good provider. Trouble had been of long standing, it is said by police who alleged that Hill objected to his wife being absent from home so frequently.

AIRPLANE UP 4TH DAY

three Wright J-5 motors was wearing out.

While the great black plane passed the seventy-second consecutive hour of flight, a pursuit plane hovered about it and dropped breakfast to its crew. Through a contact hose 25 gallons of oil was supplied. This was the seventeenth refueling operation in the air.

SEEKS BLIMP RECORD

Breakfast on the Question Mark consisted of oranges, oatmeal and coffee.

Even should the plane, in the closing hours of its unprecedented flight, be so crippled that it could not return here, it will, nevertheless, have carried human beings to a new record of aerial residence in airplanes.

Two dawns hence, if the plane remains up, and its Army sponsors now vision the ship as still in the air possibly a week distant, it will be near to the existing endurance record of a man-made contrivance which now is held abroad.

That record of 111 hours 46 minutes of continuous flight was made by the German built Graf Zeppelin in its voyage from Friedrickshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., last fall.

WOMEN VOTERS JOIN ANTI-SMOKE CRUSADE

Pittsburgh's progress is retarded by needless smoke, the Allegheny County League of Women Voters declared today in an open letter to the City Council, signed by Mrs. Q. W. Hershey, chairman of the city government committee.

The league suggests that burning of bituminous coal in residence furnaces be prohibited unless they are of a type that insures complete combustion.

LEAGUE OFFERS AID

The league offers its facilities for an educational campaign to induce householders to use smokeless fuel. The letter follows:

We note with approval the resolution introduced by Councilman Garland advocating the use of coke or natural gas in the furnaces of dwellings. The purpose of the resolution might be strengthened by prohibiting the use of bituminous coal except in boilers and furnaces properly designed for its complete combustion.

COKE COSTS LITTLE MORE

Bituminous coal can be purchased for $5.25 per ton and by-product coke for $6.50 per ton. We are told by experts that under the ordinary, inefficient handling of fuels more heat is obtained from a ton of coke than from a ton of bituminous coal. The same experts advise that in some cases a mixture of coke and coal, in the proportion of not less than two-thirds coke and one-third coal, will be satisfactory.

The League of Women Voters offers to the City of Pittsburgh its facilities in an educational campaign to bring about the adoption of the use of coke or any other smokeless fuel in the furnaces of dwellings.

Such a campaign, however, would have to be followed up by instruction in efficient handling by trained inspectors from the Smoke Bureau.

The activities of many organizations and private citizens, as well as community movements, are directed toward boosting Pittsburgh. These efforts are more or less useless as long as Pittsburgh's reputation as a smoky city cannot be disproved.

PAYMASTER IN CRASH KILLED

George B. Smith, of 1206 Murtland avenue, paymaster for the Booth & Flinn Co., was killed and a companion was injured when their automobile was wrecked on the Cresson road, near Cresson Heights, Pa., last night, while they were carrying a $7,500 payroll to a road job near the scene of the wreck.

Carl Warner, of York, Pa., construction engineer, was injured slightly.

The machine skidded on a mountain road and ran over an embankment.

The payroll was found intact by highway patrolmen who took the body of Smith to Altoona and sent his companion to a hospital in that city.

WOMEN OF CITY BACK DRIVE ON SMOKE

Women of Pittsburgh, whose views of the smoke nuisance are voiced in the expressions of social leaders and club women, are enthusiastic in their support of the latest movement toward obtaining clear skies and a sootless atmosphere for the city.

The women are willing to make sacrifices in the effort to obtain a city beautiful. They have long given their moral support to the movement and are encouraged in their pleas for a clean city by the announcement of the scientific survey which has been undertaken by the Mellon Institute and the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Charles Watkins, leader in the women's movement to persuade housewives to burn coke or gas in preference to soft coal, quoted her husband, a professor in the Carnegie Institute of Technology, as saying that sulphuric acid in Pittsburgh's smoke atmosphere did enormous damage annually to metal in buildings. Mrs. Watkins also pointed out the cost to housekeepers of the drudgery of constantly sweeping their porches, scrubbing floors, cleaning carpets and laundering curtains.

UNITY URGED

"Some people fear that the agitation of the smoke question brings unfavorable publicity to the community," said Mrs. William M. Hall, of the Twentieth Century Club. "It is vastly better to admit that the city is smoky and then go out and clean it up. Then we shall profit by the favorable publicity when the whole world learns that we are a clean city."

Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Miss H. Marie Dermitt, secretary of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, and Mrs. Raymond Kaufmann, president of the Council of Jewish Women, are veterans among the women workers in behalf of a clean city.

Mrs. Roy A. Hunt declared that united work among the women would go a long way in obtaining the desired ends, adding that the women, better than anyone else, knew the annoyance and dangers from soot and smoke.

The Congress of Clubs has cooperated with other organizations in fighting smoke and a clean city is part of its perpetual program. Mrs. John S. Sloan, former president of the Congress, is directing its anti-smoke campaign.

MAN KILLED BY BLACKHANDERS

him during the 27 years he resided in his late home.

Unable to explain such an early morning call and suspicious of the caller's actions, Iandiorio himself was armed when he went to the door. His loaded revolver was found at his feet by his two sons, Tony, 19, and Albert, 12, who rushed downstairs when they heard three shots.

WIFE SAW KILLER

Mrs. Cecelia Iandiorio, the wife, aroused by the ringing of the doorbell, called to a man standing in the shadows of the house to identify himself.

"It's Philip," he answered.

Philip is the name of one of her brothers.

The woman doubted his word and the husband went down to investigate. He had not succeeded in opening the door, when the shots were fired through the panel.

Iandiorio was dead when police arrived. A jagged edged razor was found on the porch, dropped, police reported.

The victim's body was removed to the Passavant Hospital and later to the county morgue, where an autopsy will be performed.

Tonight city detectives will search the contents of a safe in Iandiorio's home, to determine if it contains Black Hand letters. The widow, it was reported, knows the combination of the safe, but is too nervous to give it to detectives now.

DWELLINGS DECLARED TO BLAME

Unnecessary smoke is costing Pittsburgh between $6,738,000 and $13,476,000 a year, it was learned today on authority of H. B. Meller, chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation. According to Mr. Meller, private houses, not under the bureau's control, are chiefly responsible for the situation.

If the same rate of damage applies throughout the county, Allegheny county suffers between $12,978,000 and $25,956,000 of loss annually from preventable smoke.

Meller said the estimates of damage were made up of "extra-necessary cost of laundry work, clothes, cleaning, redecorating, repainting, shorter life of certain building materials, damage to merchandise, loss due to improper combustion of fuel, and similar reasons."

HEALTH LOSS IMMEASURABLE

He directed attention at the same time to an additional and unmeasurable loss, caused by the detrimental effects of smoke on the health and psychology of the community.

These matters will be investigated by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research in its new survey of Pittsburgh's smoke situation. The study has been sufficiently financed to permit its being carried on thoroughly for an indefinite period.

The figures as to the economic loss, measurable in dollars, which smoke causes Pittsburgh, were obtained by multiplying estimates offered by Meller of the preventable money loss per capita per annum in a smoky city—from $10 to $20—by the population figures, given by the Bureau of Census as 673,900 on July 31 last.

BEFORE CITY COUNCIL

The bad effect of smoke on health was referred to in the resolution, introduced in City Council by Robert Garland and unanimously passed last Monday, which calls upon householders and owners of small apartment houses, now exempt from the provision of the anti-smoke ordinance, to use coke, natural gas or smokeless coal instead of bituminous coal. The resolution declares that smoke, under conditions of very low wind velocity such as has prevailed recently, aggravates irritation of the mucous membrane in the nose and throat, and "unquestionably makes the individual more susceptible to disease of the respiratory tract."

Charles A. Painter, leader of a citizens' movement for the abatement of the smoke nuisance by a campaign of education, also placed the injurious effect of smoke on health foremost in his indictment of the nuisance.

Meller called attention to a paper recently written by him and published in "Mechanical Engineering," in which he said:

"An adult breathes about 2,000 gallons of air in 24 hours, or about 34 pounds in weight, as contrasted with a daily intake of five and one-half pounds of liquid and solid food. There is no question that the solids and gasses in the air due to the burning of fuel have an irritating effect upon the eyes, nose, throat and lungs, tending to aggravate or to cause inflammatory diseases."

Flu Spreads Death In Soldiers' Home

BEAUVOIR, Miss., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A small group of veterans, tried and found true under Union fire in the Civil War, today was fighting an even grimmer foe—influenza—which had swept down upon the Jefferson Davis Confederate Soldiers' Home here.

The disease, coupled with pneumonia, has claimed the lives of five inmates of the home since Wednesday noon.

Twenty-five others are seriously ill and 108 of the old soldiers, their wives and widows are on the sick list.

MONROE DOCTRINE HALTS ACTION ON KELLOGG PACT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Senate debate on the Kellogg treaty to renounce war revolved largely today around a hypothetical question whether aggressive interest by the League of Nations in the Bolivia-Paraguay dispute would have constituted a violation of the Monroe Doctrine.

The question was put by Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, while Chairman Borah, of the Foreign Relations Committee was continuing his explanation of the workings of the Kellogg Treaty. Senator Borah agreed that it was a hard question to answer, but he did "not think the doctrine would be infringed or challenged by any effort of foreign governments to establish peace between South American countries so long as they did not seek to establish themselves in South America."

The doctrine itself, Borah said, would not be "embarrassed or curtailed" by the new treaty.

The Idahoan was soon surrounded by questioners as another crowded chamber listened to the renewal of debate.

Senators Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas, and Johnson (Rep.), California, joined in the Monroe Doctrine questioning.

Testimony favorable to the Kellogg treaty was heard by the House Foreign Affairs Committee today at a hearing on the Fish resolution which would place the House on record as expressing its desire that the pact be ratified by the Senate.

S. O. Levinson, of Chicago, chairman of the Committee on Outlawry of War, said that all peace groups were solidly behind the treaty and wanted it ratified without strings.

Bishop William F. McDowell, of the Federal Council of Churches, and Lieut. Col. John Thomas Taylor, national representative of the American Legion, also favored early ratification.

HOOVER FACING BIG PROBLEMS, NEARS U. S.

U. S. S. UTAH, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Besides the selection of his cabinet and the making of other appointments of almost equal importance, Herbert Hoover soon must give his attention to two of the concededly gravest problems before his administration—prohibition enforcement and farm relief legislation.

Suggestions emanating from Washington that the prohibition unit be transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice, met no response from the President-elect. It is asserted that an act of Congress is necessary in the first place to bring about such a transfer even if it should be deemed advisable for administrative purposes, which has not yet been conceded.

FAVORS PROBE

Mr. Hoover readily recognizes the abuses which have grown up in the enforcement of the dry laws and in the treatment of the subject during his campaign he declared that only an organized searching investigation of the facts and causes could determine the methods for correcting them. His idea was for the appointment of a commission to study not only enforcement abuses, but the workability of the law itself.

Consideration of the farm relief question undoubtedly will go over until after the present session of Congress.

There is much speculation among Mr. Hoover's associates as to when the new Congress would be assembled, but the President-elect naturally is silent, as he does not wish to be placed in a position of even indirectly influencing action during the Coolidge administration.

WANTS EARLY ACTION

The opinion is that, if there is no farm legislation before March 4, the new Congress would be assembled in the spring, as the President-elect is on record as stating he wants early action so the measure would be effective in helping with the disposition of this year's crops.

The President-elect early today was only two days from Hampton Roads and still was encountering pleasant weather. While the temperature moderated to some extent, it was not expected that the Utah would run into cold weather before late tonight or early tomorrow morning. The big battleship was maintaining her average day's run of around 360 knots.

Australian Cadets Come for Inaugural

The British embassy has notified officials that the cadets will arrive in San Francisco, January 18 and will come to Washington about March 1.

Bride-to-Be Dies; $150 a Month Left Fiance

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A lifetime income of $150 a month is provided for Walter S. Stanley, of Evanston, under the will of Miss Phyllis Moorhouse, to whom he was to have been married this month. Miss Moorhouse died Christmas Eve.

The young woman's will, filed for probate yesterday, followed in its provisions the instructions contained in the testament of her father, William R. Moorhouse, former commissioner of public works of Chicago, who died in 1925.

Under the father's will, Stanley was to have received $100,000 when he and Miss Moorhouse were married. The sum that was to have been Stanley's is bequeathed to Miss Moorhouse's sister, Mrs. Deborah Sweetser, with a provision that Stanley receive $150 a month.

OFFICER HURT IN MAN HUNT

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—John Bauer, 30, motorcycle policeman in the village of Cheektowaga, was in a critical condition at a hospital here early today from injuries received last night in Cheektowaga, when he was forced down a 20-foot embankment while pursuing two suspicious motorists. When the motorists stopped their car suddenly, blocking the road, Bauer's motorcycle crashed into the automobile and he was thrown down the embankment.

Buffalo police believe the motorists were William Wunderlich, 24, and Albert Seychew, 28, alleged burglars, who wounded Patrolman Fred Smith seriously and overpowered five other officers by a ruse in a house in Lackawanna Wednesday night. They had escaped in a police car.

Smarting under the suspicion that they were outwitted twice by the same men within 24 hours, the police renewed their hunt for the burglars this morning with intent to shoot to kill on sight.

AIRPORT WORK DUE TO START IN SPRING

Development plans for Pittsburgh's new airport, on the Mount Lebanon road, Mifflin township, will be completed and submitted for approval to the County Commissioners in February, Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown announced yesterday.

Fourteen detailed property plans, representing 70 per cent of the land involved in the airport, have been completed, Mr. Brown said, and have been turned over to County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich for purchase or condemnation proceedings. Nine property holders have been notified of condemnation proceedings.

Work on the airport is expected to start in the early spring. About 2,000,000 cubic yards of dirt will be moved in the development of the 425 acres of land which will give the airport a Department of Commerce A-1 rating. More than 1,000 acres, it is planned, will be in the airport eventually.

ILLNESS HALTS ARRESTS

With only two of their 46 warrants served yesterday, county detectives will start anew today to arrest the remainder of those named in the informations preferred by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner as a result of the recent grand jury graft investigation. Those arrested will be asked to post bond pending a hearing before Alderman Thomas Jones, of the South Side.

Sickness was reported in many cases, those mentioned in the informations being confined to their homes. Many persons, friends of those named, inquired at the Detective Bureau yesterday regarding the bond necessary. It is expected that many will post bond today. Elliot Donnelly, of the North Side, accused of violating the Snyder act, was one of two persons to post bond yesterday.

Inspector Charles Faulkner, of the North Side police district, one of those named in the informations, is reported ill in his home. Gardner said yesterday that he would wait until those sick had recovered before asking them to post bond.

County detectives are busy lining up their witnesses for the preliminary hearings that Alderman Jones will conduct. It is expected that nearly all the defendants will waive hearings for court trial, but some testimony may be necessary. The testimony will be virtually the same as that given before the grand jury.

KING GETS MORE REST TODAY, IMPROVES

LONDON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—It was officially stated at Buckingham Palace at 3:30 p. m. that King George was having a somewhat more restful day.

Two favorable factors have appeared in the latest developments in the King's prolonged struggle.

The restlessness which prevented him from getting adequate repose on two previous nights seemed to have left him in a large degree and he passed last night more quietly. This, it was assumed, would prove helpful, adding to the powers of recuperation he needs to lift him out of this sadly debilitated state.

Consequently this morning's bulletin reported improvement in the locally infected area.

The King's general condition was reported as being stationary.

An Evening News dispatch from Melton Mowbray says that while hunting with the Quorn hounds from Hungarton, the horse ridden by the Duke of Gloucester fell at a wide brook near Darsby, throwing its rider into the stream. The Duke, who is the third son of King George, was drenched, but escaped with a shaking.

The Prince of Wales had been planning to attend the hunt, but instead had remained in London.

TRAPPED, BANK BANDIT SLAIN

MEXICO, Mo., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—With one bandit dead, another in custody and the third trapped in a woods near here, authorities today believed they would make a perfect score in rounding up the men who late yesterday robbed the First National Bank of Mexico.

The bandits scooped up $21,500 in cash and Liberty bonds and fled in an automobile. A posse overtook them and a desperate gun battle followed. The posse found two bandits in the car, badly wounded. The third had escaped into the woods.

One of the wounded men died. About $10,000 in currency was recovered.

Sleuths Find Payroll Robbery Didn't Occur

There has been no recent payroll robbery in this district. Detectives thought there had been yesterday after a dozen pay envelopes were found in the back seat of an automobile abandoned in Diamond street. William Lickert, Thirty-third street, McKeesport, told detectives last night that the envelopes were his and that the machine had been stolen from him several days ago. The thieves had substituted another set of license plates.

Proves She's Not "Lindy's Girl;" Weds Another

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—"Lindy's Girl," as they used to call Lenora Longley in Maywood, Ill., is Mrs. Harold Knoos now.

The pretty brown-eyed daughter of the Albert Longleys, at whose home Col. Charles A. Lindbergh roomed when he was just plain "Slim" of the air mail, was married New Year's Day. Mr. and Mrs. Knoos were to fly today to Cleveland, O., where they will make their home. Mrs. Knoos is 18 years old.

UNGER AWAITS SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Joseph Unger, 55, drug peddler, described as a dominant figure in the international drug ring that Arnold Rothstein supposedly financed, today was to face Judge Winslow in Federal Court and take the consequences of his refusal to talk other than the brief, "I'm guilty."

He faced a maximum sentence of 12 years in Atlanta Penitentiary, where he has been a guest in the past.

Unger is the man seized near Buffalo, N. Y., early in December on the Twentieth Century Limited, after two trunks packed with narcotics worth $2,000,000 were corraled in Grand Central terminal.

Meanwhile, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen announced his rejuvenated detective force has made substantial progress toward solving Rothstein's shooting in the Park Central Hotel two months ago tonight.

COLLEGE GIRLS RESTAURANT HOSTESSES

The older generations can't always understand why young girls go to college to take up housekeeping and cooking—called household economics. But smart restaurateurs can.

For they know that college graduates with A.B.'s and other degrees know their calories, and—have "it."

At least, many of the sandwich shops and restaurants in Pittsburgh believe in them. The college girl average is eight out of 10 hostesses—the chic maids who welcome the guests to their seats. But these maids have also, besides "it," brought to the restaurant the trick of thinking up clever things to eat. And that's business.

Many of the hostesses have degrees, some are still working to get them in Pittsburgh institutions. One young hostess is a vocalist with grand opera ambitions, and another is a member of the most exclusive college intellectual organization, Phi Beta Kappa. Memberships in this are granted only to those who excel in their studies.

Campbell said more than $100,000,000 worth of American machinery would be purchased for the work. The object of the Russians, he continued, is to apply American methods.

BRITAIN TO ASK U. S. ABOUT JAILING SAILOR

By CHARLES A. SMITH,
International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to the United States, has been ordered to investigate charges made by Andrew Donaldson, 29 years old, British sailor, that he was kept for a year in a Texas jail without trial, it was learned today.

Donaldson's imprisonment was aired in the House of Commons recently when Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain said he would instruct Sir Esme to investigate. In an interview today Donaldson said:

"I was working on the steamship Plawsworth. This ship, with a crew of 36, put into Galveston, September 17, 1927. The port authorities issued 19 shore permits and passports for the crew. These were not transferable despite we were in port 16 days.

"I had no passport, but went ashore. I was stopped by a policeman, who, upon finding I had no passport, took me to a police station. I asked permission to write to the captain of the ship and the police promised to send a message.

"The following morning, with 14 other men, I was transferred to the Harris County Jail at Houston, without a hearing.

"I repeatedly wrote letters to the British consul at Galveston, but learned later he never received them. Eventually I smuggled a letter out by an American to the British officials in Washington. Five days later I was released. I worked my way back to England, but my health was broken."

TOWNSEND NETCHER; CONSTANCE TALMADGE

When the mother of the Talmadge sisters cried in despair "When any man gets a divorce the busybodies immediately link him with one of my daughters," she didn't know, perhaps, that Townsend Netcher, executive of Boston department store, Chicago, the man about whose "engagement" to Connie she was asked, would meet Constance when she arrived in New York yesterday from Nice. The meeting is pictured here.

GRAFT CLEANUP PROBE STARTS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO Jan. 4—(AP)—A new special grand jury to inquire into charges of padded payrolls, political and police corruption and the rackets they are accused of protecting, was ordered yesterday to be impaneled next Wednesday by Chief Justice John J. Sullivan, of the Criminal Court, on application of John A. Swanson, Cook county's new state's attorney.

The request for the special jury marked the opening of Mr. Swanson's campaign to redeem his election pledge to "clean up Chicago." The jury will be in charge of Frank A. Loesch, veteran Chicago lawyer, who also had charge of six other special grand juries last summer and fall, which investigated crimes and irregularities in connection with the primary last April.

The new body is expected to continue with the investigation started by the previous juries.

Padding of payrolls of the sanitary district and of other city and county departments, and use of the money to pay political debts, active connivance between police and politicians to protect gambling and vice are among matters the new grand jury may consider, the petition for it said.

The special grand jury, Mr. Swanson indicated a few days ago, also will have support from Federal officials, who, he said, have promised to take up violations of government laws, incurred by the county grand jury, but which it will be unable to act upon.

High barometric pressure covers much the greater portion of the country this morning; two large areas, one centered over Lake Erie, highest barometer, 30.62, at Detroit, and covers the entire eastern half of the country, the other over the far Northwest, highest barometer, 30.54, in Montana. The highs are separated by a narrow low pressure area in the form of a trough, which extends northward over Colorado and the Dakotas from a center over New Mexico. This disturbance is producing cloudy weather over most of the country west of the Mississippi, light rain in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Eastern Texas and Louisiana, and light snow over the Rocky Mountain states and the Northern Plains states.

The temperature changes were towards warmer over the Atlantic states and the Gulf states, including Kentucky and Tennessee and colder over the upper Mississippi Valley states and the Lake region.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary or falling slowly. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.7 feet. Dam No. 2, 8.5, and Dam No. 6, 8.7. The dams are up.

BAN ON COUNCIL SHIFTS MAY BE LIFTED

Representative Joseph C. Marcus, leader of the Allegheny County legislative delegation, will be asked to present a bill at Harrisburg repealing the charter provision that no councilman can take any other official position "during the term for which he was elected," according to reports today.

The immediate reason for seeking such legislation, these reports said, is the decision that no member of Council can be named to succeed the late Controller John H. Henderson. While the bill could not become a law until February at the earliest and would not affect the present situation, it will be designed to take care of future situations.

MALONE BARRED

One of these situations, according to opinions expressed today, would arise in the event Mayor Charles H. Kline should resign to take a position on the state bench. If the decision barring Councilmen from accepting another position during their terms of office holds in the courts, Councilman James F. Malone could not succeed to the mayoralty until following the regular mayoralty election.

The president of council, it was explained today, does not automatically become Mayor in the event the chair of the chief executive becomes vacant. Should Kline resign, Malone would be required by the charter to call a meeting of Council within 20 days to elect a successor who would serve until the next municipal election. The clause preventing a councilman from taking another office during his term would block the election of Malone or any other member.

The man elected by council should that eventuality occur this year, would serve until next January 1. Nothing in the law would bar Malone from seeking the office at the September primary and general election as his term expires December 31, 1929.

Tired of sitting at home

A beautiful bride of only last June, yet she found herself bored, bored to tears. Nearly every night Henry came home from the office sniffling and sneezing. Too irritable, too weary, too worried about himself to take her to a dance or to the theatre. What could she do for her heartache?

Fortunately, her mother knew the answer, an answer approved by millions of cold sufferers—GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. At the earliest warning symptom: headache, throat-tickle, or vague general pains; he now promptly takes these tonic and laxative cold and grip tablets. So he either side-steps the cold entirely or throws it off quickly.

So can you. But two things are important. First, don't delay. Second, make sure of getting the genuine by emphasizing GROVE'S when asking for GROVE'S BROMO QUININE. Price 30c.

DOCTOR HELD AS SONS' SLAYER

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Jan. 4—(INS)—Dr. Charles W. Twells, alleged slayer of his two sons, Kenneth, 11, and Colin, 9, was held on a murder charge here today.

Twells gave up the practice of medicine in India to come to Canada and operate a farm, it is said.

A peculiar angle was added to the case when Twells, whose farm is one of the most modern in point of equipment and whose home is lavishly furnished, was alleged to have shot and seriously wounded his brother-in-law and farming partner, Arthur Corfield, in a quarrel over a few hundred dollars.

What prompted the fatal wounding of the two lads, following the shooting of Corfield, has not been determined.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kinds.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather, the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

16TH ST. BRIDGE ALTERATIONS CONSIDERED

Council today is considering a letter from Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, asking for a decision on alterations to the Sixteenth Street Bridge that would be imperative if favorable action were taken on a pending ordinance authorizing the widening of Pike street from 40 to 60 feet.

Lang said that under plans approved by engineers of the city, county and Pennsylvania Railroad, the bridge could be adapted to the street widening proposal by removing supports from under the roadway and replacing one span over Pike street as widened. The cost would be $50,000.

Lang pointed out that the city's attitude on the proposal was necessary, as the county was ready to place the pavement on the bridge and the railroad company was awaiting information on the final disposition of the bridge supports in their relation to railroad tracks.

Cargo of German Christmas Toys Finally Here

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Bringing a cargo of German-made toys intended for Christmas sale, the Yankee Line steamship Westpool, which left Bremen for Boston more than six weeks ago, finally arrived in port here yesterday.

Her voyage was interrupted when she lost her propeller in a heavy storm off the English coast.

After drifting helplessly for 48 hours, she was towed to Southampton, there to await a new propeller shipped from New York. She started again and this time was delayed three days by heavy weather.

GIRL, 16, FREED BY KIDNAPER

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Kidnapers, death threats, drugs and a dirty shack formed the melodramatic sequence of the story told today by a pretty high school girl who was found bound and gagged after two days' absence from home.

Doris Turner, 16 years old, Hoke Smith High School athlete, collapsed last night in a gasoline filling station. She had been found nearby, bound at the ankles. Two hours later the girl said she had been released unharmed by a "kindly old man with a cane" for whom police had been searching for two days.

The old man wanted to kill her, she added, but other men persuaded him to return the girl to Atlanta, because "things were getting hot."

A physician said the girl had not been harmed, and was suffering only from exposure and weak condition caused by lack of food.

NEW HOSPITAL TO OPEN

The opening of the new main hospital building of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh will be held Tuesday afternoon with a reception to mark the occasion. The new structure completes the present group of five buildings at 2851 Bedford avenue.

The fifth floor of the new building is devoted entirely to light treatment. Another feature is the large auditorium to be used for lectures. There have been many installations of X-ray equipment and the hospital is now one of the most complete in the country.

SIX TOWN HALL SITES LEFT

Selection of the site for Pittsburgh's $6,000,000 Town Hall has been narrowed down to "five or six" from among more than 20 sites submitted, according to the report of Director of Public Works Norman F. Brown to County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. Data on cost, convenience, building design, access and other requirements has been completed on each of those set to be considered.

It is understood that among the six sites being given close consideration, three are in the downtown district, two in Oakland and one on the North side.

'Universal Law' Cited To Save Gun Carrier

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The universal law, whatever it may be, has been invoked as a reason why Joe Cainski, pal of Edward (Spike) McDonnell, has a right to carry a concealed weapon.

His lawyer argued before Judge Freeman Fairbanks that Cainski could carry a gun by "universal law," since many attempts had been made upon his life.

Decision was postponed until Monday.

President's Wife Attends Wedding

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. Coolidge attended the wedding yesterday of Miss Diana Cumming, daughter of Surgeon General and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, and Manville Kendrick, the son of Senator and Mrs. Kendrick, of Wyoming. The ceremony was performed at Bethlehem Chapel of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul.

Do these two things to avoid "flu"

Keep your system in good condition; also protect your nose and throat

There's no need to get panicky, because the papers are full of news of an influenza epidemic. There's no use in isolating yourself because a lot of other people are sick with it. If you take certain simple precautions every day—and then don't worry—the chances are you will throw off any "flu" germs you are exposed to, and keep well.

We're not recommending that you dose yourself with a lot of medicines, either. Just observe two common-sense health rules which can be easily followed.

FIRST of all, make sure your system is in first class order. Don't let it get slowed up or sluggish. See to it that it functions perfectly. The easiest way to get run down and in a condition to pick up disease is to neglect this all-important matter.

Physicians agree that, particularly in times of epidemic, purging by laxatives and cathartics is not advisable. Many doctors are therefore prescribing Nujol, as in no case does it cause exhaustion or weakening of the system in any way.

Nujol can't possibly upset you or disagree with you. For it contains absolutely no medicine or drugs.

Get a bottle today at your nearest drug store and start taking Nujol tonight as one simple way to keep fit and to protect yourself against influenza.

That's the first precaution. Now for the second. Keep your nose and throat well protected with Mistol.

Dr. David says:

"You can't help breathing air that's laden with 'flu' germs and other bacteria these days. But you can protect your nose and throat against them. Keep them from lodging there and breeding and causing trouble.

"I'm advising all my patients these days to keep Mistol on hand and use it regularly. The first thing in the morning before you go out. And again at night when you come home. Don't be afraid to use it freely. It will do no harm. And then stop worrying. You've done all you can to safeguard yourself.

"Put Mistol up your nose. There's a special dropper that comes in every package that makes it very easy to use. Just tilt your head back and drop it in your nose until you feel it in your throat. You'll notice the pleasant, cleansing effect at once. Mistol clears your head and makes breathing easy. It has a healing, soothing effect on the membranes and relieves any irritation or inflammation. It helps dry up a running nose. Use it, too, as a gargle. Mistol is good for a sore throat or hacking cough. And above all, protects the nose and throat against germs.

"Don't wait till you begin to sneeze or your throat aches. Take my advice and get a bottle of Mistol today. Every druggist knows it."

The combination treatment of Nujol and Mistol is a double safeguard against influenza. Start this wise two-fold precaution now. Don't delay. Nujol and Mistol are both made by the same famous laboratories, of the finest quality materials and with the greatest skill possible. Both preparations are harmless. At all druggists. Aren't they worth trying?

DENVER TO DRAIN WATER ACROSS ROCKIES' RANGE

DENVER, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Down through the ages man has altered physical geography to meet his needs. Now, diversion of water from one great drainage system to the other side of a great rocky mountain range is in view.

The Denver water board voted yesterday to lease the Pioneer bore of the famous $18,000,000 Moffat tunnel as the first step in a move to bring 100,000 acre feet of water a year through the Continental Divide from the western slope of the Colorado Rockies, to serve the city of Denver.

While the huge project is designed primarily to assure Denver an adequate water supply when the city shall need a greater supply than at present, it is the announced intention of the water board to lease the supply from year to year to ranchers on the eastern slope. Unofficial estimates have placed the total cost of the project as high as $50,000,000, including reservoirs for storage of the water diverted.

The water board was built to facilitate construction of the Moffat Railroad tunnel, which eventually will reduce the travel distance from Denver to Salt Lake City by 175 miles. The two are 75 feet apart.

LOWER AIR MAIL RATE LEAVES BIG DEFICIT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Decrease of air mail postage rates from ten cents to five cents an ounce has doubled the poundage carried, but cut returns to the government in half, and postal officials see little hope of ever operating this business without a loss.

This was the recent testimony, made public today, of W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, before a House subcommittee in urging a deficiency appropriation of $3,000,000 to take care of air mail transportation this fiscal year.

Glover said under the old rate, 24,000 pounds of mail were carried by planes last July and that the figure jumped to 415,000 pounds the following month when the present rate took effect. He placed the loss to the government at from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 a year and said that, while the receipts under the new rate equaled those under the former, the expense went higher as more mail was carried.

Chairman Anthony, of the subcommittee, said he understood many of the air mail routes had become profitable and asked why the government should continue the business at a loss.

Glover replied that permission had been granted the Postmaster General by Congress to reduce the rates paid air mail contractors after they had been in effect two years, and that since this period expired on January 1, many operators now making money would be called in for conferences on possible reductions.

Simultaneously Frank G. Allen, who has served as lieutenant governor under Fuller for four years, was inaugurated as governor.

As Mr. Fuller greeted his wife and four children at the foot of the State House steps after Allen's installation, Gardner Jackson, who was a leader in the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee, stepped from the crowd in front of the State House and handed Mr. Fuller a copy of "The Letters of Sacco and Vanzetti."

Mr. Fuller looked at Jackson, glanced at the book, then dropped it. It lay on the sidewalk as he turned and kissed the members of his family; then walked with them to Beacon street home.

ALIEN-RUNNING PROBE ON

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Federal investigation of the law offices of an alien-running ring, it was said to operate in several of the large cities of the country, was decided here yesterday following the arrival of Attorney General William J. Delaney, of Washington.

He has been assigned by the Bureau of Immigration to take charge of the situation here, said to have been brought to light as a result of a kidnaping case and other extortionate tactics. Government officials have asserted that aliens have been smuggled into the country for these profits at the rate of 100,000 annually.

A Jewish arrived immigrant arrested here in a liquor raid revealed to Assistant United States District Attorney E. A. Tamm how the ring operates in Chicago, Seattle, Detroit, New York and Philadelphia, charging $50 to $1,500 per head, he said, to smuggle aliens across the borders of Mexico and Canada.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE RAINBOW TRAP

By FELICIAN WAYNE.

FOR people who didn't know where their next meal was to come from they were pretty happy. But then, perhaps that is because they had only been married a year and were still ridiculously crazy about each other. Why she should have fallen in love with Bill Barton, Elsie never knew. He wasn't good-looking, really, except when he took off his large tortoise-shell glasses. And that was rarely, because he was always reading or studying.

"I never dreamed I would fall in love with a bookworm," she used to say to him those first days after they were married. "Somehow I expected to marry someone romantic, dashing—"

"Like a bond salesman, perhaps," Gil had finished. "Or a bootlegger. Or don't beautiful chorus girls marry bootleggers?"

"I'm not a chorus girl—at heart." Elsie would moan. "I'm a talented actress who's never been given the right opportunity."

And then because he knew that it was her sore point and that he had been cruel to call her a chorus girl, he would take her in his arms and say, "You're the loveliest thing this side of the footlights to me, darling." And she would hold him very close and forget that in a few minutes she would be taking her place as second from the left in the Frivolities chorus.

They didn't have much time together, Gil and Elsie. He worked in an office making charts and maps and compiling statistics which Elsie didn't understand—and hated. At 6 o'clock he would rush home for dinner and the two would chat over the simple home-cooked meal until it was time for Elsie to go to the theater. Sometimes she didn't return until midnight, and then, since he had to be up at 7, Gil would be ready for bed.

It was a hard struggle, but somehow they managed to have a lot of fun. Each of them was ambitious, each planned a glorious dream-filled career which sometimes looked inaccessible enough, heaven knows, but which seemed right around the corner on sunshiny days. In this dream world of theirs Gil's was to study architecture in Paris and some day lay the plans for the structure he was working on now. Elsie was, by this time, of course, the foremost dramatic actress of the day. Sometimes they struck a snag, such as the time they realized that Gil would be working in Paris while Elsie was touring the United States. Each would be preoccupied in solving the difficulty when suddenly reality would come to their aid. "Let's worry about time and space when they are our only problem," Gil would say a little sadly. And another dream would roll off the shelf.

But one day at a special rehearsal, Elsie caught Sam Dalstein, the producer of the show, watching her. She put every ounce of talent she possessed into the routine she had been practicing. "If I can't prove my merits as a dramatic actress this way," she thought, "I can at least show him I'm a good chorine." At that moment she noticed Dalstein talking to one of his directors behind a screen. She didn't hear a word of what he said, but somehow she sensed he was discussing her.

Nothing came of that, however, until three weeks later. She had come to the theater late and while applying her make-up a call boy came to the dressing room with a note for her. It was signed by Sam Dalstein and requested that she come to his office after the show that night. Her first thought was that she was fired for coming late, but she discarded this idea quickly. He wouldn't send for me then, she said to herself. A busy impresario doesn't discharge insignificant chorus girls that way. It must be something else.

It proved to be "something else." The producer received her in his scantily furnished office that yet had an air of prestige, importance. He chatted with her for a few minutes about anything, everything. Then he asked her quite casually to have a bit of supper with him. Elsie was dumbfounded. But she was also shrewd. "Mine not to question why," she thought, "not if I want to succeed."

So she telephoned Gil and explained that she would be home later. At 2 o'clock she turned the key in the door of their apartment and found Gil still awake. "Guess who took me to supper," she challenged. He couldn't guess, so she told him. "Sam Dalstein!" he exclaimed, then was silent. At the time she paid no attention to this, but later it came back to her. All she remembered was Gil's kidding advice, "You know these Broadway producers, Elsie, they don't care much about talent—it's beauty they're after."

It hurt her vanity to think Gil had no faith in her talent, and somehow this created a strain between them. The first in a year. So that when Dalstein invited her out again she didn't tell Gil. And besides, another thing was troubling her. Dalstein had made it plain that he was interested in her—he had used the word "interested," but Elsie knew well enough what it implied. He had also made it plain that if she found this "interest" pleasing she might have whatever she desired—fame, money, position.

Elsie realized that she would never get the opportunity to make good again. She realized, also, that once she was started on the road to fame Gil could study in Paris—she would have enough money for that. Oh! the lovely things they could do together if Dalstein starred her. It made her dizzy to think of them. But then she thought of her love for Gil—that she was strong bond between them, and she banished the idea of ever becoming a star.

Yet she didn't tell Gil any more about Dalstein—she hated to have him think ugly things about her, she hated the thought of his contempt.

But one day she realized that she would have to come to some reckoning with herself. Dalstein had been more insistent than ever before. When she left him that night he had given her the ultimatum. "Your are to come to my apartment tomorrow at midnight. It's yes or no, then—I'm tired of playing the fool." He said it like an actor in a badly directed melodrama—she could hardly believe the words, and she laughed at the idea.

But Gil was very bitter that night—he had lost his wallet containing a month's salary—and the whole world looked black. His mood communicated itself to Elsie and despair tugged at her heart. At midnight the following day she found herself outside Sam Dalstein's apartment prepared to pay for the rainbow of happiness she was chasing. She bit her lips. Could she go through with it? Was it worth her goal? A maid answered the door, then asked her to wait. Presently she heard Dalstein's voice. "I'll be with you in just a moment, darling."

"Darling"! How she hated the endearment on his lips! Gil called her that—only Gil could. Oh! the ugliness of it all! The horror, the soddidness of such a transaction. Her heart beat violently and she felt herself falling as Dalstein came toward her. Suddenly she wrenched herself free. "I can't!" she cried, "I won't, I love Gil too much. Let me go, let me go, I can't!"

Was she seeing things. For from the next room she heard Gil's voice. Then he took her in his arms and corrected her as Dalstein left them. "Yes, you can, darling," he said, as he kissed her. "You've passed the test."

She was too bewildered then to say anything, but when they were home once more he said, by way of explanation: "You see, Elsie, I once got Dalstein out of a scrape, and he promised to return the favor. I wanted to test your love, so I—" She never let him finish.

FOUR HELD ON RUM CHARGE

An echo of the raid by prohibition agents on Fourth avenue, December 18, was heard in the United States commissioner's office today when Michael J. Rittenmeyer, advised proprietor, George Rittenmeyer, his brother, said to have been a waiter in the place, William Webb, Negro porter, and Joseph Burns, alleged bartender, were held for court in $1,000 bail each. The two Rittenmeyers and Webb were charged with the sale and possession of liquor.

In the days before prohibition the Fourth avenue address was known as Burke's saloon, one of the most widely known drink emporiums of the day in Pittsburgh. Then it was the meeting place of attorneys and prominent business men.

Kohler with violating the corrupt practices act by spending more money during the primary campaign than permitted by law.

Wrong Man Buried At Her Own Risk, Woman Told

CHICAGO, Jan. 4—(AP)—Just as a warning to others, the County Board ruled yesterday that persons who buried the wrong man did so at their own risk. It also gave out the dictum that $50 was too ambitious an outlay for a pauper's funeral.

Mrs. Alice Nalopa, who provided $500 worth of pomp and circumstance to bury her husband's body and then found him alive in the County Psychopathic Hospital, is the aggrieved petitioner. She asked the commissioners to reimburse her for the burial of the unidentified dead, but she was told that $10 was the limit in any case and, in her case, the error was hers.

GREAT FAITH IN THE NEW KONJOLA MEDICINE SHOWN

THE KONJOLA MAN

HERE TODAY

From every section of Pittsburgh, including many nearby towns, there came a vast number of people to find out about this new Konjola medical compound. It is appalling to note the great majority of modern people who are suffering from different forms of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders. Several prominent, well-known Pittsburgh residents were among the first to purchase this medicine.

The Konjola Man has arranged to interview everyone personally and has taken up headquarters at the McCulloch Drug Store, Penn Ave. and 6th St., where crowds are calling to purchase the medicine or ask for free samples and literature.

THE KONJOLA MAN.

"Konjola takes a different form of action on the human system than any previously known medicine," said the Konjola Man. "It is a liquid, taken immediately after meals, which works with the sufferer's own food. It contains the medicinal ingredients of twenty-two Natural plants. These have the best possible effect upon the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels so that your food works with Nature, restoring more healthy, normal action to those important organs. After all, it is Nature that really does the work, and Konjola brings the help that Nature requires. This is the safest, surest and best way to conquer the ailments so many people are suffering, for example:

"Sharp pains over the kidneys, a dull, achy feeling across the back, swollen limbs, frequent night rising, dizziness, spots before the eyes, liver trouble, including biliousness, sick headache, indigestion and constipation, stomach trouble, with the familiar symptoms of indigestion, wild heart palpitation, feeling like fire from the throat to the pit of the stomach, intense pains and a heavy feeling like a rock in the stomach, sour, acidy belchings in the throat, sharp cramps, etc.

"Many other forms of misery come from disordered stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism and neuritis are common. The pains are intense, muscles swollen, joints stiff and rigid. Neuritis and rheumatism are very similar, and often one disease is mistaken for the other. In either event, both ailments cause suffering, often leading to fatality. Liniments, rubbing treatments and many chemical medicines ordinarily bring just temporary relief. Such ailments must be permanently ended from the system within."

The Konjola Man comes to Pittsburgh direct from unusual successes in other large cities. In Cincinnati, over a thousand public statements of endorsement were issued in praise of this Konjola, many from public officials, doctors, nurses, ministers and people in all walks of life. 100,000 bottles were sold in twenty weeks at Detroit and Toledo.

where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

This map shows the new $45,000,000 inter-city cable system which will provide additional storm-defying facilities to take care of the rapid growth in out-of-town telephone service. It is part of the $192,000,000 program. Another $30,000,000 will be spent for cable within the cities and towns of the state, to provide additional facilities to meet the demands of a steadily growing local service.

for an even greater telephone service

STARTING AT ONCE, this company is embarking on a program of telephone construction such as Pennsylvania has never before seen.

In five years a total of 192 millions of dollars (including 30 millions by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company) will be spent for new construction—to continue and even increase the speed, dependability and general high quality of present-day service—to provide an even greater telephone service for this state.

More than 130 millions of this tremendous expenditure will go for enlarging the local facilities—new switching apparatus, new wire (mostly in storm-defying cables), new central office equipment, and new buildings to care for the constantly increasing demands for telephone service.

The sum of 45 millions of dollars will be spent for toll cable construction alone—to give an even better and faster out-of-town service. Toll cables successfully withstand the onslaught of sleet, wind and storm. They provide a practically storm-proof, trouble-free inter-city service.

Two entirely new cable lines will cross the state from east to west. A network of feeder cables will connect with cities and towns which are not on the main arteries. Close to two million miles of toll wire to be placed in a state which is about 300 miles long!

A TOLL CABLE consists of tiny wires each insulated from the other—and all enclosed in a heavy lead-covered cable. Cable lines are on short, sturdy poles. Such communication lines are practically immune to storm damage.

We are building for the present—and for the future. Out-of-town telephone traffic is growing by leaps and bounds. To continue its present high quality and to give it even greater speed is one of the objectives of this construction program.

In five years every sizable city and town in the state will be provided with rugged, lead-covered highways of speech for both local and out-of-town calls.

It is a fundamental policy of the Bell System "to see to it that the service shall at all times be adequate, dependable and satisfactory to the user." This 192 million dollar program is directly in line with that policy.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR: NEW "HOUR" OFFERS VARIED BILLS

RADIO FANS TO "VISIT" FAR PLACES OF EARTH

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

RADIO'S magic carpet will take the listener to many strange places tonight. The jungles of Africa, a French seaside resort, even the Sahara, will be visited.

Fans who heard the Stromberg-Carlson sextet on Tuesday night wondered what "hour" would take its place tonight at 10 over KDKA. The secret is out. The first of a series of varied programs will be presented by the Hudson-Essex "Challengers."

Some excellent features will be broadcast by Pittsburgh stations tonight. They include the opera, "Pagliacci," over WJAS at 10 p. m.; a Wild Animal Hunt on the Dixie Circus over KDKA at 7:30 o'clock; Carson Robinson in a whistling solo during the Wrigley Review; selections from "The Desert Song" on the Philco hour; dance music representative of several nations by the Cavaliers over WCAE at 8 p. m.; a radio tour of Cannes as the "Evening in Paris" feature; the tale of estranged lovers who become united again, related by the Crystal Gazer.

Details of programs are contained in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph daily radio guide.

TOUR OF CANNES.

A radio tour of Cannes, one of the world's smartest resorts and the first stop on a tour of the French Riviera, is offered in tonight's broadcast. Marion, Peaches, Bill and Jacques give the radio audience a first-hand impression of the popular resort of the elite of England, between musical numbers, at the Restaurant des Ambassadeurs at the Cannes Casino.

The concert itself has a pronounced English flavor, although of cosmopolitan type. Possibly the high spot in the program will be the singing of "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," by Oliver Smith, who takes the speaking part of Jacques in the "Evening in Paris" entertainment. "Les Pellichenelles," a popular chansonette of Paris, will be sung by Estelle Trebert, the mezzo-soprano of the group, and the Strauss waltz, "Voices of Spring," in Italian, by the colorature-soprano, Irma de Baun.

Minority Democrat County Board Head

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 4.—County commissioners elected W. A. Barnes, of Avella, a Democrat, who is serving his second term, as president of the board. He is the minority member and is the first Democrat to hold the presidency in many years.

In announcing no salary increases, the commissioners expressed a determination to hold the tax millage for the coming year to 9 mills if possible and at the same time have enough funds to meet a large road building program.

Wage Increase Denied

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 4. — Eighteen local officers were denied an increase of $15 a month by City Council.

PERHAPS YOU CAN'T AVOID CROWDS BUT YOU CAN HELP AVOID INFLUENZA

To keep free from influenza the Surgeon General warns against mingling with crowds, especially against coming in direct contact with persons who are coughing or sneezing. Walk to work if possible—the exercise will do you good. Do not use unsterilized towels or napkins. Keep your hands away from the mouth and face. Wash them regularly before each meal. Use plenty of fresh water inside and out.

The frequent and continued use of Vapex has become the standby of many whose common sense tells them to take all proper precautionary measures. Vapex will keep you free from colds and will stop a cold at the start. It is used widely by those who must ride in the subways, the busses, etc. Put a drop on your handkerchief—breathe the vapor. The odor is pleasant. Use it frequently, especially while in crowded places. This ounce of prevention may save you many days of serious illness. Get Vapex from your druggist in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle.

NOISE AND SILENCE CONTINUE BATTLE FOR SCREEN SUPREMACY

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.

AS THE New Year, baby star of 1929, bounds into being, the various factors of the motion picture industry are planning expenditures reaching over one hundred and fifty millions of dollars to provide the populace with movies entertainment. These dollars are to be put into the actual production of pictures. Many more will be invested in the erection of sound stages, the purchase of equipment, the improvement of properties.

The greater portion of this great sum will be poured into talking pictures. But the talkie hysteria, which followed Warner Brothers sensational success with Al Jolson's Vitaphone film, "The Jazz Singer," has waned. None of the producers knows whether or not talkies have come to stay. But while they are popular at the box office, every concern must plunge into the maelstrom of sound or be put out of business by the competition.

It has been discovered that there is, and always will be, a demand for good silent pictures. And plenty of them will be made. Even the talkies will be produced with silent versions. The raiding of the stage for players with voices has lost its wholesale aspect. The star-makers have found that movie players have just as good voices, and that they can more than hold their own with "names" from the theater. Another hopeful sign is that it certainly appears as though fewer poor pictures will be made this year than ever before. Quality, rather than quantity, seems the slogan. All in all, it looks as though the industry has grown up sufficiently to forget its long drawn-out infancy and emerge from the chaos of the nursery as an adult commercial art.

St. Clair Chosen Lloyd's Director

MAL ST. CLAIR, the lanky director who recently quit Paramount, has taken himself for a ride to New York in one of Mrs. Santa Fe's buggies. As soon as he gets there, he'll turn around and run right home again. For Harold Lloyd has signed him up to fill the directorial breach occasioned by the illness of Ted Wilde. Mal will pick up the megaphone and continue where Ted left off in the filming of "T. N. T.," which is the working title of Lloyd's picture. Incidentally, although the film has been in work for some time, no leading lady has actually affixed her name to a contract.

"John Elliott and wife" have sailed for Panama. "Mr. Elliott" is really John Barrymore, and, of course, the "and wife" part is Dolores Costello. Just why John hid behind the trick monicker remains a mystery. He and Dolores will meet the yacht "Mariner" at Panama and from there cruise along the South American coast on a leisurely honeymoon.

Lots of people remember Rudolph Valentino. Among others Uncle Sam and the collector of internal revenue. The collector has filed a lien for estate taxes against Rudy's executors asking them to hand over $6,847.

Dolores Del Rio In "Evangeline"

JOHN HOLLAND, who has changed his name from Clifford, has been chosen by Director Eddie Carewe for the second male lead in Dolores Del Rio's "Evangeline" picturization. In addition to John, five other names have been added to the cast. These include Lawrence Grant, equally well known on stage or screen, and Paul McAllister, who plays the first part of the title in "Noah's Ark." John Holland, by the way, is a "discovery" of Director Henry King, to whom, I believe, he is under personal contract. Finis Fox has written the screen adaptation of Longfellow's poem.

New Year's day found Emil Jannings bound for Lake Tahoe in the high Sierras. The entire company engaged in the German star's present picture is on location there, where snow sequences are being filmed. The story has an Alpine setting, and with real snow so easily available it was decided to photograph the genuine article rather than the salt prop snow sometimes used. It is understood that the famous big toboggan slide at Lake Tahoe will be widely used in the film. Immense electric generators to provide lights with which the snow will be illuminated in some spectacular night shots, have been transported to the mountains.

Conrad Veidt, one of the most talented of the foreign actors, has declared to friends that he plans to return to Germany within the next few weeks. And that he is not decided as to whether or not he will return to Hollywood or pursue his picture career in the great studios of Germany. It is probable that he will make at least one picture abroad in any event.

Lily Damita, Samuel Goldwyn's Parisian screen discovery, in an ermine cloak she brought from the old home town.

The same little lady displays French lingerie, also the latest from Paris, whence she came to appear in American films.

Griffith, King May Wage Fight

A RUMOR which seems dependable states that D. W. Griffith has been selected to do "The Darling of the Gods." If this is so, the "maestro" will have to shoot his picture over the prostrate form of Director Henry King. It has been King's life-long ambition to make the Belasco play into a photodrama. Moreover Joseph M. Schenck promised King the honor of wielding the megaphone. However, "D. W." is scheduled to make another in between times, and before that one is completed many things may happen.

The next vogue for screen stories bids fair to be for those about radios and radio announcers and radio what-have-yous. Richard Barthelmess uses radio in his new picture, and Alice White's latest to be scheduled is called "On the Air." Incidentally, there is a rumor that the contracts of Alice, Dorothy Mackaill and several others are not to be renewed by First National.

Weisenfreund Is Paul Muni

WILLIAM K. HOWARD, erstwhile pool champion of St. Mary's, O., and now one of Hollywood's best fillum directors, will follow his recently finished Janet Gaynor picture with another titled "The Valiant." It is the first film effort of Paul Muni, who used to be Muni Weisenfreund. Marguerita Churchill, one of the latest raves on the Fox lot, has been selected as Muni's leading woman. The Fox folk have a lot of confidence in Bill Howard, as may be seen from the fact that they entrust their new star to him for a first picture. Bill, by the way, has just moved into his grand new house. He and "Nan," who is Mrs. Howard, hold open house with a lavish hospitality.

Paramount has succeeded where others have failed. Aimee Semple MacPherson has signed up to do a talking picture, for which she is to receive $50,000. The story is practically completed and a shooting date will be announced in the near future.

ALL THE WAY -:- FROM PARIS -:- TO HOLLYWOOD

Just a girl and a shawl, in which Miss, pardon, Mlle. Damita shows what can be done with a Spanish drape, if you have one.

Exercise, of course, requires that the costume be right else it might not be effective. Hence this athletic uniform.

The Damita fille certainly strikes an appropriate pose in the water test, which she seems to feel will be too cold.

Patriotic is this red, white and blue swimming suit that Lily wears in her first picture here.

MUSIC PLAY NEAR END OF RUN

There are but three more performances of the operetta, "Music in May," in the Alvin, tonight and matinee and night tomorrow. The Alvin is being filled at every performance of "Music in May," and, judging from its approval by the audiences, it is one of the most delightful musical plays of the season.

Immediately preceding a New York engagement, "Gypsy," a new play of New York life, by Maxwell Anderson, author of "Saturday's Children," will be seen in the Nixon for one week, opening Monday, January 7, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. Claiborne Foster, Mary Young, Louis Calhern, Lester Vail, Ruth Findlay, Wallace Ford, Charles Ritchie, Jefferson Hall and others are in the cast.

Thurston, the magician, coming to the Pitt next week, is conceded to be the most expert card magician in the world. His rising cards mystified the great Herrman years ago. Thurston has been baffling audiences with this trick for 25 years. Seats are now on sale for next week.

The Music Art Revue, with Billy Dunn and Violet West, dancers, described as a musical melange, with a cast of eight, will be a prominent act on the two-a-day Keith-Albee-Orpheum vaudeville program in the Davis next week.

Laymen's Retreat Leagues Convene

A party of Pittsburghers left last night for Cincinnati to attend the national convention of St. Paul of the Cross Laymen's Retreat Leagues, which opens today in that city and continues until Sunday night. The local party left over the Pennsylvania Railroad in a special car.

Peggy Joyce Check Suspect Captured

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A former hotel cashier is under arrest in Denver, Col., charged with forging two checks in New York, one for $200 on the account of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the Guaranty Trust Company, on which the checks were drawn, has been informed.

"NANCY DEANE" by ROY L. FOLEY

A RECENT prize article on journalism had the author declare that the cynicism of newspapermen in reality was nothing but a cloak to disguise a great sentimentality. Authors of "The Front Page," a newspaper play, probably dissent from this.

Anyway, a group of newspapermen next Wednesday night will meet at a small and decidedly informal dinner to honor a former city editor of the town, and a veteran of veterans, Charley Lancaster. Many a cub, many a veteran worked for Charley Lancaster and found in him many virtues, even after certain moments when he was almost completely sure that the world in general, and his own particular staff, had gone to the bow-wows.

It was a newspaper family—the Lancasters. Larry Lancaster, a son, was an able sporting editor during his service, while another son, George, who was called "Red" probably because his hair was not black, was a reporter who quaintly combined covering the old liquor license courts with work on the side from time to time for the Salvation Army, potent foe of rum. All three are out of the trade now.

Quite a few, of course, remember the days when License Court was held in this and many other Pennsylvania counties. It was an interesting time for all concerned. Even then, there was opposition to the licensed saloon, but under the Brooks law licenses were granted by the court to the worthy and sometimes to the unworthy. Ladies wearing chaste, black dresses, and decorated with the white ribbon of temperance, and gentlemen in black with white neckties, filed remonstrances against this place and that, while the petitioners for licenses called to their aid an army of witnesses who testified to the fine character of the prospective proprietors.

CURIOUSLY and fantastically, there are a few places in town which still obey all provisions of the old Brooks law, yet violate consistently the Snyder act (a state measure) and the Volstead act.

For instance, there are still places selling contraband that will not stay open after 11:45 o'clock at night, will not sell to minors, and will not open on Sundays—all strict provisions of the Brooks law.

A Pittsburgh autograph collector, Roy Jansen, received a fine Christmas gift from John O'Connor, Jr., business manager of the Carnegie Institute, who had obtained for Mr. Jansen the autographs of the jury of award in the last international art exhibit. The most peculiar autograph of this collection is that of Rockwell Kent, whose name you see from time to time on magazine covers. Mr. Kent writes his name in characters hardly discernible, they are so small.

PITTSBURGH, like many other cities, has many collectors of various kinds. Street car transfer collectors and street car token seekers are far outnumbered by autograph and stamp collectors.

Of the various hobbies, autograph collecting pays the largest dividends. If lucky, a collector may run across a signature that may mean a fortune to him. The most sought for signature is that of Button Gwinnett, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. He wrote few letters, signed few papers, hence his signature is scarce and valuable. Authentic history shows that as high as $28,500 was paid for his signature at a public auction, and over the ownership of one of his signatures a long legal battle once was fought.

Of some interest to non-collectors would be the story of how the Gwinnett baby in the days when the colonists were still under the yoke of George the Third, happened to be given the name of Button. As one who lives in a glass house, however, I'll not cast the first stone.

'LEAP YEAR' FAILS, WEDDINGS FEWER

ISSUING A MARRIAGE LICENSE HERE

"Leap year" was a flop in Pittsburgh, according to records in the county marriage license bureau, which disclosed that 1928 was the lowest 12-month period on record since 1912, with the exception of 1918, the last year of the war. Only 9,974 couples were married during 1928, as against 10,752 for 1927. Charles A. Hendrickson, marriage license clerk, is shown issuing a license to a future Mr. and Mrs.

75 AUTOISTS NABBED BY STATE

Almost 75 automobile drivers have been arrested for using 1928 plates since the first of the year in the Sharpsburg, Wilkinsburg, Braddock, Homestead and East Pittsburgh districts, Corp. J. A. Blair of the State Highway Patrol, stationed here, said today.

All sections of the county were represented by those arrested.

Those who could give a reasonable explanation for using the old plates were released on their own recognizance, but a large number were requested to post small forfeits for a hearing before a justice of the peace in the borough in which they were arrested.

In several cases, it was said, police released the driver, but held his car until he was able to produce his new plates. The members of the patrol have been stationed here since May 1, with headquarters at 811 N. Lang avenue. They have been assigned to Allegheny county highways.

10 NEW HOMES IN BEN AVON

Ben Avon's building total in 1928 was $250,000, somewhat in excess of last year, according to a summary of Harry Wible, building inspector.

Twenty-nine permits were issued, distributed as follows: Ten dwellings, estimated to cost $150,000; three storerooms, $30,000; 16 garages, $70,000.

"All of the homes built in our boroughs are substantial structures and creditable to a high class residential district," said Mr. Wible. "Next year, with the new Ohio River boulevard and new industrial plant on Neville Island we anticipate a boom. We believe at least 50 homes will be built on a plot adjoining the borough on the north which soon will be opened. Ninety-five lots have been laid out, all with a frontage of 80 feet."

Annexation of the newly developed territory to Ben Avon may result, Mr. Wible indicated.

Nancy Learns About Her Real Mother Being a Circus Star

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark-eyed, has been brought up by the O'Days in the town of Washington, Pa.; she is really the daughter of Montague Deane and Julie Abbott, the former the disinherited son of one of the richest families in Pittsburgh, but she is unaware of this relationship. She loves the O'Days and works in the station lunch room to help them pay their rent. There she meets John Blair, an upstanding young man who helps her out of a difficulty and invites her to go to the circus. Although she is wary of men generally she recognizes that Blair is a gentleman and accepts.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WHATEVER are you talking about?" she asked, looking at her with love in her eyes.

Just then Darry O'Day walked in through the back door. "Holy St. Michael and what's going on here," he said. He threw his shapeless old hat in the direction of the front hall and started knocking ashes from a clay pipe into his palm.

"Pick up that hat!—Stop slithering those ashes!—Listen to this," and Muddy O'Day pulled from her dress a pink envelope, on which in an exaggerated hand, was written:

"Mr. and Mrs. David O'Day, Washington, Pa." And in the upper left-hand corner: "Julie Abbott, aerialist, Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey's Circus."

In a trembling voice Muddy O'Day read aloud:

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. O'Day:

"You will think this is a voice from the dead, but I am very much alive, and hope that everything is as well with you as it is with me.

"How is my baby? I am almost afraid to write for fear she may be dead, or that you let her go years ago and that I would never see her again.

"What must you think of my silence all these years? Well, things haven't always gone so well with me. You know it has taken me a long time to get where I am, with the 'biggest show on earth.'"

"Muddy, dear," cried Nancy, "what does this mean? Who wrote this letter? Why does it affect you like this? Tell me, you must tell me! Please."

Mrs. O'Day, sinking to the sofa, handed the second page over to Nancy. "Read it, you'll see," she said, and buried her face in her hands.

Nancy took the pink sheet and continued:

"But here I am, and now my name is going to be printed on the posters along with the big numbers. It's been a tough fight. I have wandered all over the earth since that day I left you, and I've thought of you often, though I never wrote much. And I'm so anxious to know how my baby turned out.

"Did you ever let her know who her mother and father were? Does she go by the name of Deane? THE Deanes?

"But this is all just imagination. There may be no baby of mine in the world now. Life is funny.

"The show will play Washington on the sixteenth. I'll get in early and will stay at the hotel. And I'll come right over to see you as soon as I land in town.

"Lovingly,
"Julie Abbott."

"P. S.—If my baby lived she must be 18 now."

Nancy finished the letter. The pages dropped from her hands.

"Muddy, Muddy, dear, is the letter true? Is this Julie Abbott really my mother?

"What does she mean by THE Deanes? Tell me, you've got to tell me!"

She kept running her fingers through her honey-colored hair. She fell on her knees beside Mrs. O'Day and wept into the old green

BRIDGE ASKED IN 7TH WARD

Two proposed minor improvements in the Seventh Ward would provide a new thoroughfare and considerably relieve traffic congestion, according to a letter forwarded to Council by Fred Palenik, 3304 Iowa street.

Palenik suggested the construction of a bridge over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks from Center avenue to Maryland avenue and the opening of Marchand street to Beechwood boulevard.

Palenik said the improvements would raise property values "many times" in what he termed "the most neglected ward in the city." The letter will come up for consideration in committee next week.

BIG FUND ASKED BY SOUTH SIDE HOSPITAL

South Side Hospital trustees are planning a public campaign for $1,500,000 for the erection of a new wing of the hospital building, affording 150 new beds and a full capacity for caring for 375 sick and injured persons.

Plans call for the addition to be erected on the same block as the present structure and connected with the Oliver Memorial Building of the hospital group. It will consist of eight stories and basement as compared to five stories in the present structure. It will face about 150 feet from Jane street (east of Twentieth).

The main entrance to the hospital may be changed from Twentieth street to Jane street in the new addition. Plans for the building will be announced within a few weeks, according to J. E. Roth, president of the hospital.

Realizing the inability of the hospital to meet demands with present facilities, and with no other means of obtaining funds, the public campaign was decided upon, Mr. Roth said. Campaign offices will be opened immediately for 10 weeks' preparatory work preceding the public appeal.

3 North Side Places Raided by Dry Agents

Veronica Kleinschmidt, 37, of 2952 Veronica street, was released on her own recognizance after a 20-gallon still was found in her home, according to the agents.

CUPID LOAFS HERE DURING LEAP YEAR

Leap year evidently meant little to Pittsburghers, or Dan Cupid "laid down on the job," according to figures made public today by the county marriage license bureau.

A total of 778 fewer licenses were taken out during 1928 than in 1927, making last year the lowest since 1912 with the exception of 1918, the last year of the World War.

Last year's figures reveal that only 9,974 couples sought connubial bliss as against 10,752 for 1927. Of last year's marriages, 505 women registered as divorcees as against 425 men. In 1927, 524 women and 426 men were divorced. There were 800 widows and 860 widowers to sign up for a second voyage on the "sea of matrimony" last year, while in 1927 884 widowers and 835 widows were recorded.

There was a decided falling off in the number of young girls married last year. Only 23 girls under 16 were granted licenses during 1928 against 44 for 1927. The records show that most persons are married between 21 and 29, a total of 6,578 men and 6,035 women of this age having been granted licenses last year. In 1927 there were 7,048 men and 6,536 women.

A license was issued to one person between 80 and 89 years of age. It was a woman.

Rock Bed Delays Church Excavation

Work on the excavation for St. Mark's Lutheran School at Glenarm avenue and Brookline boulevard, begun some weeks ago, has been considerably delayed by encountering a hard bed of rock. It had been hoped to rush the excavation and foundation work so that actual construction work might be begun. However, the encountering of rock has made it necessary to blast out the foundation, and the work has been very materially delayed.

STORE DAMAGED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

Several persons narrowly escaped serious injuries when a truck and a touring car collided and running onto a sidewalk crashed into the front of a meat shop yesterday.

According to the South Side police, the truck driven by Joseph Miller, 25, 737 Custer street, Carrick, was east bound on Carson street, when a touring car driven in the same direction by Mrs. Edith Braymer, 63, 2927 Chartiers avenue, Sheraden, attempted to pass the truck on the left, when both collided. Both machines ran onto the sidewalk, police say, striking the front doors of a butcher shop at 2806 Carson street, owned by George Trocvich. Both machines were damaged.

Miller and Mrs. Braymer were arrested by the South Side police on a charge of reckless driving, and were released on a cash bond for a hearing in Traffic Court Wednesday, January 9.

Lieut. James B. Earley and squad of the South Side station reported confiscating a small quantity of moonshine liquor when they raided his saloon Wednesday.

DOGS STOLEN BY BAND

Dog fanciers of the South Hills district have notified authorities that during the last three or four weeks household pets have disappeared and they now are firmly convinced that an organized band is engaged in picking up valuable canines and taking them elsewhere to sell.

Mt. Lebanon, Dormont and Brookline are the districts mostly affected and a few cases have been reported from Beechview. Delay in reporting the thefts was occasioned for the reason that owners were of the impression that their canines had wandered away and would be back home within a day or two. Time, however, has dispelled this illusion and that an organized band of dog thieves is operating in the districts mentioned is now the general impression. This view is strengthened by the fact that none but the more valuable animals have been taken.

BELLEVUE PLANS CIRCLE TO SPEED UP TRAFFIC

A traffic circle in West Riverview avenue, Bellevue, between Meade and Sheridan avenues, to provide access to and from the proposed Ohio River boulevard has been sketched by Park H. Martin, borough engineer, and is under consideration by Council.

The plan, said to be regarded favorably by members of council involves utilizing a strip of property 17 feet wide and between 150 and 200 feet long belonging to the borough and the condemnation of a narrow strip by the borough north of the boulevard line.

Prospective development of Bellevue as a result of the boulevard necessitates ample means of entering and leaving the new highway to avoid congestion, members of council believe. In addition to the traffic circle project Mr. Martin has prepared alternative plans for connecting existing streets with the boulevard to facilitate traffic.

An ordinance embodying the plan deemed best fitted to meet the borough's needs will be presented at a meeting of council, January 22 when the ordinance establishing the route and grades of the boulevard is scheduled for final passage. A public meeting at which views of citizens and affected property owners will be heard, will be held January 15.

A slight change in a curve beyond the projected traffic circle will be asked by the council, of the county engineers, according to present plans.

Sidelights on Society

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.

Everybody is a-picking on that poor boy out there in California that run the wrong way with that football. If I was an editorial writer like Mr. Hearst, Mr. Brisbane, Bruce Barton, Glenn Frank and all of those, I would ask how many out of the hundred and ten million of the rest of us are headed the wrong way.

How many out of us would have even had presence of mind enough to pick up a fumble, how many grabbed out of the scramble what they think is success and don't know till they reach the goal line whether it's the right one or not?

So come on, preachers, hop on this as your text. All I want is ten per cent of that Sunday's collection to get this boy a medal for at least doing something different from one million other college boys. Even if it was wrong, his mind wasn't standardized.

Yours,

WILL.

Nancy Learns About Her Real Mother Being a Circus Star

couch that had been witness to many scenes before, sad ones and merry, in the O'Day household.

Mrs. O'Day raised her up, put her head against her breast, soothing her as she had when she was a little girl.

Finally they both calmed down to a point where Mrs. O'Day could talk coherently: "Nancy, Colleen," said Mrs. O'Day, "that letter came several days ago. I just couldn't let that woman claim you until I saw what kind of a person she was."

"Muddy, dear, is it my real mother, this Julie Abbott? Is my name Abbott, too? Abbott instead of Deane?"

Mrs. O'Day seemed not to hear her question.

"I wanted to see what she was like," she continued, "so I headed her off over at the depot. I was scared I would miss her and she'd come right up here first, but I knew her the minute she got off the train. The same Julie. Yellow hair, like your own, the same eyes, the same glints in them. Oh, Nancy, Nancy, you're the image of your mother!"

Mrs. O'Day fell to weeping again, and Nancy put her arms about her, snuggling close.

"I told her that she mustn't come up here today. I told her you weren't home and wouldn't be until late tonight, long after the circus had pulled up stakes. I thought she'd leave town without trying to see you. She left you when you were 2 weeks old, and she's hardly sent a word since. You're mine, Nancy. Mine! And she can't take you from me now."

"Of course I'm yours, Muddy, of course. I'm yours forever and ever. You're my mother first. You're the only mother I know and I love you. But what harm can it do if I see this Julie Abbott who says she is my real mother? I must see her, I must!"

"You will," said Mrs. O'Day. "She's coming here after the performance tonight. She won't leave town until tomorrow at 10."

"Coming here, to this house? Oh, Muddy, I'm afraid."

Nancy clung to Mrs. O'Day as though someone were there now, behind her, coming, coming to tear her away.

* * *

The hands of the old clock on the bookcase were slowly working their way toward half past seven before Mrs. O'Day had told Nancy the story of her adoption by the O'Days. It was a true story of Nancy's parenthood, and simple enough, as Mrs. O'Day told it. Nancy's father was Monty Deane and her mother was Julie Abbott, child of the queerest union that anyone could dream of. A grandchild of the wealthy and aristocratic Deanes, "THE Deanes" of Pittsburgh, whose names were so often in the society columns of newspapers all throughout the state.

Now Nancy knew what Julie Abbott meant by "THE Deanes."

Her mother was a circus performer, a "fly-by-night" actress. At least that was what she was when Nancy was born, a little over 18 years ago.

Mrs. O'Day told the story of Nancy's birth as accurately as she could. Nancy sat spellbound, absolutely silent all during the telling, her eyes round as saucers, her breath coming in little gasps. When it was all over Nancy could only say, "Oh, Muddy, I can't be the girl you've told me about."

"Yes, child, it's you. Julie Abbott and Darry and I are the only ones in the world who know the truth, except your father, if he is living. His parents don't know you exist. They never knew you were born."

"My father," Nancy said, half to herself. "Tell me, what was he like?"

Both Nancy and Mrs. O'Day jumped at the ring of the doorbell. Until that moment Nancy had forgotten John Blair and her promise to go to the circus with him. She gave a swift look at the clock. It's hands pointed to 7:45.

"Now who can that be?" said Mrs. O'Day.

"Oh, that's John Blair. He's come to take me to the circus. He's an old school friend that's just come back to town. I met him on the street today." Nancy didn't bother to explain just at present.

John Blair rang the doorbell again, three sharp, short rings. Nancy rushed to the door, threw it open, and her swollen eyes looked into the clear, blue ones of her escort.

"Muddy dear, this is Mr. Blair. He's as wild about circuses as I. He says he loves a calliope and the smell of the sawdust."

She talked quickly, nervously, all the time she was getting her hat and coat. She tried vainly to conceal from John Blair that they both had been crying. She breathed a great sigh of relief when at last they were out on the sidewalk and headed for the circus at the edge of the town.

"My mother, my own mother, is a performer in this show," she murmured to herself as they entered the big tent.

She looked to the tent top and there she saw workmen testing the trapeze above her head.

CHAPTER III.

IN all her eighteen years Nancy had never seen a huge circus like this. Things were swimming about her. Her cheeks were burning. She looked down at her hands. They were shaking. She looked at John Blair's hands. Big calm hands, burned brown with the sun. He clasped them over his knees as he hunched up his six feet of husky frame in the little low backed circus seat in Section "C," reserved.

She tried to look at those hands of his and be calm. But she might as well have tried to calm the Atlantic Ocean in a storm just by looking at it.

With a blare of trumpets, the great flaps of the performers' entrance were thrown aside and the big parade that starts all circuses, began.

"My mother, my true mother is down there in that parade" she kept thinking. Her head swam. She and John Blair sat so that their eyes were on a level with the riders' eyes as the parade passed. The performers would smile and bow, their lips scarlet with paint. Painted ladies. Bare back riders in flouncy skirts and tights, and men in riding costumes, red-coated, booted and spurred.

What manner of women are these, Nancy thought. When their paint is washed away, what are they like? How do they look in their street clothes? How do they live?

A woman rider in a scarlet cloak and a gorgeous head dress of flaming plumes went riding by, nodding, smiling, throwing kisses to the applauding spectators.

"Could that be my mother?" Nancy said half aloud. Her tense little fingers dug their way into John Blair's arm.

"Gorgeous, isn't she?" remarked John, "a mediaeval queen."

The queen looked straight at the pair of them, blew a kiss in their direction, bowed low over the arched neck of her black horse. Other magnificent ladies rode past until Nancy's brain was in a daze.

A trumpet, shrill and clear was heard above the din. In the center of the great tent, the trumpeter, clothed in bright green satin breeches and a long cape, resplendent with gold braid, turned from one side to another to catch the attention of the multitude.

All activities suddenly ceased, and an announcer in evening clothes, strangely inappropriate in the circus setting, stepped into the glaring spotlight of the center ring.

"Lad—i—e—e—s and Gentle—m—e—n" he bean. "I now have the pleasure of calling your attention to one of the most daring performers in any circus in the entire world.

"Lad—e—e—e—s and Gentlem—e—e—n I have the honor of introducing to you Miss Julie Abbott, aerialist extraordinary, acrobat and tight rope walker, who will dance—not walk, Ladie—e—e—e—s and Gentle—m—e—n— I repeat that this daring little lady will dance the Charleston across the wire which you see suspended across the ring above me."

He pointed to a wire high up, and for an instant the great spot light was played upon the silvery thread of it.

"Ladie—e—e—s and Gentle—m—e—n. Many of you have seen tight rope walkers before, both in this circus and in other shows. But here is a circus act unlike anything ever given before.

"Miss Abbott will dance, Ladie—e—e—s and Gentle—m—e—n, not walk, but dance across the wire above me. You will notice that there is no net beneath this wire. Miss Abbott will dance the Charleston to the music of a jazz band. Later she will perform other death-defying feats, Ladie—e—e—s and Gentle—m—e—n, Miss Abbott!"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, January 5

CONFLICTING fortunes may be expected from this day's sidereal inutations. Although the employment may hold some compensatory features, with preferment or recognition from those in authority, yet other affairs have tokens of disruption and turmoil. These should not be precipitated by rash and impulsive moves or by strife, quarrel or litigation. Make all changes conservatively and keep firm control on the actions. Also safeguard against fire and accident.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of trials and disturbances probably contributed to by their own proclivity to rash and impetuous acts and words, unless properly restrained. Shun accident, law and dangers. The employment is under good aspect for preferment or recognition.

A child born on this day may have a contradictory nature with many impulses working against each other. It should be given a rigorous training and discipline in self-government, responsibility and straight forwardness.

Underwood and Dicky Plan for the Shopping Party

IT took all the courage I possessed to present an unruffled front to Harry Underwood's announcement that Dicky had had a sudden summons to the city. But as it was only the corollary of the luncheon invitation he just had given Lillian and me, I was enabled to give my acceptance a cordial and care-free air, ignoring the more significant news.

"What a perfectly charming arrangement!" I exclaimed. "I 'accept with pleasure.' Don't you, Lillian?"

"Yes, if it doesn't take too long," she said practically. "Remember, we've got a lot of shopping to do. But I have a great idea. We'll time our visit to the hotel near luncheon. Then we either can eat in the dining room—really they serve a very good meal, or there are three splendid restaurants within a block, a French, an Italian and a famous old one dating back a couple of generations."

"Oh, yes, Darragh's," her husband chimed in. "Well, then, we'll meet you at the hotel lounge—when?"

Lillian reflected a few seconds.

"We get in at 9:30, and we'll go uptown first to select one or two things which no girl can be happy without and which we can best get at a certain Fifth avenue shop," she said. "That errand accomplished, we'll get as much more done as possible before 11:30. It will take 15 minutes to reach the hotel, 15 minutes to give the suite the once over, 15 more minutes for Madge and me to primp and drag it over the gridiron. That brings us to 12:15. Suppose you meet us then with the intention of lunching at 12:30. As we'll take that earliest train in the morning, we shall need an early lunch even though fortified by one of Katie's breakfasts."

"I doubt it," Dicky said, speaking for the first time since the discussion of the hotel suite began. I suspected that he had been waiting for some subject absolutely unrelated to his capitulating change of plan for me. "I always feel like a stuffed anaconda by the time she gets through serving me before a journey."

"I never knew you to refuse a second helping," Harry Underwood told him, dodging out of the door as he spoke. Dicky followed him with a celerity betraying his anxiety to end the interview, and as the door closed after him, Lillian sat down precipitately in the nearest chair and laughed silently but heartily until literal tears stood in her eyes. Her husband's speech about Dicky's summons to the city had effectually robbed me of any inclination to hilarity, but her mirth was so infectious that I soon found myself laughing with her, though reluctantly.

"If there's anything funnier than a man," she gasped at last, wiping her eyes.

"There isn't—except a woman."

"Come out of the complex," she commanded briskly. "You ought to be a whole army with banners in your own person. I never saw a more complete right-about-face than the Dicky-bird has accomplished, though I told you a little while ago how agile he was at the little pastime of 'saving face.' But Harry has lived long enough among the Chinese to be past master of that art, and I could see his fine Italian—or I suppose one should say Mongolian—hand in the performance they just staged."

"You think," I said, astonished, "that it was a planned stunt?"

"No thinking about it, I know," Lillian answered with decision. "The Dicky-bird badly needed an excuse for climbing down from his perch, so he appealed to Harry—they've always been an offensive and defensive alliance, you know, and Harry staged the little comedy. And I'm sure the hotel apartment will be to your liking, even if I did throw a few objections for the reduction of their colossal masculine conceit. We'll look it over tomorrow morning, and I'm sure you'll love it. Do you realize that we'll be next door neighbors, old dear? I'm looking forward to a most enjoyable winter."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Dressing Baby for the Winter Outing

A BABY with a wise mother is a fortunate baby. Every good mother desires to be well informed, as well as wise in the application of her knowledge. Every mother is good.

DR. COPELAND

There! Where are we now?

Well, anyway, I want to help these good mothers, and if there is anything I can say to widen their knowledge or help to solve their little problems I shall be happy. I know, too, that to aid them in the care of their babies will be the thing that will make them happy.

What shall we discuss today? Suppose we confer together about what to do with babies in order to protect them against the cold.

Not long ago I had an interesting letter from a Pennsylvania woman complaining about the short socks and bare knees of young children. She says it is a shame to permit children to go about blue with cold. Of course, she is right.

But it is not about the older children we are to talk today. That subject we will discuss on another occasion.

What is the proper way to dress a baby for its outdoor life?

Of course, there must be an abundance of coverings to keep out the chill of winter. I doubt if many mothers fail to provide such garments. The chief fault I have to find is with the time these garments are applied.

When the mother is doing her own work and must take care of herself and her baby too, there enter many problems. She must comb her own hair and get ready for the street, besides getting the baby ready. Before she puts on her own hat, heavy coat and gloves, it is easier to get the baby ready for the outing.

This is a mistake. To wrap up that tender youngster in coat, hood, leggings and mittens and then to leave it ten or fifteen or even twenty minutes, while she is making her own toilet is utterly wrong.

On giving it serious thought, you can see why. The child is sure to perspire freely. With its hot garments, plus the heat of the house, the infant will nearly roast. The consequence is that the sweat pours out, causing the intimate garments to become damp.

What happens when the child is taken out into the air? The surfaces will be chilled, of course, due to the evaporation of the moisture. No doubt many a case of snuffles can be traced to the lowered resistance caused by repeated experiences like this.

The tender skin becomes chapped and chafed by reason of the procedure. All in all it is bad practice.

The mother must make her own preparations for the street before wrapping up the baby. This may be a bit awkward and unless the good woman keeps cool mentally she will perspire physically. Then she runs the danger of exposing herself to the evils I have suggested may attend the infant.

But if she prepares her hair, puts on her hat and is all ready for the outing with the exception of coat and gloves, it will take but a moment to apply them. This will permit taking the child out-of-doors almost immediately. That is the way it should be.

Of course, I need not point out the importance of ample coverings in bitter weather. Make sure they are chosen with reference to the thermometer.

Answers to Health Queries

A. K. Q.—How can a boy 17 years increase his height?

A.—He will continue to grow until he is 21 years of age. Plenty of exercise and the wholesome out-of-door life will help to make him grow.

* * *

D. M. Q.—What will remove freckles?

2.—How many hours of sleep should a girl of 14 have?

A.—Equal parts of lemon juice and peroxide will act as a bleach for freckles. Try using a good cold cream after applying the preparation, which may prove drying to the skin.

2.—About nine hours.

H. M. Q.—Will —— help a cough caused by tuberculosis?

2.—Will cod liver help one with this disease?

A.—Not familiar with this preparation, therefore I cannot advise you about it.

2.—Yes.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

On the Outside

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it correct for a man to walk between two ladies, or on the outer side of the pavement? I have been corrected several times about this, and almost every time have been wrong, or at least lost the argument.

2. Also please advise me if it is correct for a man to recognize the lady first, or is it her place to recognize the gentleman first?

READER.

WELL now, we must have you correct the next time this question comes up. And the answer is going to be very easy for you to remember. Whether the gentleman is walking with one lady or with two ladies, he walks on the side of the pavement nearest the curb. That's easy, isn't it? You see, the point of that rule is that the gentleman walks on the outside of the pavement so that he can, in case of danger to his feminine companions, protect them. Formerly, when we had carriages more, the man was supposed to walk so that he could protect the lady or ladies from the splash of the mud in the street, or could protect her if the horses ran away, and so forth. In other words, the dangers apparently were supposed to come from the street side.

2. The woman is given the privilege of bowing first by the gentleman. She, as is quite natural, indicates that she recognizes acquaintanceship.

Talk It Over

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper to get married without an engagement ring?

2. Is it proper for the bride-to-be to tell her husband-to-be what kind of a ring (wedding) she would like to have, or should she leave it to his judgment?

E. G.

YES. This depends on convenience and circumstances and all kinds of personal things like that.

2. Nowadays the engaged couple usually talk over the wishes and plans for the engagement ring and the wedding ring. And very sensible such a plan is, for these rings are to be worn for such a long time—usually—that it is very important that the girl have the kind that she prefers.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

Now It's Back-to-First-Wife!

HAVE you noticed this general back-to-the-first-wife movement, which is gaining popularity among the men? Every day, at least one popular author or one prominent business man, divorces Number Two, in order to rush back to the arms of Number One! These returns to the ex-spouse, after a little matrimonial detour, are becoming positively faddish.

* * *

HELEN ROWLAND

But the Indian summer detour continues to flourish and the back-to-the-first-wife movement to follow it, as the fish follows the soup. Sometimes, he is lured back to her by her remembered charms; but, more often, he is driven back to her by the disastrous experience with Number Two.

* * *

No former wife's attractions ever shine so brightly as they do when viewed through the inky darkness of a man's disillusionment with another woman.

Re-marrying the original wife is like slipping the foot out of a tight patent-leather dancing pump and into an old carpet slipper. And when a man reaches the point where he has to consider his rheumatism, his nerves and his digestion, an old wife, like an old shoe, is a comfort and a joy!

A man soon finds that changing wives, like changing your occupation, requires constant re-adjustment. It is like breaking in a new car or a new set of golf clubs all the time!

An old ex-wife knows all his tastes and peculiarities. She knows where the domestic third-rail lies—and how to step around it.

She knows how he likes his grapefruit fixed, his studs put in his shirt and his toast buttered, and enough not to ask him WHY he is late.

She knows where he left his shaving things, what he did with the shoehorn and where he put the tickets. She knows all his signals for going home or soft-pedaling or dodging a bore. She knows when he's really angry and when he's "just jumpy" and "doesn't mean it." And she knows when he's really sick and when he's just down in the mouth and wants to be left ALONE!

Oh yes, a matrimonial detour is an expensive "cure" for that Indian summer madness. But after a man has tried keeping step with the jazz-decade and discovered that his knees are a little stiff and the sap is running low in his veins, then does he long as never before for the comfortable old harness-broken wife with whom he can RELAX!

* * *

And what is more satisfactory than a returned husband with a contrite spirit, a punctured vanity and a satiated curiosity, who is content to curl up on the mat and STAY there!

Your Sunday Dinner

By PRUDENCE PENNY.

Breaded Veal Chops.
Fried Cauliflower.
Baked Spinach.
Potatoes Au Gratin.
Tomato Salad.
Chocolate Ice Box Cake.
Ginger Ale.

TWO great feast days have just passed, so let's have a rather simple meal for Sunday. Breaded veal chops are always welcome and always delicious. Remove the skin, dip the chops in beaten egg to which a few tablespoons of milk and a pinch of salt have been added, then in bread crumbs. Place the chops in a hot frying pan, containing a small amount of bacon drippings or any other fat.

When one side is well browned, turn and brown on the other side. Reduce the heat, cover the pan tightly and let cook until tender. Serve with a tomato sauce made as follows:

Cook a slice of onion with half the contents of a can of tomatoes. Mix three tablespoons of flour and three tablespoons of fat, add the tomato juice and cook until it is thick.

I'M looking out for your welfare, you can see, when I insist that you have baked spinach on Sunday. Try cooking it this way, and see if it isn't good. Wash two pounds of fresh spinach and boil until it is about half cooked, adding no water, as a sufficient amount will cling to it after washing.

Drain it if necessary, cut in sections with a knife and put it in a baking dish, mixing three hard-cooked eggs with the spinach. Now make a cream sauce, melting a tablespoon of butter, stirring in a tablespoon of flour, and adding a cupful of milk, stirring until the mixture is creamy. Pour the cream sauce over the eggs and spinach in the baking dish.

Chop a fourth hard-boiled egg finely, and sprinkle grated cheese and the egg over the top of the dish and bake it in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes.

NOW for the fried cauliflower. Prepare it for boiling in the usual way, drop the cauliflower into boiling salted water and cook for about 10 minutes, or until almost done. Then prepare a batter, mixing a cupful of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of baking powder; add two eggs, a half cupful of milk and a tablespoon of melted butter. After lipping the florets of cauliflower in this batter, fry them in deep fat until nicely browned, then serve them immediately.

I DO like to have children eat a hot cooked cereal in the mornings. Somehow, I feel then that they are equipped for a morning's hearty play and work.

But there's a small boy I know who looked with nothing less than contempt on his morning cereal. He would have none of it—and that's all there was to it.

Then I hit on the expedient of stirring a tablespoonful of honey into his cereal just before serving it—and at once the cereal became a favored dish and as popular as the morning sun.

Cooked cereal with dates is another welcome dish in my house. One cup of sliced dates is sufficient for six servings of cereal. Cook the cereal as usual and stir the dates in just long enough before serving to allow them to become heated through. Any small boy or girl will eat cereal prepared in such a manner with relish, I'll guarantee.

ARE you at a loss for a dessert for the children? I know how difficult it is to think of new things—and childish appetites must be tempted just as much as the adult appetites! Here's a dessert I think you will particularly like for the little ones.

Allow five or six dates for each serving. Cut them into thin slices and place in individual glass serving dishes. Cover with milk which has been flavored with a few drops of vanilla. Chill thoroughly and top with a bit of whipped cream.

And then, when they come in from school, perilously close to starvation, after at least three hours without food, they must have something nourishing and filling.

A sandwich they are particularly fond of is made by spreading one slice of bread with a layer of soft-ened cream or cottage cheese topped with a second layer of jam, the whole covered with a second slice of lightly buttered bread.

HERE'S a delightful recipe for November Jam:

Fit a package of dates and place them in a sauce pan with a pint of water and a cup of chopped cranberries. Boil the mixture gently for 20 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add a half cup of sugar and cook for 10 minutes or until the mixture is thick. Pour into sterilized containers while hot and seal immediately. This recipe, you will find, will fill two half-pint jars.

ASPARAGUS is the aristocrat of vegetables. It lifts the casual meal out of the commonplace, and adds a new zest to it, with a surprising degree of economy. Indeed, it makes all the difference between the meals you have to eat, and the meals you want to eat!

There is no end to the number of ways in which asparagus may be served to put variety and delicacy into every-day meals. In summer it helps make a cool, refreshing salad or appetizer. In either summer or winter it can be utilized in soups, hot vegetable dishes, meat substitutes, and unusual main course combinations. I find the can asparagus—and there are a dozen cans of it on my emergency shelf—quite as delicious and quite as convenient as the fresh asparagus, too.

I have some unusual asparagus recipes which I gladly pass along to you.

MOLDED TOMATO—Asparagus Salad—Put a cup of tomato auce into a saucepan; add a cup of hot water or soup stock, a tiny bit of bay leaf, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half onion sliced, one clove. Simmer 15 minutes, then add two tablespoons gelatine which has been soaked in cold water five minutes. Stir until gelatine is dissolved, then strain. Set aside to cool and thicken.

When about the consistency of cream, add one and one-half cups of canned asparagus tips cut into half-inch pieces. Turn into individual molds or custard cups and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce leaves and garnish with asparagus tips and mayonnaise.

ASPARAGUS ROQUEFORT DRESSING—Prepare a double quantity of French dressing. Mash until soft two tablespoons of Roquefort cheese. Gradually all the French dressing. Pour over the tips of the canned asparagus.

ASPARAGUS CREAM MAYONNAISE—Drain a can of asparagus; cut one pimento into strips. Arrange the asparagus on lettuce, over it place the strips of pimento and serve with cream mayonnaise. Garnish with green olives. For cream mayonnaise, add one-half cup whipped cream to one-half cup stiff mayonnaise.

ASPARAGUS VINAGRETTE DRESSING—Prepare double the quantity of French dressing. Add a small sour pickle chopped very fine, one teaspoon each chopped peeled green chili and parsley. Mix

TASTY PEPPER POT COMING INTO OWN

Pepper pot, good old Pennsylvania Dutch soup, is coming into its own.

Sales reports of one of the largest of the soup canning companies show that after two centuries during which its use was confined to a comparatively small section of the discriminating populace pepper pot recently has leaped to a high point in the scale of popularity. It stands fourth in New York City in the list of soups most in demand, and third in Philadelphia, where it originated, as is indicated by the name frequently given it of "Philadelphia pepper pot."

The increase in demand is attributed to newspaper advertising, through which the merits of the palatable broth have been brought to the attention of multitudes previously unacquainted with it. New Yorkers were unfamiliar with pepper pot until the advertising campaign was started. A series of advertisements rarely exceeding two columns by 52 lines ran continuously twice a week from February to June, 1928. Pepper pot's sales volume rose in response from a comparatively negligible figure to one that now commands respectful attention.

A similar advertising campaign is planned for Pittsburgh.

well and serve over the asparagus—use either the tips or the long spears.

RICE GRIDDLE CAKES—Mix and sift together a cup of flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar. Add ¼ cup of cooked rice and a tablespoon of melted butter. Now an egg, well beaten, and about ½ cupful of milk. Beat well. Cook at once on a hot well greased griddle. Serve hot with butter and syrup. This recipe is sufficient for 12 griddle cakes.

MEXICAN ORANGE ICING—Add ¾ cup boiling water to 1 cup of caramelized sugar and boil until the sugar is dissolved. Add 2 cups of sugar, 1 cup of thick cream, a pinch of salt, and boil to the soft ball stage. Just before it reaches that stage, add the grated rind of 2 oranges. Remove from the fire, add a cup of nut meats and allow to cool. Then beat to creaminess and spread quickly over the cake.

POTATO SOUP—Boil and mash 3 small potatoes. Scald a quart of milk with 2 slices of onion, add to the potatoes, and strain back into the doubleboiler. Blend with 3 tablespoons of butter and 3 tablespoons flour. Season with 1½ teaspoons celery salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and a few grains of cayenne. Now add a teaspoon of fresh chopped parsley. Serve at once.

SPANISH OMELETTE—Melt 2 tablespoons of shortening; add 3 tablespoons of chopped green peppers and 3 tablespoons of finely chopped onion. Fry slowly until soft. Peel a large ripe tomato and cut in small pieces, adding it to the mixture, together with 3 tablespoons chopped celery, ¾ cup chopped mushrooms, ¾ teaspoon salt, a few grains of cayenne and a dash of pepper. Cook over a low fire until the tomato is tender. Now cook the omelette, using 5 well beaten egg yolks to which you have added salt and pepper to taste and 6 tablespoons of hot water. Mix well, and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs until thoroughly blended. Cook over a slow fire; when the omelette is done and a delicate brown, put the hot tomato mixture on one half, fold the omelette and garnish the whole with fresh chopped parsley.

COMPANY PUNCH — Make a syrup from two cups of sugar and two cups of boiling water. Boil 10 minutes. Add juices of six oranges, five lemons, two cups preserved strawberries and the syrup from two cans of crushed pineapple. Add one cup tea and let stand 30 minutes. When ready to serve, place a block of ice in the punch bowl and pour fruit juices and syrup over it. When chilled add one quart ginger ale and four quarts of ice water. Small fruits may be added if desired.

NUT BREAD—Cream together until smooth a cup of sugar, and two teaspoons of butter. Next sift together four cups of flour, four teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of salt. Add alternately with two cups of milk. Then take one cup of nut meats and a cup of raisins together with a little flour and add to the mixture. This will make two loaves of nut bread. Put it in pans, and let it stand for 20 minutes before baking in a moderate oven for from 45 minutes to one hour.

CASSEROLD HASH—In the casserole, put 1 layer of cubed chicken, 1 layer of boiled rice, which has been drained, 1 tomato cut in pieces, ¼ green pepper cut in pieces, ½ stalk of celery, diced, ¾ of a large onion fried brown in bacon drippings. Repeat the layers, putting about an inch of water in the casserole. Bake in a moderate oven 1½ hours.

MENU FOR CHILDREN

TODAY I want to give you a few sample menus for children. The question of what to feed the young child is a disturbing one.

I realize that to talk about food in the abstract is a vastly different matter from writing down menus which can be definitely followed. Hence these menus:

If your young progeny is between the tender ages of 1 and 2, model his meals on these menus:

Breakfast—Cooked oatmeal, toast, cooked apples, milk. Lunch—Mashed potatoes, moistened with milk, or beef, mutton or chicken broth, milk toast, milk. Supper—Cooked asparagus tips, poached egg, bread, butter and custard.

Or cooked cereal, toast, cooked peaches or pears, weak cocoa. Vegetable soup made with milk, steamed rice, baked apple, milk. Cooked cereal, toast, tapioca cream, milk.

If your child has advanced to the dignified age of 2, model his meals on these menus until he reaches the age of 7:

Breakfast: Prune pulp, cooked cereal, top milk, toast, warm milk. Lunch: Baked rice pudding, milk or weak cocoa, toast, fruit marmalade. Supper: Cream of pea soup, dropped egg, corn starch or tapioca, toast or rusk with butter.

Or uncooked cereal, top milk, milk toast, milk. Cream rice with grated egg, asparagus on toast, milk, cookies. Egg nogg, fruit gelatin, molasses cookies.

HONEY CARAMELS—Boil a cup of honey, a cup of granulated sugar and three tablespoons of sweet cream or rich milk until it hardens when dropped into cold water, though the mixture must not get too brittle. Pour into a greased dish, beating in the vanilla just before pouring. The mixture should be ½ or ¾ of an inch deep in the dish, and as it cools cut in squares, wrapping each piece in paraffin paper. To make chocolate caramels, add to the foregoing 1 tablespoon of melted chocolate just before taking off the stove, beating in well.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Parties Keep Social Set Occupied

WHEN a busy season for the social world, like the holiday time, is over, many a social registerite sighs with a sort of pleasant weariness, and thinks longingly of several weeks to come when she can dawdle over her breakfast, shop leisurely with no thought of a social engagement, linger dreamily over her after-dinner coffee and cigaret. But so far this month few members of the social set have had time to indulge reflective moods. Weddings, first of all, and entertainments for the brides, debutante parties which are still being given, and a ball or two all help to prolong the hectic pace of December.

And by the time this January season, which one is tempted to call a second "little season," is over, the season at Palm Beach and other resorts will be nearing its heights.

In the meantime everyone is entertaining for the girls who will marry this month, squeezing shopping for the winter resort season life in between a luncheon and a tea engagement.

MANY an entertainment will be given for popular Anne Louise Marshall, daughter of the Lee Holmes Marshalls, who came out last year. Her fiance, of course you know, is Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., son of Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe. And the wedding will take place at 5:30 o'clock on Saturday, January 19, in the Third Presbyterian Church.

Eleanor Rowe, who will be one of her soon-to-be sister-in-law's bridesmaids, will give the rehearsal dinner on Friday, January 18, to be followed by a dance.

On Thursday night, January 17, Juliet Hillman, who came out last year, too, will give a dinner dance for the bridal party in her home, I believe. Juliet will also be a bridesmaid.

Another bridesmaid, Mary Mellon McClung, who was also a sister debutante of the bride-to-be, will entertain at a luncheon on Thursday in her home. Both the men and women of the bridal party will be guests.

Rhoda Drew, another bridesmaid, will give a luncheon in her home on Friday, January 18, for the girls of the bridal party and a few more friends, I've heard.

And still another bridesmaid, Catherine Gordon, will give the spinster dinner on Monday night, January 14, in her home for Anne Louise.

AND everyone was interested, and interested is really a mild verb to use, in the wedding yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church when Marjorie Babcock, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Babcock, became the bride of James McKay, son of the J. Albert McKays, of "Oak Hill", Amberson avenue. And the officiant was Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr. The altar was banked with ferns and crotons and masses of pink begonias. Stone urns of white lilies were on either side of the altar.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Raymond St. Leger Babcock, was gowned in ivory satin, the skirt of which was trimmed with diagonal flounces ending in points reaching to the floor. The sleeves were long and tight-fitting, and the court train of satin falling from the shoulders was seen through her long tulle veil, arranged in cap effect. She carried Calla lillies and white lilacs.

Mrs. George Fowler Wheeling, as matron of honor, and Louise Latimer Reed, as maid of honor, appeared in gowns of jade green chiffon, made with tiered skirts with the longer-in-back hem line. They carried Ophelia and Cordis roses, white lilacs and blue iris, and wore green felt hats simulating berets with rhinestone trimming.

The bridesmaids, Betty McKay, Eunice DuPuy, Marian Stone, Frances Fitzgerald, Harriet Ramsburg, Juliet Hillman, Mary Mellon McClung and Susie Singleton, wore similar gowns made of parchment colored chiffon with hats of the same shade. And their flowers were yellow Pernet roses, Corid roses, iris and white lilacs.

Fred Raymond Babcock II, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer. Mr. McKay's best man was Paul Mellon, son of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, and the ushers were Frank Faber Brooks, Jr., Henry Pearce Wright, George Pearson Rhodes, Jr., Oliver Blair, Andrew Bart Berger, Jr., Leonard Seeley Mudge, Henry Oliver Thomas A. Standish, Jr., Jack Hess, Louis F. Trainer, Edward B. Babcock, brother of the bride, of Wichita, Kan., and Benjamin B. McAlpin, Jr., of New York.

A small reception in the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, the Raymond St. L. Babcocks, of Roslyn place followed.

After February 1 the McKays will be at home on Kinsman road following a honeymoon in the West Indies.

IF yesterday afternoon offered a notable event for the grown ups, the morning was designed for the entertainment of youngsters. For yesterday morning the Junior League presented its first marionette show in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association. And the marionettes guided by members of the League as puppeteers presented a fascinating story, "The Vigare of Bobby Jones," written by one of the league members.

Mrs. Charles L. Snowden, Jr., general chairman for the marionette shows, reminded the youthful audience that a second performance would be given tomorrow afternoon in the Guild Hall, Sewickley.

Both the long court train and the tulle veil were trimmed with lace, which had been used on her mother's wedding gown, and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweetheart roses. Miss Sally Thompson, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in blue moire, while beige moire frocks were worn by the bridesmaids, Miss Frances Tomes, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Gladys Frelinghuysen Talmage and Miss Florence Read, all of Brooklyn; Mrs. Edward H. Rynearson, of Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Margaret Robinson, Miss Jane Bowman, Miss Martha Cooper and Miss Marguerite Gibson Hine, all of this city. They carried pink roses and lilacs. I., Rodney Gurney, Frederic Gurney, John Maben, Richard Scott Perkin and Kingsley Gurney, all of Brooklyn; Aldrich Covert, of Garden City, L. I., and J. C. Grove, of Frederick, Md. A reception and dinner in the Edgewood Club followed the ceremony. Covers were laid for 28 at the bridal table, which was decorated with pink roses and stevia. Mr. and Mrs. Tomes have left for a trip to Bermuda and upon their return will be at home in Brooklyn. Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. P. Thompson, Jr., of Chicago, and Miss Carolyn Thompson, of Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Robinson gave the rehearsal dinner Tuesday night in the University Club. The table had unusually attractive decorations, consisting of an entire bridal party in miniature, dressed to represent the Thompson-Tomes party.

GUGGENHEIM HEIRESS SOON TO MARRY BRITON

By J. C. OESTREICHER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—High interest exists in the American colony in London today over announcement of the engagement of Miss Carol Louise Glorney, daughter of Mrs. Corlette Glorney, to John Paley Johnson, member of an old English family.

Miss Glorney is the granddaughter of the late Isaac Guggenheim and a second cousin to Mrs. Milton Waldman, formerly Barbara Guggenheim, whose two young children were killed some months ago when they fell from the roof of a New York apartment hotel.

Miss Glorney and her mother have lived in London for many years. The bridegroom-to-be is the elder son of the late Capt. Robert W. Johnson, of the royal navy. His family has lived in Surrey for centuries. It is understood the couple will make their home in Surrey after the ceremony.

"The date of the marriage has not been definitely arranged," Miss Glorney told International News Service. "It will probably take place in June, but the date is being held in abeyance."

Miss Glorney is a strikingly attractive girl and one of the most popular debutantes in London. Her mother was presented at court two years ago.

Johnson is an officer in the royal artillery and one of the most popular young men in London society.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The mails yesterday brought in an additional 16,700 applications for 1929 license tags, the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, State Department of Highways, announced.

Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar, reiterated that extension of time by local police officials for use of the 1928 plates was against the law and "absolutely unwarranted." He said the state bureau was not swamped.

A remarkable biography of Wilson that reveals him to you more intimately than he was ever known to anyone before.

Life and Letters of WOODROW WILSON
By Ray Stannard Baker

THIS work is the most important American biography in a generation. From Woodrow Wilson's private files — the files of his friends — and 200,000 letters and manuscripts, the author presents a graphic and authoritative picture of American politics from the inside.

Wilson's letters to Colonel House, to Harvey, to Bryan and other dominant figures of the time reveal at last the little-understood moves of the famous Baltimore Convention and give a "back stage" view of the dramatic campaign of 1912 when Wilson defeated Roosevelt and Taft.

DOCTOR KILLED IN GAS BLAST

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Dr. Dalton Wilson, surgeon at Walker Hospital, was killed and his body being blown almost to bits, when a drum of ethylene gas he was trying to repair exploded yesterday in a surgery laboratory of the hospital.

Edward Taylor, a Negro attendant, escaped with a fracture of the leg, body injuries and seriously injured ear drums.

The body of the surgeon was thrown through a six-inch wall, two receiving rooms were almost totally destroyed and windows throughout the building were shattered.

A spark caused by friction against metal on the drum is believed to have ignited the gas.

HAWKED AND SPIT UP PHLEGM EACH MORNING

"A person with a bad cough is a fool not to see their doctor right away," declares Mrs. D. R. Shadwell. "I coughed in church, in the office where I work and at the movies so bad people would stare at me. Mornings I was a nuisance around the house, coughing up phlegm and mucus. At night I breathed through my mouth and mornings my mouth was dry and tasted awful.

SAW HER DOCTOR

"Our old doctor met me on the street and noticed I coughed every minute or so. I told him 25c cough remedies did no good and I couldn't take cold liver oil. He laughed and wrote down the name 'Linonine' and told me it was a nice-tasting Flaxseed mixture with Eucalyptus, etc., far better than Cod Liver Oil and quicker, too.

WONDERFUL RESULTS

"Only the bigger downtown stores had Linonine but it's worth going miles to get. My cough loosened up and vanished almost like magic. Since then a dozen friends who were wheezing and coughing around have taken Linonine and even the kids in the neighborhood like to take it when they get a cough or cold. It builds you up, too."

A cough is a nasty, annoying thing to have and dangerous, too, this time of year. A 50c or $1.00 bottle at home does the work. Well stocked druggists have Linonine, made by the nationally known Kerr Chemical Co.

Taking Baseball Risks McGraw Sets Fashion Schultz to Boss Camp

Double Test in Ring Filling Wilce's Shoes Dixon's Fate Recalled

RUN CHANCES ON INJURED PLAYERS

TAKING a chance on supposedly crippled baseball players has become quite fashionable in the major leagues since John McGraw won out on a gamble of that kind six years ago last fall. After the season of 1921, the Boston Nationals traded Pitcher Jack Scott to Cincinnati for Pitcher Rube Marquard and Shortstop Larry Kopf. Scott turned up with a seemingly dead arm and in May was released unconditionally as useless after taking part in only one game, the Red mangement setting up a howl that it had been swindled and charging that the Boston club had been aware of the pitcher's condition at the time the deal was made.

Jack Scott

McGraw, unwilling to believe that Scott was done, decided to take a chance on a come-back. He signed Jack to a Giant contract, placed him in the hands of a specialist, and, after the ailing hurler had been given a course of treatment, sent him into action for the Giants in August. The outcome is well remembered by fandom. Scott won eight games against only two lost for New York during the remainder of the 1922 season, shut out the Yankees with only four hits in the third game of the world series, and followed up in 1923 by winning 16 contests while losing only seven.

MCGRAW'S reward for his confidence in Scott has had the effect of making other club chiefs more willing to take a chance on injured players. The Reds grabbed Horace Ford from the minors after the Braves, Phillies and Robins had dropped him on account of a bad leg and the shortstop has given them splendid service since 1926. Negotito was thought to have done for Pitcher Arthur Nehf, and the Giants and Reds turned him loose, but the Cubs gave him another opportunity with gratifying results.

A number of other cases of like nature might be cited. No other club in the majors wanted Joe Harris when Washington adjudged him through, but the Pirates took him on and he helped them to win the 1927 pennant. Now the Bucs are going to take another chance with Earl Sheely, shipped to the minors by the White Sox after he suffered a broken ankle, the Phillies have taken on Tommy Thevenow, the victim of a similar mishap, and McGraw himself hopes to repeat with the cast-off Carl Mays the success that came to him in the case of Scott.

AND the chance-taking is still going on. The recent George Uhle-Jack Tavener trade between Detroit and Cleveland was a double instance, as Uhle's pitching arm is reported not to be sound, and Tavener's throwing is said to have been affected by a fractured finger.

Another risk of the same sort is involved in the proposed deker whereby Cleveland aims to get Second Baseman Bill Hunnefield from the White Sox. In an attempt to save his father-in-law's automobile in a recent garage fire Hunnefield is said to have been burned so severely that his batting ability may be affected, but Cleveland announces its willingness to run chances if Chicago will consent to go through with the deal.

Joe Schultz.

JOE SCHULTZ, former Beltzhoover citizen and once a Pirate for a brief spell, probably will remain after all as manager of the Danville (Ill.) club in the Three-I League this year. It was reported recently that Schultz would be transferred to the Houston club, of the Texas League, another Cardinal farm, but the latest dope is that the Red Bird bosses have decided to keep him in Danville. Schultz, a prominent figure in the Cardinals' chain-store system, also will be placed in charge of the Red Birds organization's big training camp again the coming spring, it is said by those who are in close touch with Branch Rickey's plans.

SUPERVISING that training camp is quite a sizable job. The candidates for places on the various minor league teams owned by the St. Louis Nationals are gathered each spring at a central camp, and there they are tested, put through a conditioning course, weeded out and assigned to teams or discarded.

As in 1927, the camp this year will be pitched in Danville. It is expected that no fewer than 250 young players will assemble there, and it will be Schultz's task to see that they are properly housed and fed and to make certain that every boy in the lot is given a thorough chance to show what he can do.

INSTEAD of remaining closed to professional boxing until April, the plan first announced by the management, Motor Square Garden will be the scene of one pro fistic show in the meantime. Manager John L. Hernon says he has found that it will be possible to stage a card on Monday, February 4, between the automobile show and another exhibit.

On account of the exhibit to follow immediately, the proposed $1 bleachers will not be erected for this show. Instead, to keep its promise to reduce the scale of prices, the club will cut the price of the usual $2 seats to $1, or general admission, and the usual $3 seats, except the first four rows, will be sold at $2. The first four rows, most of which are reserved for the season, will remain at $3.

Joe Sekyra

IN New York tonight Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, O., will have another opportunity of showing whether he is likely to get anywhere, in Glovedom, must step aside in favor of Max Schmelling, the German importation. These two are to meet in the main bout of a show at Madison Square Garden, and it will be a double test, the outcome of which is being awaited by fight fans with considerable interest. It is said of Sekyra that he looks like a champion in the gymnasium, but loses much of his brilliance when he gets into a real fight. In a previous New York chance against Leo Lomski, for instance, he put Lomski in a bad way with a wallop to the chin, but instead of wading in and finishing the job he backed away and appeared to be uncertain as to what he ought to do about it, his delay allowing Leo to recover. Schmelling, though he had been idle for seven months, showed promise in his victory over Joe Monte, and will bear watching if he succeeds in defeating Sekyra tonight.

ONE report from Ohio has it that the Ohio State University athletic board, on the proposition of selecting a successor to Dr. John W. Wilce as football coach, stands five to four in favor of Samuel Willaman, assistant coach for the last two seasons. It is said that Willaman will eventually get the post, but that his appointment will not be announced until the board is unanimously in his favor.

From the same source it is rumored that Willaman is the only member of Wilce's former staff who will be retained, and that all of the other assistant coaches—Swede Oberlander, Bobby Watts, Tarzan Taylor, Howard Yerges, Charley Seddon and Clarence McDonald—will be dropped in favor of new men.

THE action of Kid Chocolate in distributing $2,000 among the poor of Havana upon his return to that city, while winning the commendation of veteran sportsmen in this country, has prompted them

TO ANSWER BRAVES' CHARGES

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—City Councillor William G. Lynch was expected to appear today before the Boston Finance Commission, which is investigating charges that 13 Councilmen sought $5,000 each from the Boston National League baseball club for permitting big league baseball on Sundays.

Lynch was named by Emil E. Fuchs, president and manager of the Braves, as the one who approached him in his hotel suite last November to lay before him the demands of the other councilmen.

W. G. Lynch

Fuchs, who told his story at the first day of the inquiry, was followed on the stand yesterday by Charles F. Adams, vice president of the club, president of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club, and the man who made the original charges.

ADAMS TELLS OF CALL

Adams corroborated in a general way the testimony of Fuchs and declared that before the sports bill had come before the Council for action he received a telephone call from an unidentified person who told him that certain members of the Council were trying to get $5,000 each, and if they didn't get it they would delay until the bill and cobwebs on it.

He testified that the voice sounded like that of Councilman Robert C. Wilson and said that as soon as the conversation ended he attempted to reach Wilson by telephone to confirm the voice, but that despite frequent calls to Wilson's office he was unable to get into conversation with him.

WILSON DENIES CHARGE

Wilson, one of the 13 councilmen named by Fuchs as those who, he said, constituted the holdout bloc, characterized Adams' story as "not fit even for my worst enemy to believe."

He alleged that Adams attempted to offer him money to work for the defeat of a state senator who had opposed the Sunday sports bill in the Legislature.

Burt Whitman, sports editor of the Boston Herald, told of having met Lynch and Dan Carroll, a boxing manager, in Fuchs' hotel suite.

Dempsey to See Rickard Tonight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—While Tex Rickard continued to gain ground today from the effects of the appendicitis operation, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, was speeding from Chicago to the fight promoter's bedside.

Dempsey is expected here tonight and Lou E. Flinn, Dempsey's former manager, is due shortly afterward.

Southworth Names Neale Cardinal Head Coach

COLUMBUS, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Billy Southworth, new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, announced here last night that Earle (Greasy) Neale, football and basketball coach at the University of Virginia, would be head coach of the National League team next season.

Neale will leave for the Cards' training camp at Avon Park, Fla., about February 15 with the advance guard of players, Southworth said, staying at Charlottesville, Va., until that time.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Earle Neale, head football and baseball coach at the University of Virginia, has requested abrogation of his contract which has two years to run, but Dr. John H. Neff, chairman of the university athletic committee, last night announced no action upon the request will be taken until next week.

GROVERS BATTLE WESTMINSTER; GENEVA WINS

By JESS CARVER,
Staff Correspondent.

GROVE CITY, Pa., Jan. 4.—Robert Methuselah Thorn of this place has his 1929 edition Crimson basketball varsity burnished and a'glitter for its first start in the district campaign which comes tonight against the Westminster Titans, ruling Conference champions.

The locals minure annually to put on a first-class ball game, like tonight's early in the season. The boys up here like to know as early as possible just what sort of a ball club Robert Methuselah is going to have. And they usually find out.

Red Ryan.

Westminster is a pre-season choice to repeat in the Conference, even in the face of the strenuous opposition that is certain to be offered by Duquesne and Geneva. The Titans have four of the five lads who played so splendidly last season back in the fold, lacking only the inimitable Sparky Connors of the '28 championship five.

Grove City has two veterans back, Capt. Ryan and Bobby Angelo, but Thorn has woven a basketball fabric which he hopes will withstand the wear and tear of a tough campaign. In Ryan, he has one of the best all-around players in the entire district.

GENEVA VICTOR

M. Chick Davies and this correspondent watched Geneva and Muskingum in their battle at Beaver Falls Beaver Falls last night. The Covenanters won in as thrilling a ball game as you'll see this early in the year. The score was 30 to 27.

Geneva established an early lead which remained good until the closing six minutes of play. At half time the score was 12-10 and at the end of the third period 21-15. The Magenta and Black sophomore team rallied powerfully as the contest drove into its waning moments and with a minute and a half to play, tied the score at 27-all.

Hanson, Covenanter center slipped away under the hoop a few seconds before the final gun and dropped in the winning goal which score was augmented when he was fouled in making the shot and he made one of his two free throws good. The lineup:

| Geneva 30. | | Muskingum 27. |
|---|---|---|
| Emerick | F | Wearing |
| Fleming | F | Bell |
| Ransom | C | Calhoun |
| McKinney | G | Polinsky |
| Montemore | G | A. Co Leiper |

Substitutions—Risko for Wearing, Vereb for Bell, McConaghia for Polinsky, Montgomery for McKinney, Bruce for Merriman. Field goals: Emerick 2, Friedman 2, Ransom 4, McKinney 1, Merriman 1, Risko 3, Bell 3, Vereb 1, Calhoun 1, McConaghia 2, Leiper 1. Fouls: Emerick, 2 out of 4; Friedman 2 out of 2; Ransom, 3 out of 5; Merriman 1 out of 1; Risko 1 out of 5; Bell 3 out of 5; Vereb 1 out of 1; Calhoun 1 out of 3; Polinsky 1 out of 1; Wearing missed 1; Calhoun 1 missed 1; McConaghia 2 out of 3. ## Miss Fordyce Loses In Bermuda Event

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Three Americans and one Canadian survived the first round of match play in the second annual Bermuda women's golf championship at the Riddell's Bay Golf Club yesterday.

Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., women's Metropolitan champion, defeated Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, O., 3 and 1; Helen Hicks, 18-year-old star from Hewlett, N. Y., disposed of Eileen Pattisson, former Bermuda titleholder, 3 and 2; Edith Cutler, of Reading, Pa., defeated Bets Guthrie, of Buck Hill Falls, Pa., 2 and 1, and Ada MacKenzie, of Toronto, eliminated Margaret Prescott, of Narragansett, 6 and 5.

Cards Send Reinhart To Houston Club

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Arthur R. Reinhart, left hand pitcher, has been released on option by the St. Louis Cardinals to their Texas League farm at Houston. He is the third pitcher and ninth member of the pennant winning club released by the Cards this winter.

The addition of Reinhart to the Houston pitching staff is expected to compensate for the loss of Bill Hallahan, whom the Cards recalled. Reinhart has been with the Cards since 1925 and will be 30 in May. In the four years Reinhart has won 50 and lost 18, and 1928 was his only year to fall below .500.

NURMI APPLIES FOR A. A. U. CARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Paavo Nurmi filed application with the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday for a registration card permitting him to compete in this country, but he will be asked to appear at an official hearing before it is issued.

In thus proclaiming officially his intention to start his return American invasion as an amateur, neither Paavo nor his adviser, Hugo Guist, specified where or when the famous Finnish runner will make his competitive start. Nurmi will be interrogated as to his intentions by the registration committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U., to which his application was referred by Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary.

Nurmi's credentials were satisfactory, Ferris said, adding that no obstacle is foreseen in granting the Finn an amateur card. It is the request of the Finnish Athletic governing body, according to Ferris, that the A. A. U. keep watch over Nurmi's activities and properly safeguard his appearance so that he will return home in good amateur standing.

West Penn League Changes Referees

The officers of the West Penn League at a meeting last night decided to employ independent referees to handle all league games in the future. Dissatisfaction over the methods of the West Penn Association in assigning officials to handle their games, the league authorities have decided to select their own referees. Al Speer is one of the new men chosen to officiate in the West Penn League. He will make his debut tonight when he handles the Knickerbocker-Muskingum College game at Forresters Hall.

A hemorrhage was followed by two operations in an effort of heal his throat, but it was announced yesterday that the young athlete had not eaten in two weeks and was too weak to talk.

WILL THIS BE OUR GRIDIRON GAME IN '29?

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

TIME—The 1929 football season.

Scene—A gridiron with the customary two goal lines and two sets of goal posts.

Characters—Two football elevens, officials, coaches, trainers and extra players. Not to forget thousands of fans in the stands.

(A fumble occurs. Center picks up ball and runs down the field. As he nears the goal line he stops.)

Center: What ho, sentry!

Sentry: What ho yourself, bozo?

Center: Whose goal?

Sentry: Your own.

Center: Gadzooks! And Infant fishes! I'm sunk. I have run the wrong way. Turn around the field so I may cross the proper goal line in safety!

Is this what we shall be up against next season, now that the gridders find it impossible to distinguish their own goal line from that of the enemy?

ANOTHER little tableau, inspired by the agitation to move the goal posts back to their former resting places on the goal lines, instead of at the border of the end zones.

Time, scene and characters (also union stage hands): Same as in Play No. 1.

(Quarterback has marched his men down the field more than 50 yards, but doesn't know just where he is. The visibility is poor and he can't see the distant goal posts.)

Quarterback: What ho, lookout!

Lookout: Aye, aye, sir!

Quarterback: Get our bearings. I feareth we are losteth!

Lookout: A courier on horseback shall be dispatched immediately.

(Quarterback takes time out until courier returns amid clatter of hoofbeats.)

Lookout: I beg to report, sir, that the courier says we are inside the 20-yard line. If I may suggest it, sir, how about trying for a field goal?

Quarterback (scornfully): A field goal, indeed! If we are THAT close, it shall be a touchdown or nothing! Another first down and we shall see the whites of the goal line. On, my noble men, ON! Formation right. 24, 56, 72, Y P X!

Enough buffoonery for the moment.

We read in the papers that Jack Dempsey says he really has quit fighting.

So, apparently, has Johnny Risko, but he isn't bragging about it.

HERE in the East we regard Georgia Tech's triumph over California as a great victory for our side, but down South they want to know how we get that way. When the regular season was nearing its end, we all said the Eastern championship lay among Carnegie Tech, Boston College and New York University. Georgia Tech, with its unbeaten record? Why, they're in the South, my dear! Really, how could you be so stupid?

But now, it seems, Georgia Tech is one of us.

It appears that as soon as Rene De Vos went social register, so did his fighting ability. A la Gene Tunney.

FIGHTER becomes dizzy from waltzing throughout an entire round and when the bell rings he goes to the wrong corner, as sometimes happens.

Doesn't recognize the seconds and feels a little more foolish than usual, if possible.

"Gee," he mutters as he shamefacedly retraces his steps and goes to his proper post. "I'll bet that'll much out there thinks I'm Roy Riegels."

Whereupon the referee and judges immediately award two points to his opponent. Why? It's a safety, of course.

GAMES TOMORROW NIGHT.

Pittsburgh at Boston.
Montreal at Canadiens.
Ottawa at Toronto.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Trailing by a score of 2 to 0 at the start of the third period, the New York Rangers scored a pair of goals and tied the Pittsburgh Pirates in a desperate National Hockey League battle here last night. Neither team could score in an overtime session.

It was a typical Ranger finish. Time after time this season they have come from behind to tie or win in the closing periods.

The Pirates were the whole show in the first two periods. Even with the Pittsburgh team reduced to four men through penalties, the Rangers were unable to score. Tex White, a substitute, scored Pittsburgh's first goal on a pretty individual dash in the first period. Early in the next session Darragh tallied on a pass from Smith.

In the third period the Rangers solved Pittsburgh's clever passing attack and got going themselves. Keeling smacked in a rebound for the first New York score. Then the Thompson and Murdock combination swept down the ice, Thompson caging the puck in 9:52. The lineup:

| Rangers—2. | | Pirates—2. |
|---|---|---|
| Roach | G | Miller |
| Abel | R.D. | MacKinnon |
| Bourgeault | L.D. | Smith |
| Boucher | C | Frederickson |

| Bun Cook | L.W. | Miller |

Ranger spares—Murdock, Thompson. Keeling, Oatman, Lane.

Pirate spares—White, Cotton, McCurry, Drury, McCaffrey, Holway.

First period—White, 17:05. Penalties—Cotton, Drury.

Second period—Darragh (Smith) 2:22. Penalty—Bun Cook.

Third period—Keeling (Bun Cook), 7:05; Thompson (Murdock), 9:22. Penalties—Bun Cook, Oatman, Drury, Keeling.

PENALTIES COSTLY

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Penalties proved costly to the Montreal Maroons here last night in their National Hockey League game against the Boston Bruins and the visitors skated off the ice after 60 minutes of thrilling hockey with a 1-to-0 victory. The only goal was scored by Eddie Shore, Boston defense man, in the second period, when the locals were short Stewart and Hicks, both of whom were doing time in the penalty box.

CANADIENS, SENATORS TIE

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Montreal Canadiens and Ottawa Senators, hockey's oldest rivals, hooked up here last night in a sensational National League encounter before 6,000 roaring fans and after 70 minutes of fast hockey, two tired teams trudged off the ice with the count deadlocked at one-one.

LEAFS STOP HAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The Chicago Blackhawks dropped their third straight National League hockey game last night, falling before a superior brand of passing and checking by the speedy Toronto Mapleleafs. The score was 2 to 0.

OFFICIAL INJURED

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Cooper Smeaton, chief referee of the National Hockey League, is the most recent casualty of the rough ice game. It was learned today that he had broken the fibula of his left leg in a tangle with a group of players while officiating the game between the New York Americans and Montreal Candiens last Tuesday. He probably will be out of the game as an official for at least six weeks.

RUTH BEGINS TRAINING

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—"Wham!"—the little rubber hand-ball, propelled by the swinging fistlike paw of a big man with a bigger waist-line, smacked the end of the court and streaked back.

"Wham!" Perspiration streamed down his flushed face as he lunged after a low one.

"Think I'm getting too old, hey? Or too fat and slow? Watch that one."

"Wham!" Another point for the big fellow.

That's a cross-section of the way Babe Ruth started off the New Year yesterday with his first workout in preparation for the 1929 baseball campaign. It is the earliest he has begun any systematic training since 1926, when he made the big come-back.

He tipped the scales at exactly 234½ pounds. There is some 15 pounds from his best playing weight, but low enough to testify that his rounds of golf and hunting in the past few weeks have helped keep him in condition.

"Did you see that piece in the papers about me fattening up to 250 pounds, being about through and that this would be my last year? That's hot stuff. And a fine lot of bunk," said Ruth.

"Say, I feel more like a kid than ever. I'm not getting any younger, but I will only be 35 next Monday and I've got a lot of baseball left."

It was recalled to the Babe that three years ago when he actually scaled around 250 and seemed near the end of his career before staging a come-back, he predicted he would still be in the league at 40.

"That gives me five more years, hey." Well, I guess I'm still good for it."

Lewis Defends Mat Title Tonight

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, world heavyweight wrestling champion, and Gus Sonnenberg, former Dartmouth football player, meet in a championship match at the Boston Garden tonight.

Lewis, who tips the scales at 235 pounds, will have a 35-pound weight advantage.

During their training this week, both men have concentrated on the holds which have given them their present position in the wrestling world. The champion has worked on his headlock, the hold that won him his nickname, and Sonnenberg has further developed the flying tackle which he borrowed from his college football training.

DROTAR, DEMARIA COUNTY LEAGUE STARS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

JOE DROTAR, former Duquesne Saltzer star, and Dom Demaria, last year a regular on the Duquesne University quintet, have established themselves as two of the outstanding guards in the Allegheny County League, judging by their excellent performances during the first half of the season.

Drotar, making his debut in fast company as a member of the Duquesne Lafayettes, twice winners of the County League title and favorites to repeat this season, has been playing a brilliant game for the Scarlet Hurricane and has contributed immensely to the success of the Minnick-coached charges.

One of the best floor men playing in professional basketball in this section, Drotar is a tower of strength on the Lafayette machine. Possessing the speed that goes with the making of an ideal floor man, Drotar, once he obtains possession of the ball, is as elusive as a wild hare and opponents find it a difficult task to stop him from scoring. Drotar has been a big factor in the fine showing of the Lafayettes, who have lost only one league game to date.

Although the Rauhs have been unable to make much headway in the County League during the first half of the season, it has not been due to the inferior playing of Demaria, whose work ever since he joined the Columbus Temple favorites has left no room for complaint. Demaria's individual performances so far this season stamps him as one of the most valuable players in the popular professional circuit.

DRIBBLES

Only one game is scheduled in the County League tomorrow night, the Miele-Franchinas being the opponents of the Duquesne Light team at the South Side Market House.

Kingsley House and the Y. M. H. A. teams will battle for first place in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League tomorrow night. The reserve teams meet in the preliminary game. Both games will be staged on the Y. M. H. A. floor. The Y. M. H. A. is eager to turn the tables on Coach Yetter's passers for a defeat suffered earlier in the season.

The Rauhs will intade McKeesport Saturday night to meet the McKeesport Hirschbergs.

The A. G. Bohnert Club wants games with boys teams. Call Carl Postellon at Hemlock 9222.

The Duquesne Collegians want games with first-class teams. Call Hemlock 9118.

TARTANS PLAY WAYNESBURG TONIGHT

Carnegie Tech will set forth tonight on its 1929 basketball cruise flying the flag of hope, determined to make amends for the unfortunate doings of 1928 when 11 games were lost without the salvaging balm of a single victory. The Tartans will meet the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets at Waynesburg in this inaugural battle, which promises to be all of the latter.

Coach John Irwin will have practically the same squad as he shuffled and double shuffled last year, save that Howard Harpster, brilliant football ace, and Hitchcock, veteran guard, are among the missing. Harpster is on the West Coast and will not play basketball. Hitchcock has completed his allotted time at Carnegie. Capt. Harvey White will pilot the Skibo team again this season.

The starting lineup for the Tartans tonight likely will consist of White and High at the guards, Crum and Brown at the forwards, and Bond at center.

Muskingum, playing a four-game stand in this locality, will hook up with the Knickerbocker Club at Forster Hall in Lawrenceville tonight. Tomorrow the Muskies will be on the Bluff for a contest with thet Dukes.

Kid Chocolate Hero in Havana

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The dusky little Cuban fighter, Kid Chocolate, who took New York rings by storm after leaving here six months ago with one suit, $6 and a one-way ticket, is back home again, the lion of the hour among his own people.

The Keed, his wide, ivory smile working overtime, is the hero of the island. His clothes now are of gorgeous hue—lavender and green suits predominating—and he's the Croesus of the Negro set with a bank balance well over $2,000. All his friends got a new $10 bill for Christmas.

VETERAN SOCCER FANS ATTEND BIG GAME

By TOM BIRKS.

NEW YEAR'S DAY seems to still hold its place in the hearts of old-time soccer followers around this district. Every year the New Year's Day game, no matter what teams are playing, always brings out the same familiar faces who always seem to set aside that particular day for their annual excursion into soccer's realm.

Last Tuesday's battle at the Stadium was no exception. Looking over the crowd there were men who had played a wonderful part in soccer when the game was something new to sport in Pittsburgh.

From the Panhandle district came Jimmy McFalls, a Scotch boy, who became domiciled around Sturgeon 20 years ago. He was the mainstay of all the great teams run by Pete Wachter at Sturgeon. Close to McFalls was Pat Hickey from Castle Shannon and Si McPherson.

HICKEY FORMER STAR

For many years Hickey was the greatest American born soccer player in this district. He played with Castle Shannon when it was a power in local soccer. He was a natural center forward, with aggressiveness, and few goalkeepers hesitated with the ball when Hickey was around.

McPherson is still playing with the Corinthians. Boots Donnelli made his initial visit with Buff and Fred Donnelli in the game. Boots was one of the greatest halfbacks raised in Millers and was known nationally before Buff was big enough to know what a soccer football looked like.

Steve Horlick, sports promoter of Ambridge, was also on deck. Though Steve has become well known locally in baseball, it was his efforts that made soccer football big league stuff in Valley. He is a busy business man right now, yet every New Year's Day he makes the pilgrimage here to see the day's soccer classic.

Jack Barrass, known to every soccer player, fan and manager in the district, was there. Barrass brought Dunlevy into fame. When he ran the Dunlevy club it was a real aggregation, with Chappie Hancock, Crowl, Dick Bossini, Loupri and Courtley on the team.

GAME HAS CHANGED

Daddy Robinson, of the Celtics; Wardle, of the Rovers, and Alex McClurg, men who have played a part in Lawrenceville soccer for 15 years, were on hand.

Despite the fact that Heidelberg won, and scored many goals, old-time fans went away feeling that soccer is not what it used to be. When Sturgeon, Morgan, Dunlevy, Gallatin, Pittsburgh Rovers and the old Celtics, together with Trevelyan, Cuddy, Cecil, Curry, Castle Shannon, Beadling and Braddock, were playing soccer here, the kicking code was anything but a drawing room party.

It took a lot of heart to last 90 minutes in cup tie soccer then.

When the old-timers left the Stadium they also left with a longing for the days when soccer was played by 22 red-blooded men, and goals were all that mattered. Maybe the Miners' League of years ago will again be back, and then possibly those memories will be revived.

WEST PENN MEET TONIGHT

The West Penn Football Association council and the cup committee of that body will hold a meeting this evening at 8 o'clock. While the invitation to attend the meeting of the outlawed football association will be discussed, there is not a chance that Western Pennsylvania will lend an ear to any proposal against the United States Football Association, seeing that the august body is favorable to West Penn.

KNOXVILLE FIVE WINS

The Knoxville Club defeated Etna Centrals at Etna High School last night.

DAVE ADELMAN, MAYBERRY REBOOKED

Howard Mayberry, of Donora, and Davy Adelman, of Philadelphia, will scale in at 120 pounds for their 10-round windup battle in the McKeesport ring next Thursday night. Both formerly were flyweights, but for some time now they have been boxing as bantams.

This is the third attempt of Promoter Jim McGirr to get the pair together in the ring. The first two efforts failed when first Adelman and then Mayberry developed influenza after agreeing to the bout.

Philadelphia fans are peeved at Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, for leaving their city to make his home in Chicago, where he says he will get more favorable recognition as a claimant of the vacant heavyweight championship.

Eddie Shea boxes Tony Mandell, of Boston, in a 10-round bout at the Coliseum in Chicago tonight. Dixie Lahood and Al Greenfield will box the semi-final.

A meeting of the amateur boxers of the Pittsburgh Lyceum will be held in the Lyceum gymnasium this evening.

Joe Dubranski, of McKeesport, for the last five years announcer at the McKeesport and Duquesne boxing shows, has turned manager and has corralled a large string of flat-fingers. Among them are Phil Scilio, George Kerson, Teddy Weiss, Dick Gibbons, Jesse Hosak, Ken Hargraves, Allen Beatty, California Joe Gans and Charley Bradd. This is quite an aggregation. Dubranski may be reached for the services of any of these boxers by calling McKeesport 3716.

For the first time in 15 years, Johnny Dundee, former featherweight and junior-lightweight champion, enters the ring in anything but a ballroom bout when he meets Charley (Phil) Rosenburg, former bantamweight champion, in the semi-final to the bout between Max Schmeiling and Joe Sekyra, heavyweights, in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight.

CRITZ GREATEST KEYSTONE SACKER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The greatest second-baseman in the National League—perhaps in baseball—Hughie Critz of the Reds might sway a pennant to any of the four principal contenders for the flag, if he were traded to one of them.

The Giants, the Cubs, the Pirates and the Cardinals all would receive Little Hughie with open arms and a fat contract. His lack of poundage does not seem to militate against him with the pilots of the senior circuit.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants regards Critz as the best keystone tender in the league, and one of the greatest the game ever has produced. McGraw picks the wee Reding over stars like Frisch and Hornsby.

Intelligence of play doubtless has influenced the New York chieftain in favor of Critz. Knowing what is being pitched on each delivery and with a keen appreciation of the characteristics of each batsman, Critz gets a better "jump" on the hitters than any of the contemporary second-basemen.

A striking illustration of Critz's skill was given to the detriment of the Giants while they battled the Reds in a hot game last summer. Andy Reese, promising young member of the McGraw Clan was a particular victim.

Reese smacked a hot liner over second, but Critz "came up" with the ball. Later Andy banged a sizzling grounder just out of the reach of the first-baseman. Hughie speared the bounder in one hand for an assist.

Naturally Reese was provoked when he came to the bench.

"But Critz was not staggering around out there," John J. informed his disgusted hitter. "He knew that you would get a slow ball in your first try and he was on the run when you drove it over second. He also knew they were pitching fast on the outside when he nailed that drive to right."

It has been stated that McGraw more than once became peeved at Frisch for missing signals.

CHILLYSAUCE

Carl Mays, submarine star of the mound and now a member of the Giants, is working out at Miami in anticipation of a big season. McGraw, it will be seen, is resorting to "underhand" methods to win.

Babe Herman of the Dodgers is a dangerous clouter; in the outfield he remains a fine hitter. One Brooklyn writer wanted to give Herman the valuable-player award.

"Babe deserved it," argued the scribe—"he helped seven other teams."

Thousands of Pirate fans wondered why the local team,—owning a questionable slab staff, did not grab Flint Rhem. The Mellon Institute objected, it develops, Rhem has too much smoke.

Details on the utterances of Commander Byrd's men as they came upon the gates to the South Pole are lacking, but it is possible that one of them remarked:

"If we had some ginger ale we certainly could make a lot of high balls."

Dismal failures often have their virtues. The Braves of 1928 were just about the furthest South in baseball, but the discouraging progress of the team has brought about another reunion of Evers, Maranville and Gowdy. And that is something to baseball fans.

to call his attenion to the advisability of always being as discriminating in his choice of the beneficiaries of his generosity as he was in this instance.

Otherwise, they are warning him, he may wind up penniless, as did that other great little Negro fighter with whom he has been compared—George Dixon. Dixon was imposed on by his supposed friends until he went broke, and when he died in a ward at Bellevue Hospital in New York in 1909, the sum required to send his body to Boston for burial was raised by subscription.

George Dixon

AN American who resided in England for a long time, tells of one of the last stages of Dixon's ring career. "I had gone to a small fight club in the East End of London one night and was shocked to see Dixon in one of the preliminaries," he said. "Even more shocking was to see him beaten mercilessly by a boy who would have been honored at being one of George's sparring partners in earlier years. Leaving the club at the conclusion of the show, I saw Dixon on a corner outside a 'pub' a few blocks away. No one else was near, and there he stood, in the glare of an arc light, shadow boxing. That was my last glimpse of the man who, for his weight and inches, was the greatest fighter I ever saw—broken in health, empty of pocket and forsaken in a foreign city."

Bulls Get Setback — Wall Street Quotations

Forbes

Trade Outlook Excellent; Speculation Excites Fears.

By B. C. FORBES

THE 1928 outlook for business is distinctly more reassuring than the calendar implies.

INDUSTRIAL foundations are sound, commercial foundations are sound, the speculation foundations are sound, while foundations are sound, the agricultural foundations are sounder than they were, and political foundations are sound. Inflation is conspicuous by its absence.

Speculative foundations are not so sound. Here deflation, judged by all reasonable standards, has become conspicuous by its presence.

IT IS entirely possible that 1929 will witness prosperity in business and employment but not increasing "prosperity" in stock speculation. Quotations advanced in 1928 the equivalent of some $12,000,000,000.

The present plan of the most powerful bull operators is to carry the Coolidge boom into the Hoover regime. Judging from the market's prompt and impressive recovery from the severe setback in early December, they may prove entirely capable of carrying out this program.

In face of monetary conditions it is not conceivable to this writer, however, that the speculative whoopee can be furiously kept up throughout the year.

INTEREST rates have begun the year at the highest level since the 1920 collapse. The federal reserve system's ratio of reserve is at the lowest point touched since then. Brokers' loans are $1,250,000,000 higher than one year ago and $2,250,000,000 above two years ago.

The year just ended brought down our stock of gold $240,000,000. Further exports would be much more logical than imports of gold. We already are carrying far more than our normal share of the world's supply of the metal.

Simultaneously with 10 per cent rates for call money and 7½ to 8½ per cent for Wall Street time loans, commercial borrowing rates have been kept around 5½ per cent to 6½ per cent, thanks mainly to the attitude of the Federal Reserve Board and to the sensible course followed by responsible bankers. But it is unthinkable that any such disparity as exists will be continued indefinitely. Either speculative rates will have to come down or commercial rates are bound to go up to and by, to the injury of trade and employment.

Speculative rates for some time have been strictly governed by the rise and fall of stock quotations and stock speculation. Whenever the market indulged in a fresh outburst of bullish activity, up went the volume of brokers' loans and rates. The sudden setback in stocks brought contraction in loans.

UNDER these circumstances it is difficult to see how normal money conditions can be restored, without real liquidation in stocks.

Some—even many—contend that what we have been witnessing in the stock market has been normal. The writer has been too long associated with Wall Street to regard as normal the marking-up of individual stocks by $10, $20, $30 a share in one day, with equally violent reactions the next day. Nor can he view as normal an interest charge for carrying stocks not far from twice the dividend return on the stocks thus carried.

Also, he shares the contention of conservative bankers that danger lurks in the presence in Wall Street of nearly $2,500,000,000 of demand loans furnished by non-banking lenders—lenders who presumably would not hesitate to call in their money should disturbances arise and who presumably would have to recall a large part of their surplus funds should the business improvement generally predicted actually materialize.

THE bulls admittedly are well supplied with optimistic arguments.

The year is counted upon to bring further improvement in business. Colossal mergers are being planned. The railroads confidently look for a favorable supreme court decision in the famous O'Fallon valuation test case. Railway shares have advanced extremely little in contrast with the advances of 95 per cent to several hundred per cent. in favorite industrial issues. Utility corporations promise to continue their solid and substantial progress. Inventories throughout the country are light. The nation is earning more than ever before above its living expenses.

Labor's attitude is more intelligent and co-operative, and labor, thanks in part to multiplying labor-saving machinery, is distinctly more efficient than in the old days.

High finance and big business are inspired by the prospect of Herbert Hoover's installation as chief executive. They look for brilliantly helpful co-operation from him in raising our prosperity to still greater heights.

Cut-throat competition is rapidly giving way in many industries to consolidations and to "understandings" which make for the reduction or elimination of unprofitable practices.

Already at least some improvement has developed in farm-land values. Agricultural debts have been reduced. Better farming methods and more diversification are being adopted. The government is earnestly seeking to provide all feasible assistance to agriculture and there is no reason to fear that prices for farm products will become less satisfactory than they have been.

In case of any unforeseen recession in business and employment, the federal government, state governments and municipal governments doubtless would inaugurate very important construction programs.

Our foreign trade prospects are encouraging, with nothing to indicate that a reviving Europe will succeed in driving us out of important foreign markets.

When our standards of living are steadily rising, involving increasing demand not only for better homes and better buildings of all kinds, but demands for a more generous supply of comforts and luxuries. Millions of incomes are now supplemented by dividend and interest checks.

The nation never was more peaceably inclined and the world is making progress as never before towards the establishment of agreements and machinery for avoiding war.

THE one danger spot, as the writer sees it, is Wall Street. If speculation should run still more rampant, restrictive legislation is certain to be attempted. Moreover, credit troubles would almost inevitably be incited.

Provided speculation is kept within bounds, the United States should enjoy an even increasing measure of prosperity which its intelligence, its resources, its enterprise, its industriousness, wealth and its highly-efficient workers have brought within reach.

If we do not prosper, the fault will be our own.

SALES DELUGE GIVE BULLS SETBACK

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Bullish forces in the stock market received a temporary setback today when a deluge of selling, inspired by the record-breaking total of brokers' loans, forced prices down 2 to 8 points. Fresh buying support was quickly forthcoming and an irregular recovery ensued in which early losses were cut down and a number of public utility, copper, chemical and food shares were marked up 1 to 8 points above yesterday's final quotations.

The rally was influenced by a further easing in the credit situation. Call money renewed at 8 per cent, dropped to 7 and thence to 6. Federal Reserve officials intimated that the ease in money reflects a temporary surplus accumulation of funds here incidental to the heavy year-end payments.

Except for an increase of 25 cents a barrel in Pennsylvania crude oil and reports of a brisk demand for copper metal, there was little in the day's trade news to influence the price movement. Activity of many specialties reflects the many merger discussions now under way, and the prospect of higher dividends when the 1928 earnings are officially compiled.

Wide fluctuations took place in several of the high priced issues. Radio broke 9 points to 388, rallied to 398 and then eased again to around 390. General Electric fell 8 points to 220¾ and rebounded above 236. Abraham and Straus slumped 7½ points to 147½ and snapped back to 152¾. Union Carbide dropped 5½ but quickly recovered its loss.

The strong support provided for many of these issues on the breaks indicated that powerful speculative forces working for higher prices were not ready to give up control of the price movement. Some observers interpreted the high increase in brokers' borrowings as an indication that extensive distribution had taken place.

New leaders were quickly brought forward in the afternoon recovery. American Radiator ran up 8 points to 201, National Lead 4¾ to 140¾, and Bonnawk Carpet 4½ to 77, all new high records. Other issues to move into new high ground included Anaconda and Kennecott coppers, International Nickel (new), Penick & Ford, Postum, Gillette Safety Razor, American Metals and Kansas City Southern.

There was a fairly well sustained demand for the rails, presumably in anticipation of a favorable decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallon case, now before the United States Supreme Court, on which hinges more than a billion dollars in railroad valuations.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The raw sugar market was less active today, with no fresh business reported. Prices were unchanged. Cuban spots duty paid.

There was not much activity in the raw sugar futures market, but the undertone was steady and after opening 1 point lower to 1 point higher, prices firmed up on covering and some buying by two houses with trade connections with the East at midday 1 to 2 points net higher. The increasing supplies in Cuba seemed to restrict any aggressive buying and the demand was believed to be principally in the way of covering against recent sales in the spot market.

Refined prices were reduced 10 points at the opening to the basis of 5.10 for fine granulated, and while a little better in spots, was reported was confined to nearby requirements only.

LIBERTY DAIRY STRONG IN LOCAL STOCK MARKET

United Engineering and Foundry was under moderate pressure in the early dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, but after selling off about a point in the first hour, the stock quieted down and the offerings dwindled in volume.

There was no reliable explanation of the weakness in the stock, but fears were expressed that the company might be considering the elimination of the 20-cent extra dividend which has been paid with the regular 40-cent quarterly disbursement for some time. It is also felt that the earnings statement for the year just ended will not make a favorable showing. It is understood the last quarter of 1928 was profitable, but that results for the first nine months were comparatively poor.

A little hesitation was not in the main list here in the early dealings principally because of the sharp overnight losses registered by many of the stocks on the "big board." Steel common, for instance, opened off three points and there were numerous overnight declines of one to two points on selling induced by the $238,000,000 increase in brokers' loans for the week ended January 2, as shown by the report issued last night. New York stocks, however, snapped back quickly and much of the early loss had been retrieved by the end of the first hour.

Liberty Dairy Products was the strong feature of the early market, coming in this morning at 28, a rise of 2½ points over the previous close. Very little of the stock has been available for some time, and the issue has enjoyed a steady rise since its listing a few weeks ago. The company is a consolidation of dairy concerns built around the Hermes-Groves organization.

The market firmed up noticeably in the late trading. Pittsburgh Steel Foundry shot ahead 3 points on further buying attracted by yesterday's declaration of a $1 dividend on the stock. Standard Sanitary was firm in reflection of an upturn in the stock in New York.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Coppers, Rails Lead Market.

Copper stocks and high grade rails led a noteworthy advance in the above market today when the list incurred a mid-session slight break and fought its way forward through hesitancy and apprehension created by a $238,000,000 increase in brokers' loans for the week and an advance in bank acceptance rates at New York and Boston. Offerings at the opening forced prices back from two to five points from last night's close, but demand was so heavy that by the end of the first hour all but a small portion of the initial loss had been regained. The coppers showed the way, followed closely by the rails. Strong buying throughout the copper division was based on expectations of an early advance in the domestic delivery price of copper from the 17 cents. Copper is now bringing 16¾ cents, domestic delivering risen from 16 cents within the past two weeks. Rails were stimulated by the progressive strength displayed in that department yesterday, and the general list which the average of 20 selected railroad issues reached a new high, confirming the advances recently registered by the industrial averages and constituting an assurance to certain chart movement theories that the present phase of the market will carry through for some distance before a material reactionary correction takes place. However, the market seethed and boiled throughout the day as the more conservative element heeded what it interpreted as danger signals in the money market and the optimistic bulls fought on the up side of the market taking all offerings and driving their favorites higher as the decline in call loan rates gave them added confidence that stock market funds will be easier until after the middle of the month, at least.

December Insolvencies.

In the light of more complete statistics, it is interesting to examine the December insolvency record. The tabulation made by R. G. Dun & Co. for that month discloses 1,041 commercial failures, with aggregate liabilities of $40,774,190. Several interesting comparisons with earlier returns are revealed, but the outstanding feature is the relatively small rise in the number of failures over the November total. The increase is only 5¾ per cent, the lowest back to 1922, when it was 4.1 per cent, and compares with one of 16 per cent in 1927. An even larger difference appears in 1924, when 23 per cent more insolvencies occurred in December than in November. It is customary for the number of failures to take a decided upward trend late in a year, but the comparatively moderate rate shown during the last two months has shown that the strains in connection with the approaching annual settlements were less of a factor than usual, further significance attaches to the point that the liabilities of December defaults is the smallest for the month since 1925, and 10 per cent under the 2,162 mercantile reverses of December, 1927. Commercial failures for the year 1928 numbered 23,852, a new high record and an increase of 3 per cent compared with 1927.

General Electric-Westinghouse.

The sensational advance in General Electric recently has led to much speculation as to the cause of the buying. Most interests contend that the action of the stock indicates some important development within the company. The offerings have been unusually small at times, and the stock has responded rapidly to new buying. Some of the traders who realized large profits in General Electric during the past two or three days are said to have been purchasing into Westinghouse Electric on the theory that the stock is behind its leader.

Exchange Seats Higher.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of two Stock Exchange memberships, one at $585,000 and the other at $580,000. The last previously arranged sale was at $575,000.

Loans Jump $238,676,000.

Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City on January 2, 1929, increased $238,676,000 during the week to $5,330,103,000. This compares with $5,091,427,000 on December 26, $5,594,500,000, the high record on December 5, and $3,819,023,000 on January 4, 1928. Detailed figures compare as follows (000 omitted):

| | Jan. 2 '29 | Dec. 26 '28 |
|---|---|---|
| For own account | $3,183,040 | $3,109,301 |
| For out-of-town banks | 1,944,788 | 1,609,899 |
| For others | 2,146,066 | 2,322,227 |
| Total | $5,330,103 | $5,091,427 |

Principal changes during the week were an increase of $406,748,000 in loans for own account, a decrease of $11,911,000 in loans for out-of-town banks, and a decrease of $156,161,000 in loans for others. The increase of $406,748,000 in loans for own account is a reflection of year-end requirements which caused funds to be withdrawn from this center as shown by decrease in loans for others, and which have not yet found their way back to the New York money market. Increase in this class is considered to be a temporary feature. Demand loans constituted $4,780,269,000 of the total, compared with $4,537,370,000 a week ago, and time loans were $549,834,000, against $553,857,000 last week.

Monthly Total Up $48,000,000.

New York Stock Exchange reports collateral loans to members at close of business December 31 amounted to $6,439,740,511, a new high record and an increase of $48,096,247 over November 30 when loans totaled $6,391,644,264, the previous high record. On December 31, 1927, loans totaled $4,432,907,321.

Loans and Listings.

There was listed on the New York Stock Exchange in December close to $3,000,000,000 in new securities. Total listings now exceed $100,000,000,000 in value. The total of new and additional listings of bonds and stocks last year was in excess of $25,000,000,000, made up of $14,500,000,000 new issues and the remainder of additional stocks and bonds. Listings on the Curb last year reached a total of nearly $8,000,000,000. Brokers' loans made year increased $1,273,000,000. And yet some people have been looking for a shrinkage. The extraordinary feature was the comparatively small increase in brokers' loans, this increase being equal to only a little over 1 per cent of total listings on the Stock Exchange and Curb. More interesting would be a statement showing how much of the loan increase was due to borrowing on unsold bonds.

Reserve Discount Lower.

Consolidated statement of condition of the Federal Reserve banks on January 2 shows decreases for the week of $16,100,000 in holdings of discounted bills and $1,900,000 in bills bought in the open market and an increase of $12,600,000 in holdings of U. S. government securities. Member bank reserve deposits increased $84,600,000, government deposits $15,200,000 and cash reserves $29,700,000, while Federal Reserve note circulation decreased $41,500,000. Total bills and securities were $9,700,000 below the amount held on December 26.

Bank Rate Unchanged.

The New York Federal Reserve Bank made no change yesterday in its rediscount rate which remains at 5 per cent. Ratio of reserve of the New York Federal Reserve Bank stood at 54.1 per cent on January 2, against 60.0 a week earlier and 68.9 per cent a year ago. Ratio of the Federal Reserve System on January 2, against 61.8 a week previous and 67.2 a year ago.

Acceptances Raised.

New York acceptance dealers have advanced bid and asked rates ¼ of 1 per cent on all maturities except 30 days, which remain unchanged at 4¼ per cent bid and 4⅜ per cent asked. The new rates on 60 and 90 days are 4⅜ per cent bid, 4½ per cent asked; on 120 days 4½ per cent bid, 4⅝ per cent asked, and on 150 and 180 days 4¾ per cent bid, 5 per cent asked. This follows the advance of ½ per cent made on the buying rate for 90-day bills by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Boston acceptance houses also advanced bid rates on acceptances of 1 per cent all around, now bidding 5 per cent for 30, 60 and 90 days, 5⅛ per cent for four months and 5¼ per cent for six months. The Federal Reserve Bank of Boston also raised its buying rate on acceptances ¼ of 1 per cent on 30 to 90 days and on 90 to 120 days, making the new rates 4¼ per cent and 4⅜ per cent, respectively.

"Ear-Marked" Gold Increases.

The Federal Reserve Bank gold "earmarked" for foreign account increased $21,999,000 in the week ended January 2. The Bank of France is believed to be the purchaser.

Gold imports in week ended January 2 totaled $2,087,000, of which $1,250,000 came from Canada and $737,000 from Argentina. Exports were $367,000, of which Venezuela received $180,000, Germany $94,000, and India, $13,000.

Bill Rates Significant.

More significant than the increase in broker loans from a longer range view is the increase in 90-day bill purchase rates to 4⅛ from 4⅛ by the Federal Reserve Bank and the further earmarking of $45,000,000 in gold by the Reserve Bank, presumably for the account of the Bank of France. These factors, coupled with fundamental weakness in the credit situation, can mean only one thing, namely, that a correction of extreme proportions is ahead of the market in the not too distant future.

Clearings Break All Records.

Returns by telegraph to Bradstreet's from 127 leading cities of the United States for December and for the calendar year 1928 record, among other things, the effects of active stock market dealings upon the country's banking operations. While there was a slight let-down in the volume of December dealings on the country's exchanges, as compared with the two preceding months, the total recorded at New York broke all records, while the December aggregate for the other 126 cities proved to be second only to that recorded in October. The calendar year totals, both at New York and the other 126 cities, however, proved to have been larger than in any previous year. The total of clearings at 127 cities for December, $60,279,792,000, was 5.9 per cent in excess of November and 5.3 per cent in excess of the hitherto record month of May, while 16.3 per cent in excess of that for December, 1927. For the calendar year 1928, clearings totaled $625,644,791,000, a gain of 14.3 per cent over 1927.

Kennecott Copper.

There are now outstanding 4,351,313 shares of Kennecott Copper. At $160 a share Kennecott's capitalization has a market valuation of approximately $728,000,000. The low of last year Kennecott has practically doubled in price, thereby adding $364,000,000 to the wealth "on paper" of the shareholders. When Kennecott is split up, two for one, there will be 9,162,626 shares outstanding. It was not many years ago that Kennecott's market valuation was less than $100,000,000.

Pan-American Western.

Pan-American Western Petroleum Company reports September quarter net income of $100,837 after depreciation etc., against $302,339 in the September, 1927, quarter.

Miami Copper.

Directors of Miami Copper Company when they meet for dividend action after the close of the market today are expected to increase the rate to $2 a share a year from the present rate of $1.50. Miami's output in 1928 of around 4,000,000 pounds of copper a month was about 10 per cent less than in 1927 when output came to roughly 53,000,000 pounds. This and other causes increased cost of producing copper somewhat but these difficulties have been surmounted and output in 1929 probably will show an appreciable increase.

Tennessee Copper Financing.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Tennessee Copper and Chemical Corporation has been called for February 4, to authorize an issue of $5,000,000 6 per cent convertible bonds. It is proposed to issue immediately between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000 of the bonds.

President Adolph Lewisohn estimates earnings for 1928 at $1,200,000 after depreciation and bond interest, or $1.50 a share on 795,000 shares outstanding. This would compare with average earnings for the three preceding years of $758,000. The statement by President Lewisohn adds that "it is believed earnings from proposed additions and improvements alone will provide a profit sufficient to justify the use to increase dividends on the common stock." The present rate is $1 a year.

Blast Furnace Figures Revised.

The percentage of furnaces in blast January 1, 1929, must be revised to 57.4 per cent from 57.4 per cent recently reported. This is due to the fact, according to revised figures of Iron Age, that only 336 furnaces were available for iron making January 1 instead of 343 on which the previous percentage was calculated. Active furnaces now total 197.

Pennsylvania Crude Raised.

Pennsylvania crude oil prices were raised 25 cents a barrel today, marking the seventh advance in the price of the commodity since the local crude oil market turned upward early last year. The present price of $4.10 a barrel for top grade oil compares with last year's low of $2.80. In 1926 the high price was $3.90 a barrel and the low $3.15. Bradford crude, now $4.10, sold as high as $4.50 a barrel in 1924 just prior to the depression from which the industry is only now recovering. The new prices for Pennsylvania grades as follow: Pennsylvania grade (N. Y. Transit lines), $4.10; Bradford grade (National Transit lines), $4.10; Pennsylvania grade (National Transit lines), $4.00; Pennsylvania grade (S. W. Pennsylvania lines), $4.00; Pennsylvania grade (Eureka lines), $3.90; Pennsylvania grade (Buckeye lines), $3.85. All other grades remain uncharged.

Carloadings Above Last Year.

Loadings of revenue freight on the railroads of the United States in the week ended December 22 totaled 897,968 cars, according to the American Railway Association. This was an increase of 46,158 cars over the corresponding week in 1927 and 129,928 over the same week in 1926. Due to unusual seasonal decline in traffic, which ordinarily takes place at this time of year, total for the week ended December 22 was a decrease of 66,118 cars under the preceding week, with declines being reported in the total loading of all commodities except ore. All districts except the Northwestern reported increases in the total loading of all commodities, compared with the corresponding week in 1927, while all districts reported increases compared with the similar period of 1926.

Federal Reserve Earnings.

Gross earnings of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks for 1928 amounted to $64,050,000, or about $21,000,000 more than for 1927, while current expenses, $26,900,000, were about $500,000 less than for 1927. After providing the necessary reserves for depreciation, losses, etc., the Federal Reserve Banks had net earnings of $32,125,000. From this amount the banks paid $8,460,000 dividends to member banks and $2,584,658 to the United States Treasury as a franchise tax and transferred $21,080,000 to their accounts. Federal Reserve Banks of Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Dallas were the only ones to pay a franchise tax. All net earnings of the six other reserve banks remaining after the payment of dividends were transferred to their surplus accounts as required by law, the surplus accounts of none of these banks at the end of the year being in excess of their subscribed capital. Total subscribed capital of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks on January 1, 1929, amounted to $292,870,000, and total surplus to $254,398,00.

Glass Outlook Favorable.

National Glass Budget says: "Production of window glass considerably exceeds present market requirements, jobbing interests have not been placing many new orders with manufacturers for the past six weeks. It is believed, however, that by the middle of the month or shortly thereafter there will be a decided increase in the window glass business. When the new year was ushered in seven companies were producing plate glass. Within this year an additional firm will enter the field. At least two companies now producing plate glass will add to their production with the first half of the year. A large portion of this increase will be glass that is one-eighth of an inch in thickness or slightly thinner grade. It will be used almost entirely in the production of laminated glass by the automobile industry and for bank protection."

Commodity Trend Downward.

The trend of commodity prices during 1928, as indicated by Bradstreet's Price Index Number, was downward during the year, with a majority of the groups of commodities scoring declines. The Bradstreet's Index Number, as of January 1, 1929 totaled $12,9651, which marked a decrease of 4.4 per cent from January 1, 1928. In the preceding yearly period the trend was upward, the advance being 6 per cent, and the gain over January 1, 1927, was 1.1 per cent. The average of the 12 index numbers of 1928 was $13,2496, and the January 1, 1929, number at $12,9651, marks a decrease of 2.5 per cent from the average of the year just closed. Compared with the December 1, 1928, index number of $14,4054, the highest point reached since deflation in 1921, the January 1, 1929, index number is 10 per cent lower, while the rise from the low point of June 1, 1921, 22 per cent. The decline from the peak point of February 1, 1920, is 37.9 per cent.

Steel Outlook Bright.

Not in many years has the steel industry entered January with operations as high or prospects as bright as they are at present. Although 1928 established a new record for production, it is probable the first half of this year will make an even better showing. With the Steel Corporation operating at 87 per cent, and some of the leading independents near that figure, it is evident the authorities in the industry are confident on the outlook. March is usually one of the best operating months of the year, so that within two months it is probable a new peak will be established in the output of steel ingots. Knowledge of these favorable factors has been responsible for the good buying which has come into steel stocks recently.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—All deliveries of wheat dropped today to a new low price record for the season, increasing pressure of Argentine wheat abroad, lower quotations at Liverpool and bearish crop estimates from Canada were leading factors. Opening 3c to 5c off, wheat values here underwent some additional downturn. Corn and oats were relatively steady, with corn starting at 1c decline to a shade advance and subsequently holding near to initial figures. Provision trended lower.

Emphasizing reports today of price cuts on Argentine wheat offerings in Europe and of lower quotations than due at Liverpool were grain dealers' estimates that the 1928 wheat yield in Canada is about 60,000,000 bushels more than the Canadian government's latest total, contented feeling in general over the world wide lack of support developed. Although the wheat market here and numerous standing orders to let go of holdings and this week's drop in prices were automatically forced into operation.

Despite seasonable weather for the movement of corn and notwithstanding wheat weakness, corn prices showed considerable resistance. Country offerings were light and demand for corn at the seaboard continued to be in evidence, and Buenos Aires quotations on corn were higher with cheap shipments from Argentina, the last week announced as less than half as much as was the case at this time last year.

RELIANCE TOPS $407,000,000 IN 1928

The Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh in 1928 put into force $64,990,550 life insurance, $28,221,550 accident insurance and $62,120,25 weekly health indemnity. Its life insurance now in force exceeds $407,000,000.

In the last year its assets increased approximately $7,000,000. With admitted assets of $55,000,000, Reliance Life is the seventh financial institution, according to resources, in Pittsburgh, the fifth banking center of the United States.

Among its achievements in the last year was the attainment of $400,000,000 life insurance in force in 25 years without consolidation with another company or industrial or group insurance or reinsurance business, a feat never accomplished before in the history of insurance.

Two new policy forms were issued by Reliance Life in 1928. The Juvenile policy, designed to protect the future of children, was introduced in March and was quickly recognized as one of the most attractive forms issued in many years. In 10 months, 8,885 policies for $5,425,000 life insurance were issued on juveniles. Insurance with life income at ages 55, 60 and 65 was introduced in October and the experience of two months indicates growing demand for this form which protects the insured with an income at a time when the need for protection of dependents has lessened.

The board of directors of Reliance Life has authorized for 1929 a general 10 per cent increase in dividends to policyholders affecting all premium-paying policies. This is the sixth consecutive increase in annual dividends by this company and the rate for 1929 will be an increase of 75 per cent over the dividends paid on ordinary life policies in 1923.

An extension of the accident insurance age limit from 60 to 65 years was made available to Reliance Life policyholders in 1928.

The national sales organization of the company, which now consists of approximately 1,000 agents operating in 38 states, was materially strengthened in the past year.

SERUM FLIER NOT REPORTED

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 3.—(AP.)—The silence of the North today prevailed over the flight of Carl "Wop" May, who hopped off from Peace River yesterday morning to carry anti-toxin 290 miles to the diphtheria stricken Fort Vermilion trading post.

No alarm was felt, however, as it was not expected that May and Victor Horner, a passenger, would be heard from for at least 24 hours. They were expected to be at Fort Vermilion today, but communication from the fort, almost 600 miles from here, must be carried by dogsled to Peace River for relay by telegraph.

St. Lawrence Still Unfrozen, Sets Mark

QUEBEC, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The St. Lawrence River set a new mark yesterday. For the first time on record, the channel was unfrozen on January 3 all the way from Montreal to this city. Usually it freezes about December 15. The latest previous date for open water in the channel was January 2, 1912.

Leaves Much to Charity

READING, Pa., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Leaving an estate of $350,000 or more, the late Lily D. Stichter, aged member of noted colonial family of that name, bequeaths $50,000 to Christ Episcopal Church here, in a will probated today. In addition she gives $30,000 each to the Reading and Homeopathic Hospitals. Relatives are given the balance.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—The bond market was deluged by a wave of liquidation resulting from announcement of vast increases in brokers' loans in early trading today and prices took a downward trend. Some improvement was shown later, when the stock market rallied and time money displayed an easier undertone, but it was not extensive.

Anaconda Copper 7s and Barnsdall 6s were forced down about 3 points each. International Telephone convertible 4½s and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s were sold at slightly lower prices and other utilities showed sympathetic declines. Rails also were under pressure, although most losses were small. The foreign list was irregular.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway to procure authentication and delivery of $18,500,000 general mortgage 4 per cent bonds in partial reimbursement of its treasury for capital expenditures, the bonds to be held until further order of the commission. Action was deferred on application for authority to issue $2,132,000 of the bonds already authenticated.

Public offering was made today of $1,000,000 City of St. Paul (Minn.) 4½ per cent sewer bonds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

PENNSY LIKELY TO INCREASE DIVIDEND

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE advance of the stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad to 79¾ yesterday, the high record since 1903, was accompanied by reports that an increased return might soon be given to stockholders.

Net income for 1928 is believed to have surpassed all previous records. This was the third consecutive year in which an increase was shown.

In view of the improvement it is quite likely that the dividend rate will be raised to $4 a year from the present rate of $3.50. The offering of rights to purchase additional stock is also considered as a possibility.

EARLY in 1928 the right was offered stockholders to purchase one share of new stock for each eight shares held. Subscriptions were taken at the par value of $50 a share.

After allowing for the increase in capitalization, net for 1928 is expected to have exceeded $6 a share. In 1927, before the issuance of new stock, the net income, after all charges of $68,160,296, was equivalent to $6.82 a share. This was the largest return on the stock in recent years.

The remarkable fact about recent operations is that greater net railway operating income has been reported in the face of declining gross revenues. In the first 10 months of 1928 net from operations was $95,250,076, compared with $93,580,868 in the corresponding period of 1927. A decrease in gross revenues of $23,601,347 was shown in the same period.

A SLUMP in traffic took place in the latter part of 1927 while business continued to move at a good rate in the final months of 1928, so that the gross of $62,669,847 in October was $4,558,275 more than in the same months of the previous year.

The Pennsylvania has an unbroken record of dividend payments for 81 years. The company was chartered in 1846. The first installments on the stock subscriptions were paid the following year. Beginning with 1848 and continuing to the present time the stockholders have received a return on their investment every year.

This return has averaged 5.7 per cent on a par of $50 without taking stock dividends, scrip dividends and rights into consideration. Up to February, 1928, a total of 458½ per cent was paid in cash dividends.

"There is only one class of stock, of which $561,673,950 is outstanding. In addition to this, $17,500,000 of stock has been sold to employes at par. More than 100,000 employes have bought from 1 to 10 shares under the plan. This stock will not be shown as outstanding until it is paid in.

WITH an investment in road and equipment of $1,017,737,701 and total assets of $1,899,895,659, the company has a funded debt of $428,505,202.

The original investment in Pennsylvania was $7,500,000. Since 1864 rights have been offered to stockholders 19 times, providing for about four-fifths of the present capital stock. The bulk of these allotments was taken up by stockholders who preferred to exercise the privilege of subscribing rather than sell their rights.

Since its organization the line has been expanded from a road reaching from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh to a system operating 10,514 miles of line.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Prices dipped sharply on the curb during the first hour of trading today, but the selling, attributed to the huge increase in brokers' loans announced last evening, was soon absorbed and a vigorous rally set in which canceled most of the losses before midday.

Deere fell away 25 points at the opening, but soon made up its loss. Ford of Canada was again strong, advancing 21 points to a record price at 750. Ford of England moved up 2 points to 19 in sympathy, and Durant was again in good demand. Fox Theater "A" was strong on announcement that the Fox interests are planning to build a 52-story building and theater on Broadway. The Marconi stocks were strong, although Canadian had a period of heaviness at the opening.

Phelps Dodge was again in demand, reflecting the excellent condition of the copper industry. It shot up 14 points to 235 before midday. Hudson Bay was firm, and Noranda steadied after an early loss. Oils firmed up somewhat on announcement of a further advance in the price of Pennsylvania crude.

Utilities developed conspicuous strength toward noon, Electric Bond and Share more than recovering an early loss, and American Gas and Electric spurting 11 points.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Market, giving all stocks and bonds traded, 000 omitted in sales column in bond list:

Two N. Y. Exchange Seats Change Hands

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP.)—A New York Stock Exchange membership was sold today for $585,000, an increase of $10,000 over the previous sale and $10,000 under the record price. A second membership was sold for $550,000.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The cotton market opened unchanged to 9 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. There was some overnight buying orders brought in by the firmer tone of yesterday which absorbed the initial offerings. Prices stiffened up during the first few minutes with the more active months selling back to or a shade above yesterday's closing quotations. This bulge was checked by some New Orleans and southern selling, while there also seemed to be a little selling for Wall street and western account. The market became rather unsettled. At the end of the first half hour active months were 1 to 10 points net lower with March selling around 19.95 and July 19.66. Private cables said that trade calling and London buying had been supplied by hedge selling in Liverpool, but that there was an improved business in cotton cloths for India and China.

The forenoon decline extended to 14.91 for March, but a little trade buying developed at that level, while the selling tapered off, and the market steadied up later on covering. March rallied to 20.02 or within 3 points of yesterday's close before reacting, and the market was quiet at net declines of about 3 to 6 points at midday.

Wife Dying of Flu, Husband Kills Self

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 4.—(AP.)—Mrs. W. K. Sibley, 21, died early today of influenza-pneumonia an hour after her husband had killed himself, presumably because of worry over her illness. The couple lived in Meridian, Miss., and had come to Memphis for a holiday visit with Mrs. Sibley's relatives.

Late last night Sibley was told she had slight chance of recovery. Going into her room he struck her dead and was heard to say, "Anna, I can't live without you."

Then he went to the bathroom and shot himself.

Mrs. Sibley died without knowing of the tragedy.

GIRL'S SUICIDE ON BRIDAL DAY HELD SOLVED

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—(AP)—The motive for the suicide of Miss Lola Swain, as guests were assembling for her wedding last October, was believed by the police to have been found today in disclosures that Earl D. Baird, the bridegroom to be, was already a married man.

Baird, who was arrested at his home in Wilkinsburg, Pa., and indicted by the grand jury yesterday on a charge of bigamy, having sworn in his application for marriage license that he had never been married.

DIVORCE PENDING

Investigation by the Orphans' Court, which has jurisdiction over the marriage license bureau, is alleged to have disclosed that Baird was married in this city in 1927 to Mary B. Lattimer. She brought suit for divorce last June and the case has not come to trial. Baird was placed under $5,000 bail to appear when wanted for trial.

Miss Swain, a native of Kansas, was found unconscious a few hours before the time set for the wedding.

GUESTS WAITED

An elaborate church ceremony had been planned, and guests had arrived before her death became known.

Friends said that earlier in the day she had met Baird and had also had talked with him over the telephone. Her body, surrounded by her wedding finery and with a pistol clutched in her hand, was found on her bed. A note found said: "I have nothing to live for. Please forgive me."

RUM SEEN IN DUAL DEATHS

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 4.—(INS.)—Police today began an investigation into the killing here of Joe Skablanacas, 38, and Orrin H. Hoover, 17-year-old high school boy, in a house known as "Myrtle's Place."

According to Skablanacas' widow Myrtle, 35, young Hoover shot her husband and then killed himself, but police are attempting to trace down reports of a third man, said to have been seen running from the house, an alleged "booze joint," at the time of the shooting.

Another theory advanced was that the lad may have killed Skablanacas, thinking the latter had sold liquor to Orrin's father, who admitted that he "knew Myrtle's Place."

The slain man's widow maintains neither she nor her husband had ever seen the young man until he came to their house at midnight, hammered for admittance and then shot Skablanacas and himself.

Washington Has Safety First Mark

ROOM AND BOARD

FEES FOUGHT BY THOMPSON CREDITORS

The petition of counsel for the trustees in the estate of Josiah V. Thompson, of Uniontown, for $7,000 additional counsel fees was strongly opposed by the 2,200 unsecured creditors at a hearing before the referee in bankruptcy, Watson Adair, here today. The hearing was adjourned without a decision until January 21.

It was brought out that the petitioners had already received $4,000 for their counsel.

The petitioners were Attorneys A. Leo Weil, of Pittsburgh; ex-Judge Robert E. Umbel, of Uniontown, and Waitman B. Conway, of Fairmont, W. Va., who, for more than 10 years, have represented the trustees in settling the confused affairs of Thompson, one-time millionaire coal baron, whose financial collapse affected thousands in Western Pennsylvania.

Counsel for the creditors argued that in 1923 the petitioners had agreed that their fee had been paid in full, but Weil, in his argument, contended that such agreement, if it was made, failed to gain recognition from William Blair, then the bankruptcy referee.

Pending decision on this position and several minor issues, no action was taken towards distributing the remaining $378,284.71 to the creditors, who hope there will be enough left to declare a 2 per cent final dividend. A 10 per cent dividend was distributed several years ago.

JAIL YAWNS FOR THUGS HERE

Reception committees have been appointed here for New York's undesirables, ordered driven out by New York's new police commissioner, Grover Whalen. Today Detective Inspector Frank R. Hoyd assigned squads to all railroad stations for 24-hour service, to meet the gangsters. Ninety days' free entertainment is guaranteed all genuine gangsters.

Fearing that gangland would lead for Pittsburgh, since Chicago has announced a "coffin reception" for the killers, Inspector Boyd immediately arranged to prevent their influx here.

"I do not intend to have Pittsburgh made the dumping ground for gangsters," declared Boyd, in announcing his plan for receiving and entertaining the exiled New York gangsters.

Afghanistan Peace Agreement Reached

Rabbi, 73, Swims In Sea Every Day in Year

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Here's a 73-year-old man who for the last seven years has been diving into the sea seven times every day except on religious holidays.

He is Rabbi Narun Welsman, of Brooklyn. Every day he arises at 2:30 a. m., spends an hour in prayer, drinks a punch, drapes a coat over his naked form, dons a fur cap—in winter weather—walks to a Coney Island breakwater and plunges into the ocean seven times. He usually stays in the water 15 minutes. Then he lights a fire from newspapers on the beach, dries himself, puts on his clothes, goes back home and attends to his official duties.

He has been ill only one day in seven years.

Next New Crop Likely to Be Mussels

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Mussels, the shells of which are used for buttons and similar articles, may be the next new crop in this country, Dr. M. M. Ellis, of the University of Missouri, has evolved a system of raising mussels in commercial quantities, which eliminates the parasitic period in the life of the mussel.

Under the new method, described before the second biennial conference of the Bureau of Fisheries' scientific division, very young mussels are kept in a special chemical solution until they have passed the parasitic period. They then are transferred to regular mussel beds to complete their growth under the supervision of the mussel farmer.

At present the majority of mussels are never available for commercial uses.

Stricken while helping to shovel coal, John I. Pratt, 76, state mine inspector and widely known expert in coal mine operations, fell dead today in front of his home, 626 East End avenue.

He was carried into his home where a physician pronounced death as probably due to apoplexy.

Mr. Pratt had been a mine inspector of the Seventeenth bituminous district for 23 years. He was a member of the advisory board of the school of mines, Carnegie Institute of Technology, and conducted yearly examinations for superintendents, foremen and others.

Until last year it had been his custom to give a banquet each year to families of mine owners, operators and foremen in this district.

Born near Penn Station, Westmoreland County, he had followed the mining industry in the capacity of foreman, superintendent or manager all his life until he became inspector. For three years, preceding 1909, he was superintendent of a mine at Fuente, Mexico, for New York interests.

He leaves his wife and a son, Attorney W. H. Pratt.

He arrived in New York in the '80s with less than $10 in his pockets and in a short time had supplanted Ward McAllister as "social director" for Mrs. William Astor, acknowledged leader of the smart set.

Until he married Mrs. John V. Dahlgren, an heiress to the Drexel millions, in 1901, Lehr had managed to subsist on money earned as a wine agent.

BUGS BAER Says

NO news is more startling than the ironized industrial bomb touched off in Detroit.

Henry Ford is compelling 30,000 more men to go to work.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

If Mr. Ford continues at his present reckless rate of prosperity, bums will become so scarce that we will erect statues to them.

It is peculiarly impossible to visualize 30,000 men all banging away at the same rivet.

With the recent addition of industrious flivver students, the standing Army of the U. S. A. is outnumbered by the banging army of the F. O. B.

These 30,000 men all work. There are no kibbitzers in the Ford factory.

The complete muster for Henry's eruptive bungalow is now 150,000 citizens.

We would hate to be in the middle of the prosperious huddle when those 150,000 men start telling each other what to do.

And that's only a few of the men employed by Henry. He owns his own railroads, his own mines and the men get together every year to elect their own postmaster and secretary of labor.

To this army you must add add 150,000 wives. There's a city of 300,000.

While we know the production of the Ford plant we are not certain about the children.

We will allow four children to a family, making 600,000, a sum which is at least three sizes larger than a total

There's 900,000 people. Don't forget the police force, the letter carriers, the druggists, the grocers and the tradesmen essential to supply the folks with merchandise.

And you will find that Henry is the Mayor of a town that isn't on the map.

Well, Henry may not know history.

But he certainly can make it.

Adams Enunciated Policy of America Minding Own Business and Signing No Pacts Such as Kellogg Treaty

WE COMMEND to the attention of the Senate the words of another Secretary of State, John Quincy Adams, author of the Monroe Doctrine.

On July 4, 1821, the year of the Monroe Doctrine's promulgation, in an address in Washington, John Quincy Adams expressed to his countrymen the loftiest sentiment of intelligent and patriotic Americanism, in words reproduced on this page.

He enunciated the policy of America minding her own business and signing no pacts with European powers. Every word that he uttered then applies today with added force to this "multilateral pact of ...is," known in the United States as the ... treaty for outlawing war.

... added reasons for following the wise a...d patriotic advice of John Quincy Adams are these:

First:

Every high-sounding pact with Europe for the last 10 years has had a trick in it.

Second:

The fine-sounding League of Nations would have had us fighting and financing European wars.

Third:

The World Court would have sent American questions for decision in a court with 10 foreign judges and one American judge.

Fourth:

The disarmament treaty of 1922 was diverted into disarmament only for the United States, its provisions confined to battleships and battle cruisers, in which the United States was superior.

This new "multilateral pact" is hailed by every League of Nations advocate in the country.

Henry Morganthau calls it a "feeble imitation of the League of Nations." Roland Morris states he believes it will get us into the League. Senator Bruce, of Maryland, thinks so too, and frankly admits he is voting for the pact for that reason.

Wickham Steed, editor of the London Review of Reviews, understood President Coolidge to say in an interview that, after ratifying the Paris pact, we should thereafter acquiesce in war measures of the League of Nations. Happily, President Coolidge has stated he was misunderstood.

Let the Kellogg document stand as a declaration of our peaceful intentions.

Let the Senate not ratify it into a binding treaty, whose implications may in the future mean for us not peace but war, thanks to the tireless propaganda of the Leaguers and Internationalists intent upon involving us in the affairs of Europe and of the League of Nations.

They led us into one external peace scheme, a "war to end war" which did NOT end war but which did devour our sons and our treasure.

Secretary of State John Quincy Adams, who tells us to mind our own business, is a better guide for the Senate than Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, whose "multilateral pact of Paris" invites us to concern ourselves with the peace, and soon with the pacification, of the entire world.

John Quincy Adams said:

"America, in the assembly of nations, since her admission among them, has invariably, though often fruitlessly, held forth to them the hand of honest friendship, of equal freedom, of generous reciprocity. She has uniformly spoken among them, though often to heedless and often to disdainful ears, the language of equal liberty, of equal justice and equal rights. She has, in the lapse of nearly half a century, without a single exception, respected the independence of other nations while asserting and maintaining her own. She has abstained from interference in the concerns of others, even when the conflict has been for principles to which she clings as to the last vital drop that visits the heart.

"She has seen that probably for centuries to come all the contests of that aceldama, the European world, will be contests of inveterate power.

"Wherever the standard of freedom and independence has been or shall be unfurled, there will her heart, her benedictions and her prayers be. But she goes not abroad in search of monsters to destroy. She is the well-wisher to the freedom and independence of all—she is the champion and vindicator only of her own.

"SHE WILL RECOMMEND THE GENERAL CAUSE BY THE COUNTENANCE OF HER VOICE AND THE BENIGNANT SYMPATHY OF HER EXAMPLE. SHE WELL KNOWS THAT BY ONCE ENLISTING UNDER OTHER BANNERS THAN HER OWN, WERE THEY EVEN THE BANNERS OF FOREIGN INDEPENDENCE, SHE WOULD INVOLVE HERSELF BEYOND THE POWER OF EXTRICATION IN ALL THE WARS OF INTEREST AND INTRIGUE, OF INDIVIDUAL AVARICE, ENVY AND AMBITION, WHICH ASSUME THE COLORS AND USURP THE STANDARD OF FREEDOM.

"The fundamental maxims of her policy would insensibly change from liberty to force. The frontlet of her brow would no longer beam with the ineffable splendor of freedom and independence, but in its stead would soon be substituted an imperial diadem flashing in false and tarnished lustre the murky radiance of dominion and power. She might become the dictatress of the world; she would no longer be the ruler of her own spirit."

Study of Smoke Evil Of Benefit to Public

The investigation of the smoke nuisance to be conducted by the Mellon Institute and Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce is one of those movements in behalf of public welfare that benefits the whole people and yet is without cost or trouble to them. It is an educational step the result of which will be of great value to all—the individual in the home in addition to the manufacturer and merchant. It will look to the elimination of dirt and the matter of air pollution as well as the economic phases of combustion. It will prove to be one of our most profitable lessons.

Our present anti-smoke ordinance is the result of such a study 15 years ago by the Mellon Institute, and that ordinance, a later survey showed to have been instrumental in giving relief from the smoke nuisance, which again is becoming felt, it is held, because it does not apply to residences or small apartment houses. These, it is claimed, now are the worst offenders in the creation of smoke. In other words, it is WE, in our homes, who are to blame for the recurrence, in some degree, of conditions of which we formerly complained and now complain again.

As an emergency remedy, a resolution has been introduced in Council calling upon the people to voluntarily help themselves by burning gas or coke instead of soft coal. Many former users of gas have returned to coal for economic reasons and that, it can be said, is one of the contributory causes of the increase of smoke.

Whether the remedy lies in using less soft coal or in putting the proper mixture of bituminous products in our furnaces, the investigation now being started will probably determine. The advantages of coke, which is a soft coal product, are not generally understood, either.

In any case, th... nothing more expensive than funerals. And the tainted air of Pittsburgh may have been the cause of many new graves this winter.

Low-Paid, Not High Paid Worthy of First Raise

Through raising salaries of various county employes and fixing the pay of added assistants, the County Salary Board has boosted Allegheny's payroll by approximately $185,000. Commissioner McGovern, member of the board, who approved only part of the increases, says the action of the board was "the worst raid ever made on the county."

It does appear that the board was seriously inconsistent in increasing the salary of the county solicitor by 33 per cent, from $7,500 to $10,000, while granting to the persons who feel the pinch of poverty most, elevator operators and scrubwomen, a picayune of $24 a year—$2 a month or less than 50 cents a week, an amount members of the salary board sometimes pay to redeem their headgear from a hat-checker.

The county solicitor and his assistants, two of whom received increases of 25 per cent, are professional men, and their value to the county cannot be measured by the dollar-and-cent yardstick. Their services in a year may be worth many times what the county pays them—probably is—but the fact remains that when they were appointed there was competition for their jobs, just as there was for the positions held by the elevator operators and scrubwomen.

The Sun-Telegraph is for just treatment in the matter of pay for all underpaid public servants, high or low, but it does take the stand that the low-paid employe should be the first to receive relief.

In that class are the city firemen and policemen. They receive a sum far too small for the risk assumed, as has been pointed out editorially by this newspaper previously. Guardians of life and property, they too are entitled to a fair increase in salary.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 4—Thoughts while strolling: Ladies with silver-tipped swagger sticks. And boys who wave their hair to look like Harry Richman. A grinding screech, a crash—and shortly the clang of an ambulance. Samuel Hoffenstein, a poet, and, shades of Harry Kemp! quite a fashion plate.

The pervading odor of monoxide gas. Plump ladies who seem to drift like barges. Brock Pemberton, an Emporia, Kan., boy, who made good in the city. The blind man with a portable phonograph around his neck. Those neat second third story windows displays so few notice. Armand Vesey, the violinist.

A policeman shoots a fallen, injured horse. Ernest Boyd's red beard. Pipe smokers on rear street car seats. Jesse Livermore, one of Wall street's fair haired boys. The hopeless looking men with undertaker parts in their hair who sell atheist tracts. Peaches what's-her-name.

Daily busses in from the Pacific Coast. They must be worrying the railroads. Aluminum hooded autos—a favorite gesture of the nouveaux riche. Blanche and Alfred Knopf successful poets and publishers. Overheard: "He told me his wife was an invalid and there they were roller skating like everything."

Men in riding clothes who never ride a horse. A lady in a limousine sprays her fluffy dog with a pocket perfume atomizer. Whatever became of those police czars who used to rule the Tenderloin? William Bolitho, another journalistic importation from Fleet street, and Ring Lardner going to work.

Buses filled with smiling, waving crippled children. And most of us grouching around because we can't be at Palm Beach. The Chinese cafe proprietor who is a genial, red haired Irishman. The furtive fruit cart peddlers who sneak across town dodging policemen. Lee Shubert at a Ziegfeld show.

Hotel banner announces a convention of cosmeticians. No more fat cops. Sandwiches everywhere but nothing to eat. A group of news camera men. And a crowd hopefully awaits. Silver lances of rain. Glistening streets. And the groups chattering like magpies under the canopies.

Tales That Are Told

Quite Sure

ON his way to school one morning Freddy saw a man repairing the grating over a drain. He stopped to watch him.

"That's the drain where my brother dropped a silver dollar the other day," he announced.

The workman became interested.

"Is that so?" he said. "Well, run along, sonny, or you'll be late for school."

When Freddy passed again at lunch-time the man was still there.

"Are you sure it was in this drain that the dollar was lost?" he asked as he saw the lad.

Freddy nodded.

"Yes; I watched my father getting it out."

The Only Way

A MUSIC-HALL artist was singing "Baby Face," only he pronounced it "Biby Fice."

This was not going at all well with his audience, so a brother performer told him to sing it in better English.

"Yes," he replied, "but, you see, 'Baby Face' doesn't rhyme with the next line—'Tike your plice.'"

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

I NOTICED it first some years ago.

It branched off from the main highway, loitered over a little brook, dipped through the ferns, growing more and more shadowy as it went. Then, with a sudden turn, it was lost in the forest.

"Some day when I ha e time I will follow that trail," I said to myself, thinking longingly of what lay beyond that tantalizing turn.

Yesterday I went back that way. But though I looked for a long time I could not find my trail. Perhaps the woods have grown over it. Perhaps I did not look in the right place. I shall never know. But I shall always be sorry that I did not follow it that first time and always feel that my life is a little poorer for that lost chance.

Lost trails—How many of them there are in lives!

When we were young they opened off the highway on every side.

Romance and Adventure—they were waiting there—

Gallant, generous deeds—high ambition—

Silent white places very near to God—

Hidden altars of sacrifice—

Merry gypsy camps—

"Some day when we have time we will follow these trails," we said to ourselves.

But somehow the day never came. We were too busy and distracted—

There was so much to do on the great highway, so much to see.

Very little of it was worth doing, or worth seeing.

None of it could compare in liveliness with that which we might have found along the secret trails—

But we couldn't tear ourselves away—

And, as time went on, we didn't want to tear ourselves away.

Why had we been so crazy about wood trails anyway?

They were uncomfortable things—dark and slippery—there was no telling what might happen if we left the highway and went rummaging off through the woods.

It was really dangerous, and besides, people might laugh at you.

So we tried to put our lost trails from our minds.

But they would not be quite put out.

And sooner or later we went back that way and tried to find them. But they had vanished. Other eyes—younger eyes—might see them, but we could not see them anymore.

And suddenly all life seemed the poorer because we had lost our trails.

Bible Passages

"Arise, O God"

(Psalm 82.)

GOD standeth in the congregation of the mighty; he judgeth among the gods.

How long will ye judge unjustly, and accept the persons of the wicked? Selah.

Defend the poor and fatherless: do justice to the afflicted and needy.

Deliver the poor and needy: rid them out of the hand of the wicked.

They know not, neither will they understand; they walk on in darkness: all the foundations of the earth are out of course.

I have said, Ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most High.

But ye shall die like men, and fall like one of the princes.

Arise, O God, judge the earth: for thou shalt inherit all nations.
